DESECRATION was charged today by Victoria tree lovers when they learned that highways work crews last week cut down one of the areas most famous groves of dogwood. Seven stumps now border West Saanich Road, overlooking Heal's Range, at a point where thousands have stopped to admire or take pictures of the trees in blooming season. Victoria city parks boss Herb Warren says the stand was the last of the really fine dogwood trees in the district. He disagrees that the trees were a traffic hazard since the road was widened and says the province should have taken other steps if there was concern—even to changing the roadway to avoid the trees. He charged the department with being heavy-handed. (Halkett photo.)

Only Sad Stumps Left Of Noble Dogwoods

By PETE LOUDON

One of the most beautiful clusters of dogwood on the Saanich Peninsula has been sacrificed for highway improvement.

The trees were felled last week on West Saanich Road near Heal's Rifle Range by the B.C. highways department.

They had been an outstanding attraction for years and had been photographed by thousands of passersby.

ROAD WIDENED

Residents in the area said the destruction of the trees was undertaken because the road was widened recently. The loss is justified according to some. But most people who knew the trees hover between rage and tears.

Victoria city parks superintendent W. H. Warren was upset by the news.

"Good species of dogwood are exceedingly rare. I can't point to one good dogwood in the area any more.

"This cluster and one which recently was lost at the Experimental Farm were the last two. I've been admiring this one for many years."

HEAVY HANDED

He said, "I think all the operations of the highways department are heavy handed when it comes to trees. These have been a landmark for 50 years. They were no traffic hazard.

Mr. Warren said a dogwood lasts for 80 to 100 years and he said the trees just felled were getting on to maturity "but would last for many years ordinarily."

The trees had fronted the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Harvey for 35 years that they have lived there.

"I call it a crime," said Mr. Harvey.

He said the branches of the dogwoods had been brushing the tops of the Vancouver Island Coach Line buses and "they kicked up a fuss."

RUINED THEM

Mr. Harvey said a man recently was sent out to prune the trees, "but he ruined them."

Mrs. Harvey, who has another fine dogwood clump in her yard, was more philosophical.

"The trees were badly decayed and three of the branches were gone." She said that as close to the road as they were, they consti-

CABINET MINISTERS RESIGN

Liberals Take Gamble In Opening Two Seats

By ALEX YOUNG
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—In putting two of its seats up for by-election grabs, the Pearson minority government is risking a reduction in its ability to control Parliament and remain in power.

Having won 129 seats in the April general election, the Liberals fell four seats short of holding an absolute majority in 265-seat commons.

With the resignation from their Montreal seats of Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier and Postmaster General Azellus Denis, announced Friday, and the calling of Feb. 10 byelections, The Pearson government apparently is taking a calculated risk.

Sources say the government feels it has a good chance to win both byelections because the constituencies involved have been solidly Liberal for years—even through the massive electoral victory won by the Progressive Conservatives in 1958.

Should the Liberals be surprised and lose the two byelections, these sources say, they would quickly recognize the need to do some fence-mending.

They don't fear a defeat in the house, and consequent general election through loss of the two seats because they are confident the Social Credit MPs and New Democrats will continue to vote with the government to avoid an early election.

Prime Minister Pearson now has made a start on his cabinet shuffle—the first since taking office.

Chevrier and Denis are both veteran Liberal MPs.

They will be given other jobs and will continue in an active capacity as heads of their departments until their new appointments.

Mr. Pearson also announced at a press conference that

PLASTIC HEART MAY BE BETTER THAN THE REAL ONE

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A surgeon whose father died of a cardiac ailment is developing an artificial heart that he says may be more efficient than the disease-prone organ provided by nature.

Dr. Harold D. Kletschka says he believes his plastic heart will outperform a damaged organ and will be so dependable that it "may still be going when its owner is dead from another disease."

Kletschka, 39, a native of Minneapolis, is chief of thoracic (chest) surgery at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Syracuse and an assistant professor of surgery at the Upstate Medical Centre of the state university.

His heart concept, Kletschka said, has been proven in principle. A plastics company with which he is working has developed the materials to meet biological requirements.

Now, he is seeking a $33,000 federal grant to complete the project and assemble a working model that would be tested first in animals.

If proven effective, he said, the artificial heart could play a dramatic role in prolonging human life and in the battle against heart disease.

The surgeon is reluctant to discuss his concept in detail.

Both Sides Ready to Talk

Times News Services

BERLIN—West Berlin and East German officials said today they are willing to negotiate to keep the wall open in 1964 after the current Christmas passes expire.

The statements appeared on the surface to be good news for families split by the wall. But some feared the separate West Berlin-East German talks could undermine the city's legal position and weaken its ties to West Germany.

The Soviet Embassy in East Berlin announced today it refused to accept an American protest Friday against the Christmas Day murder by East German border guards of a young refugee. The Soviet action was in line with the Communist attempt to cut West Berlin's legal ties with the West and build up the Soviet concept of an independent, sovereign East Germany.

More than 70,000 West Berliners used the Christmas passes today to enter East Berlin to visit relatives, and a city spokesman said the number might be as high as 150,000 Sunday. Total of 250,000 has passed through so far.

The Communists made three different offers to conclude a new agreement to allow West Berliners to continue to pass through the wall after the present holiday season agreement runs out Jan. 5.

A West Berlin spokesman said the city government "is ready" to negotiate again with the East Germans. He expressed the hope an agreement would alleviate some of the inhuman effects of the anti-refugee wall built Aug. 13, 1961.

Red Offer Made by Eisler

The Communist offer to negotiate a new pass agreement was made by Gerhart Eisler, top East German propagandist, Deputy Premier Alexander Abusch and the official Communist Party newspaper Neues Deutschland.

Eisler, bail-jumping fugitive from American justice, in his regular weekly column in the Communist Youth newspaper Young World, was asked if he thought a new agreement could be reached after the present Christmas pass agreement expires Jan. 5.

Eisler answered "Yes, indeed, I think so. Why should it not be possible to reach other, perhaps more far-reaching agreements in the spirit of the pass agreement."

Abusch, who started the negotiations that led to the present agreement by a letter to West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt early this month, said today: "Our government is ready after Jan. 5, 1964, to negotiate with authorized representatives of West Berlin all questions on the normalization of ties to West Berlin."

West Berliners Salute Body

The body of the slain refugee, Paul Schultz, 18-year-old electrician's apprentice, was shipped to East Berlin today for burial at the request of his brother.

He was shot in the back as he scaled the wall on the American sector border Christmas Day.

The Communists today defended his murder even as they offered to keep the wall open. The official Communist party newspaper Neues Deutschland, said "Our border soldiers act quite correctly. They are friendly to those who obey our laws and hard on those who violate them."

The remains of the 18-year-old

SNOW STOPS JAPAN TRAIN

TOKYO (AP) — A heavy snow storm disrupted train and bus service in west coast areas of Japan today. Twenty-one passenger trains and 87 freight trains were cancelled in northern Honshu and others ran up to 5½ hours behind schedule. A two-day snowfall in some places totalled 36 inches.

Cyprus Remains Tense

(Times News Services)

NICOSIA, Cyprus—A British patrol was fired on today as violence flared up again on this Mediterranean island which has been torn by fighting between Greeks and Turks for the last week.

A British army spokesman said the patrol came under attack near the Kyrenia Gate in Nicosia but did not return the fire. No one was injured.

At the same time the British wife of a serviceman was reported wounded in the leg by gunfire from Turkish Cypriots in the Neapolis quarter of the city.

The latest shooting came as British Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys arrived here by air for urgent talks.

Sandys left Britain unexpectedly aboard a troop transport. A three - nation peacekeeping operation already was attempting to keep order between the two Cypriot communities.

Meanwhile, a military spokesman at the three-power truce headquarters said three Turkish jet fighters flew over Nicosia this morning following a tense night filled with rumors of an imminent Turkish invasion.

The low-level buzzing was the third such incident in the last four days and followed a nerve-wracking night during which Turkish warships were reported off the northern Cyprus coast

The buzzing brought renewed charges by Greek Cypriots that the Turkish air force was "showing the flag" in an attempt to incite the Turkish Cypriot community in Nicosia.

The invasion rumors roused acting British High Commissioner Denis Cleary and U.S. Ambassador Frazer Wilkins from their beds. They hurried to the presidential palace for an emergency conference with

32 FREEZE TO DEATH IN SNOW-CLOGGED IRAN

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Fourteen passengers and the driver froze to death in a bus stranded in massive snowdrifts near the Haraz Pass, reports reaching Tehran said today.

With 17 other persons frozen to death on northern Iran's snow-blocked highways, this brought the reported death toll for one day to 32.

Wolves attacked 50 travellers who had set out on foot after their buses and cars had ground to a standstill in drifts on the Haraz Road between Ab-Ali and Babol.

'TREATED HIM SAME AS OTHERS'

Paper Boy Given $10,000

CLEVELAND (AP)—A 13-year-old newsboy has been left an estimated $10,000 estate by a customer he said he "treated the same as I did all the others on my route."

The estate was bequeathed to Alfred Thurman, one of 18 children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watson of nearby Chagrin Falls, it was disclosed Friday.

His benefactor was William Stovall, 68 - year - old retired rubbish collector who died last June.

Stovall, an orphan who had known hard times, lost his wife in 1961 and had no relatives. Shortly after Mrs. Stovall's death James A. Woodward, his attorney, asked Stovall to think about "making out a will or your estate will go to the state."

About a month later Stovall came to Woodward and told him, "I'd like to do something nice for my paperboy," Woodward said. "He's such a good kid and knows the value of a buck."

The estate will be the boy's after the death of Stovall's elderly housekeeper. It consists of 24 lots, each 20 x 100 foot, in the park allotment, the 10-room brick house in which Stovall lived and a partially completed house. The park allotment is a low-income negro community.

"I don't know why he left it to me," said the seventh-grade honor pupil. "Whenever he was sick I would get water for him and help him a little around the house. But it wasn't anything I wouldn't do for my other customers."

Asked about his future plans, the teen-age boy with a 26-customer route answered matter-of-factly:

"I'll take the money and go to college. I'd like to be a doctor."

ROUND-A-BOUT

Post-script to the highly-successful Korean Kiddies' Fund drive:

As a little "thank-you" to Mrs. Elsie Johanneson, who handled Bank of Montreal collections, The Times sent to her a box of Rogers' chocolates. Subsequently, bank manager Bert Walters told us:

"The chocolates were passed around among the staff, and then somebody had the bright idea of raffling off the Indian basket in which they came. Tickets were sold at 25 cents apiece.

"Result: another $3.75 for the Kiddies' Fund."

(Which proves that bankers can have a sweet tooth and a soft heart, too.)

The annual scramble for year-end clearance sales and the post-Christmas stampede to exchange gifts began simultaneously at Victoria shopping centres and department stores Friday.

One woman we know spent an hour in a line-up to buy wrapping paper for next Christmas. Many others were stocking up with cards for next Yuletide.

We used to do this. But we've resolved next year to purchase cards from UNICEF, the United Nation's children's fund and thus do something worthwhile with some of the money expended on greeting cards.

Word comes from Vancouver that police raided a Legion bingo game attended by 1,300 people, late Friday. In our columns today are advertised four big bingo rallies. Let's hope our bingo operators have read the pertinent acts closely enough.

Surely nothing is so maddening to the large section of the public which enjoys a harmless night of bingo, as a raid — especially when you've almost made the payoff line.

The police must hate it too.

The people of Canada have maintained their title as the world's most talkative for the 11th consecutive year, according to the 1963 edition of The World's Telephones.

We averaged 613 calls per person compared with 551 in the 12-month period which ended in 1962. U.S. residents were second most gabby and Icelanders ranked third.

Canada has 33.7 phones per hundred people, third highest rate in the world. (The U.S. leads with 43.1, Sweden's second with 40.03.) Toronto has most per hundred in Canada, 53.5. Victoria ranks eighth in the nation with 44.8, or 68,408 phones.

Pity the lot of the cab driver in this hectic festive season, who not only makes some of the best tips of the year, but works the longest hours and drives some of the most demanding people.

If only they knew the provisions of the Victoria Taxicab Bylaw, laments one don't-use-my-name cabbie.

He recalls the woman who had two cab-loads of luggage and parcels to get home, expecting the driver to carry them all into the house for the price of the ride; another one with a back seat and trunk full of groceries to take around the corner from the supermarket and into her kitchen.

"The fare in that case was 75 cents, but I felt like telling her I could have charged $3.50," the driver said.

According to the bylaw, a cab driver needn't carry a bag more than 10 feet in any direction to or from his car — and is entitled to charge 50 cents for each piece he carries further.

Nation in Turmoil Over Loss of a Hair

SRINAGAR, Kashmir (Reuters) — Police opened fire when rioting crowds burned down two movie theatres and set fire to cars here today in a demonstration mourning the loss of a hair said to be a relic of the prophet Mohammed.

The crowd also burned down part of a police station and stores. One person was reported injured when police opened fire.

The crowds finally dispersed after the police move and an appeal for calm from Premier Khaja Shamsuddin.

The hair was reported missing Friday from a mosque at nearby Hazratbal, where it had been preserved for more than 600 years.

Police questioned a large number of people and carried out several raids. Roads leading out of Shinagar were guarded and the cease-fire line dividing Indian and Pakistani-held Kashmir was completely sealed.

As soon as the hair was reported missing tension mounted through this overwhelmingly Moslem city. Stores closed and people marched through the streets carrying black flags and calling on the government to launch a thorough search for the relic.

The single hair was kept attached to a silver pendulum in a glass tube one inch in diameter with a silver top. The tube was preserved in a silver coffin and locked in a cupboard.

. . . BERLIN WALL

refugee were driven through the wall at the Heinrich Heine crossover, just a few blocks from where he was shot in the back by Eastern guards as he scrambled up the concrete and barbed wire barricades in a desperate bid for freedom.

As the black hearse carrying his body left the free half of this Communist - surrounded city, West Berlin police on duty at the wall snapped to attention and saluted.

Hundreds of civilians, many of them West Germans waiting to cross into East Berlin to visit loved ones, removed their hats and silently watched as the hearse rolled through the wall.

Elderly women in the crowd wept.

Red border guards hoisted a candy striped metal barrier to let the hearse through.

A few East Berliners living near the wall peeked from behind the windows of their apartment dwellings to catch a glimpse of the hearse.

Opposition to the Christmas pass agrement and to any new talks was led by Ernst Lemmer, popular former minister of all-German (Soviet Zone) affairs in the West German cabinet and honorary head of the Christian Democratic Party here.

Lemmer today said it is the business of the West German government not the West Berlin city government to negotiate with East Germany. He said the city should confine itself to "technical" talks.

Mr. Harvey said that either the telephone or electric light company last year pruned the same trees.

"They took out the good branches — they just don't know."

He estimated that thousands of "Yankees" had taken pictures of the trees

Today there are seven sad stumps before the Harvey property beside the new West Saanich Road blacktop. Another neighbor said they made her feel like crying even though she knew the highways men were reluctant to cut the trees.

The western flowering dogwood or Pacific dogwood (Cornus nuttalli Audubon) is found in the lower Fraser Valley and on Vancouver Island and has been adopted as B.C.'s floral emblem. It is used as an identifying mark on B.C. government ferry stacks.

The flowers are cream colored and the trees are covered with them in blooming season. They grow usually to about 40 feet at maturity.

B.C.'s Dogwood, Rhododendron and Trillium Protection Act sets a fine of $25 for anyone injuring a dogwood. However, the act permits their removal by any person lawfully engaged in carrying out a public work.

. . . CYPRUS

ACCUSES THE TURKS

Cyprus Foreign Minister Spyros Kyprianou accused the Turks of waging a war of nerves against his country with the ships and plane movements. But he told reporters after a seven-hour cabinet meeting the Turkish ships had not violated Cyprus territorial waters.

Many Cypriots kept their radios on through the night waiting for a promised government announcement. But the announcement did not come.

The Turkish vessels were reported approaching Cyprus in two flotillas, one from the northwest and the other from the northeast. The reports said they came close to the Cyprus coast, then turned about and sailed away.

Despite the overflight, actual communal fighting between Greek and Turkish Cypriots has died down under the watchful eye of British patrols.

The Greek Cypriot community planned a public funeral today for 50 Greeks they claim were killed during the last week's inter-communal fighting. The ceremony could cause further incidents.

The Turks place their own dead at 60. Each side accuses the other of exaggerating losses.

The fighting between Cyprus' Greek majority and the Turkish minority broke out last Saturday, rekindling the old antagonism between the two communities.

Maj.-Gen. Peter Young, the commander of the 10,000-man British garrison on Cyprus, conferred Friday with the commanders of the smaller Greek and Turkish military units on setting up mixed patrols to keep the peace.

NO MIXED PATROLS

Young said Friday night there still were no tripartite patrols, though joint headquarters had been established.

He said there were language and other difficulties in arranging mixed patrols.

A British soldier was wounded in the shoulder while on patrol in the southeast port of Lanarca. His wound was not serious.

In Athens, Greek students demonstrated and revived an old demand for union of Greece and Cyprus, 80 per cent of whose population of about 500,000 is of Greek descent.

In Ankara, Turkish students demanded annexation of the island by Turkey, which ruled over Cyprus for three centuries until Britain gained control in 1878.

there will be other cabinet changes some time in January. He refused to give any details, however, except to say there would be "consequential" changes, "and perhaps one or two others."

None of the January changes, he added, would require by-elections to fill vacancies in the Commons, as the departure from government of Mr. Denis and Mr. Chevrier will.

The justice minister's appointment-to-come was not identified by the prime minister, but it is expected he will be named Canada's ambassador to France. Mr. Denis will be named to the Senate, Mr. Pearson said.

Mr. Pearson said he could not tell reporters whether the future cabinet changes would take place before he embarks on visits to Paris and Washington in the third and fourth weeks of January.

Both Mr. Chevrier and Mr. Denis have recently been under heavy opposition fire for their methods of administering their departments. Mr. Chevrier has been accused of mishandling the Washington extradition case and Mr. Denis has been subjected to widespread accusations of exercising patronage in the post office.

Mr. Chevrier also is rumored to have the added political disability of being in conflict with Quebec Liberal Premier Jean Lesage.

Mr. Chevrier has resigned as MP for the Montreal constituency of Laurier. Mr. Denis has represented the Montreal area riding of St. Denis.

Mr. Denis has sat continuously in the House since 1935.

Rain Floods Oases

ALGIERS (Reuters) — Torrential rain over two Sahara oases during the last 48 hours washed away the homes of between 9,000 and 10,000 people, the Algerian news agency reported today. Centre of the storm were the two oases of Touggourt and El Oued in eastern Algeria.

Reds Build Pipline

WARSAW (UPI) — Dedication ceremonies today in Plock, 60 miles west-northwest of Warsaw, marked the formal completion of one of the first major projects in Russia's drive for Communist economic co-operation—a giant pipeline to carry Soviet oil to East European nations.

RUSK LOOKS AHEAD

'A Probing For Peace'

(Times News Services

WASHINGTON — State Secretary Dean Rusk predicted today that 1964 will be "a period of probing for the possibilities of peace."

But Rusk expressed concern about the "vigorous and hostile promotion of . . . world revolution" by Communist China and said the world will have to continue dealing with some "very large and dangerous questions," Berlin, Germany, Cuba and South Viet Nam particularly.

Nevertheless, Rusk in an interview recorded for broadcast in Japan and released by the state department today, described his outlook as one of "modest optimism."

"My impression is that there is a certain soberness in the attitude of the principal governments of the world; that there is a recognition that crises such as the missile crisis in Cuba in October, 1962, must be avoided if possible," he said.

The major issue before the world and probably the only possible cause of a major war, Rusk said, is posed by the question "what kind of a world community shall come out of this period of history?"

"Most of us in the world," he said, "are committed to the kind of world described in the United Nations charter. There are some who say the world must be transformed by revolution into a Communist world.

"This is the underlying issue, and it is not going to be easy to make that issue disappear . . . we can have peace if everyone would decide today to leave other people alone and let them live in peace and work out their own future for themselves."

Rusk said he believes the Soviet people want peace and "the big question is how to move toward points of agreement among governments."

"There will be explorations through diplomatic channels. There will be discussions at the Geneva disarmament conference which opens again in the latter part of January. It will take some time and some patience to bring other matters (following up the limited nuclear test-ban treaty) to agreement. But we should not be discouraged too soon."

THEY'LL BE 'FRISKED'

Girls Must Be ALL Girl

PARIS (Reuters)—Beautiful girls competing here for the title of "Miss France" will be frisked for falsies.

An airline hostess, a female doctor and a beauty specialist will carry out the check before the girls parade on New Year's Eve for the title.

The tough new measures follow controversy involving the present Miss France, runner-up Michele Gangar and the "Miss France" committee.

Last summer Miss Gangar alleged that the women used padding in strategic places when she was elected "Miss France" at Bordeaux.

Meanwhile, Miss Fabris—now back at her teaching job—is angry with the "Miss France" committee. She claims it owes her 8,000 francs (about $1,600) for appearances she made and expenses she incurred as a beauty queen.

One newspaper, France-Soir, termed Friday's announcement by the committee "no more gallant than Muguette Fabris' claim was elegant."

Five Bills Face Boy Legislators In 33rd Session

By RON SUDLOW

Never before has mankind more urgently needed leaders who will carry Christian love and humility in their hearts, 72 young legislators were told Friday evening.

The speaker was Rev. W. S. Taylor, DD, lieutenant-governor for the 33rd session of the Older Boys' Parliament of B.C., which began the first of six sittings amid much desk-thumping and cries of "Make way, make way for His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor."

Parliament reconvened this afternoon at 2 p.m. and another sitting is scheduled for this evening at 8.

It is sponsored by the Inter-Church Parliamentary Committee, an interdenominational division of the Canadian Council of Churches.

"It is our sincere hope that the enlightenment here received will reflect itself in an increased interest and effort in Christ-centred boys work in the constituencies of this province," Mr. Taylor said.

"In this way, we can more than adequately justify the continuing existence of this parliament."

Included in the throne speech were five bills for the delegates to deal with:

Continuation of boys work in the fields of handicapped youth, camp scholarships and leadership education;

Institution of an interdenominational sports program for boys in the Lower Mainland to be promoted by the Older Boys' Parliament;

Take Youth Week Beyond Church

Parliament's endorsation of youth week celebrated in the churches and to take this beyond the church and into the community;

Assistance to the vocational church school and to find the parliament's role in connection with schools of this type;

And establishment of leadership scholarships to train young men in Christ-centred boys' work programs.

In his reply to the throne speech, Premier Rick Higgs, Vancouver, said the B.C. boys' parliament is one of the most highly thought of across Canada.

"But we must not let this thought be uppermost in our minds," he warned.

He said a youth organization concerned with the mental, physical and spiritual welfare of young boys "is one of the greatest things any youth organization can be called to do."

"May we equip ourselves so we can be vital instruments in the church of God."

Currie Grass, leader of the opposition, called members to fight against illiteracy, juvenile delinquency and crime.

Installed as Speaker of the House was Ed Nicholson, also of Vancouver.

The parliamentarians will be guests at a banquet tonight given by the Island District Council, United Church Men's Club, at Centennial United Church.

LBJ IN CLOSE TOUCH WITH IKE ON ISSUES

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson says he has been accepting advice from Dwight D. Eisenhower and is arranging to keep the former president up-to-date on late developments.

Johnson did not specify the items in his program that were suggested by the 73-year-old Republican leader. But he hinted that Eisenhower urged him to adopt the economy-in-government program that Johnson has claimed as his first new policy.

Dressed in rancher's togs, the president told an informal press conference Friday that he has ordered that Eisenhower be briefed on steps he has taken in response to the former president's suggestions. The briefing will be done by John A. McCone, director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Ceylon Socializes Oil Industry

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP)—The government has decided to take over all distribution outlets of three U.S. and British oil companies, an issue that prompted Washington to suspend U.S. aid to Ceylon.

A government announcement Friday said the properties will be incorporated in the state-owned Ceylon Petroleum Corp.

Involved are British Burmah-Shell and two U.S. companies, Esso and Caltex. The three firms own about 600 outlets.

The move was hinted in August, when Parliament gave the oil monopoly the sole right to retail petroleum sales. Ceylon established the oil monopoly in 1961 and later seized 178 service stations and 88 kerosene and other outlets of the three companies.

It was a failure to reach agreement on a figure of compensation for these seized properties that caused Washington to cut off all aid last February, amounting to $1,300,000 in grants and $3,000,000 loans.

New Deal or No Oil Frondizi Tells Nation

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Deposed president Arturo Frondizi said Friday night that Argentina will have to choose between having no oil or negotiating anew the petroleum contracts the present government cancelled Nov. 15.

Frondizi made his first public statement since his ouster on a radio-television hookup allowed him by the government. He was deposed in March of 1962 by the military.

The oil contracts, negotiated by Frondizi in 1958, were cancelled by President Arturo Illia on the grounds they were illegal, because they did not provide for ratification by the Argentine Congress.

Frondizi strongly defended his implementation of contracts that allowed 13 firms to explore and drill for oil.

"I wholly assume the responsibility for the steps that gave us self-sufficiency in oil supplies," Frondizi said. He said the contracts saved Argentina hundreds of millions in dollars.

As Red Chinese Prosper, They'll Cause More Strife

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP)—It is big. It is secretive. It is belligerent. And Communist China will continue to be news in 1964, as it has for 14 years.

The news will be of concern to the West, the rest of Asia, and Russia.

China has made progress in pulling itself out of economic hard times. This is good news for the millions who faced starvation during the years of the 1958-60 "great leap forward."

But a newly confident Chinese Communist leadership may well be less amenable to persuasion, more liable to stridency in the year ahead.

The outlook is for an intensification of the quarrel with the Russians over ways and means of defeating the West; greater encouragement to pro-Communists in Laos, Vietminh subversives in South Viet Nam, and left-leaning neutralists in Cambodia.

MAY USE FORCE

It may mean a new Chinese effort to demonstrate that a club, and not words, is the way to deal with India on the border issue.

The Chinese are growing economically independent of Russia, on which they depended heavily in the years after 1949. They are likely to speak in harsher tones as they pursue their ideological quarrel with Premier Khrushchev.

And, because they link Khrushchev and his policies with the United States, President Johnson will be the object of tirades.

Curiously enough, the propaganda volleys against the rest of the "imperialist" world may diminish. Having lost Soviet trade, Peking has begun to lean heavily on the non-Communist nations of Europe, on Canada and Australia. For their purposes, it will suffice for the United States to be the whipping boy for "imperialism."

Better times alone might not prompt China to greater belligerency. But the consciousness that it is losing appeal in the less developed nations of Asia, Africa and South America may do so.

In the recent past, China wooed these nations with the example of China's own success at revolution. But many countries have recently turned toward Tokyo. Japan began from scratch economically after the Second World War. Today it ranks fourth industrially in the world.

PERMISSIVE SOCIETY

Its society—by contrast with China's regimented one—is permissive. Its people, living in a capitalist system, have extraordinary freedom of speech, press movement and idosyncrasy.

Even Russia, which China holds up as the truant of the Communist world, extends greater freedom to its citizens and has made industrial strides.

That the comparison hurts is no secret in secretive China. The Chinese regime is doing all it can to restore its damaged image. It is engaged in such an effort in Africa where Premier Chou En-lai, regarded as China's most persuasive salesman, is on an extended tour.

LAKONIA PASSENGERS BITTER

'I Would Have Shot the Lot'

LONDON (Reuters)—A survivor of the Lakonia disaster today accused some of the crew of the Greek cruise ship of panic and looting and said "if I had a gun I would have shot the lot of them."

He was W. Scott, of Stepney, East London, who arrived at London Airport by plane from Lisbon, Portugal with 57 other survivors including his wife, Kitty.

Scott said: "It was awful. If it had not been for the British people on board I would not be here telling this story now.

"Some of the crew got into the boats before the passengers. I had to plead with them to let my wife get on to one of the boats."

The 57 survivors were immediately taken to voluntary service centres to the airport and given sets of makeshift clothing.

They were among 886 known survivors of the fire which swept the 20,000-ton sunshine cruise liner Lakonia last Sunday night in the northeast Atlantic, 180 miles from Madeira.

Another passenger, Arthur Edson of Mill Hill, an outer London suburb, claimed to have been the first passenger to see the smoke.

SAW SMOKE

He said he was down below on "M" deck, having gone to see the purser about a wallet one of his two sons had lost, and saw smoke coming from under the doorway of the hairdressing shop.

Edson, who was crying as he told his story, said the crew later "were running around screaming like madmen."

He added: "When we went to our fire station and made to get in the boats, the crew got in first."

Edson claimed when the Argentine vessel Salta came to the rescue the waves were breaking eight feet high.

"A sailor from the Lakonia shouted 'bambinos first' but after the children had gone up the rope ladder the crew dashed after them in a mad panic before the women had a chance."

A woman survivor, Mrs. A. Walker, of Leigh-on-Sea, Essex, said as she arrived weeping: "The crew helped no one but themselves."

'Copters Nab 77

BANGKOK, Thailand (Reuters)—Thai police using helicopters arrested 77 men in lightning raids against arms makers and smugglers in two northeast provinces Thursday. The raids were made in Udorn and Panom province bordering Laos.

SABOTAGE SUGGESTED

PARIS (UPI)—A 25-year-old steward from the ill-fated Greek cruise liner Lakonia said Friday night he suspects the fire that wrecked the 20,314-ton ship was set by saboteurs.

George Democrito said the Lakonia's chief engineer told him the fire broke out simultaneously in the ship's barber shop, engine room and laundry.

"That makes us think it was an act of sabotage," he said.

Wine Cache Found

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police believe they have cracked a major bootlegging operation with the discovery of 330 gallons of wine in a city home. The wine was stored in barrels in a room concealed behind a hinged tool rack.

More Changes to Come

THE RESIGNATION OF MR. Chevrier, the minister of justice, and Postmaster-General Denis yesterday were not unexpected. There had been talk of the possibility for some time. But the rumors failed to name successors with any confidence and Mr. Pearson still has it in his power to produce some surprises. He indicates that there will be one or two shifts within the cabinet in addition to the new appointees.

Mr. Chevrier had occupied a place of importance in the House, sitting next to the Prime Minister. With his departure Mr. Pearson must find another lieutenant from Quebec, for the traditional arrangement is to have a French-speaking Canadian groomed to succeed an English-speaking leader and vice-versa. The Laurier-King-St. Laurent-Pearson succession in the Liberal Party was no matter of sentiment but of hard politics. One of Mr. Diefenbaker's political weaknesses was that he had no outstanding potential successor from Quebec, and at the moment it is one of Mr. Pearson's too.

Whether or not Mr. Chevrier had plans in this direction when the session began, his two unfortunate fumbles within recent weeks did him serious harm. There was strong criticism of his delay in arresting Mr. Hal Banks when an order had been issued; and the muddle attending the extradition of Mr. John Wasylenchuk to Seattle a few days ago put the Minister of Justice in a bad light. Mr. Denis has similarly been under fire for his methods of staffing his department.

Mr. Pearson has given no hint of the nature of his projected cabinet changes. There will be no lack of advice, of course. Much speculation has inevitably revolved around the controversial figure of Finance Minister Gordon, whose troubles with his budget flared both within the House and outside it. But under the onslaught of attacks Mr. Pearson would not relieve his friend of his post, and the situation will apparently remain unchanged at least until the next budget.

Has France Found 'Monsieur X'?

SOON AFTER GENERAL Charles de Gaulle returned to leadership in France a disaffected minority began to wonder how he could be displaced. The number grew as the general took to himself sweeping powers and made no secret of his contempt for those factions which had Balkanized French politics in prewar and postwar years.

But if the ranks of the opposition have been swelling, and still are, Frenchmen have been slow to enter the ring against the president. At this point in French history, however, there is a growing movement to find a candidate who could present a respectable challenge. This has taken the form of a political quest in France for "Monsieur X"—the man behind whom the dissatisfied could rally in sufficient strength to provide an alternative to Gaullism.

The movement is taking on stature from carefully designed campaigning to emphasize the need in France for a return to democratic government. The appeal is basic to the French concept of equality and directed at the dictatorship his political enemies argue that President de Gaulle his established.

Now, it appears, "Monsieur X" has emerged—Gaston Defferre, the Mayor of Marseilles, a man of talents appreciated by de Gaulle opponents of various political faiths.

Before any such candidate could hope for success he would have to master the rivalries imbedded in French politics and bring to a united front a sense of permanence long lacking.

A person of this nature would have some automatic appeal beyond that of hostility to the personalized de Gaulle rule. One of his strengths would flow from French experience indicating that personalized rule has been, historically, unable to guarantee a stable succession. When the strong man goes, the regime tends to fall apart.

There have been, of course, obvious dangers to premature identification of "Monsieur X." Brought forward too soon, he could be the victim of the very effective political talents of President de Gaulle, who might destroy him before he had a chance to establish himself as a forceful challenger.

M. Gaston Deferre seems to have the qualities essential in a man who hopes to run against President de Gaulle, and to run with some success. He has an attitude that looks forward, not backward in the way of de Gaulle retrospection. He looks outward to an Atlantic community, not inward to the special interests of some, but not all French groups.

By announcing his decision to stand against the president, the mayor of Marseilles shows how the yeast is working in French politics—and working, presumably, toward more democratic government for the nation.

And Still No Peace

THE CURRENT VIOLENCE ON the island of Cyprus proves that independence of a population is not enough to achieve peace. There must also be political maturity and a willingness to co-operate.

The outburst of firing between Turkish-Cypriot and Greek-Cypriot patrols which brought on the present trouble was not, of course, a basic cause. There has been recurrent ill-feeling between the two racial elements of the Cypriot population ever since the island won independence from Britain. Saturday's skirmish was only a spark to the existing tinder.

Apart from the tragedy to Cypriots, the violence with its charges and countercharges threatens to renew the long-standing trouble between Turkey and Greece, both of which in times past have claimed the island for geographic or ethnic reasons. And other interests, notably Communist, are already seizing on the latest outbreak to accuse Britain of trying to regain former power over the island. The fact is that Cyprus is fortunate to have British forces available on the island to conduct patrols and prevent further bloodshed. The forces are part of the defence base retained by Britain by agreement with the Cypriot government.

The Cypriots have a long way to go before they achieve unity—and without unity their independence will prove to be a flimsy and undependable foundation on which to build a future.

O God! O Ottawa!

THERE MAY BE ROOM FOR intelligent criticism of the Canadian World's Fair symbol devised by artist Julien Hebert — but it wasn't found in the Canadian Parliament.

Faced last week with something new, something different, something not immediately apparent to a six-year-old child, the constitutional representatives of the Canadian people reacted like a rabble of backwoods hicks. Mr. Diefenbaker, to his shame, led the parade of horrified exclamations, hillbilly humor and demands to have a maple leaf plastered on the design.

There was a word or two in support of the symbol— a circular design involving figures to represent man and his worldwide friendships. Works Minister Deschatelets was articulate and sensible. But for the rest, as far as The Canadian Press report goes, Commons comment was on the intellectual level that might be expected from the solons gathered around an Ozarks crossroads pump.

Surely we can do better than this. Surely the Parliament of Canada should be capable of producing 10 minutes of intelligent debate on an artistic topic, for or against. One gets the awful feeling that these fellows, faced with a new book they did not understand, would vote to ban it.

A Nickel, But Not Necessarily

DURING WORLD WAR II, THE authorities tell us, the United States reduced somewhat the 35 per cent nickel content in the nation's five-cent piece, replacing the strategically-important metal with the less strategic silver.

More recently, the value of silver has risen. In consequence the silver-loaded nickel may be worth seven cents. Depending on the year in which it was minted, the nickel could be worth 40 per cent more than a nickel's worth, in a manner of speaking. Which might be highly important in purchasing power if you could find something you could still buy for a nickel.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

ANOTHER year has gone into the past. During that time I have made many rambles and hikes in the forest, by the side of streams and lakes and along the margin of the sea.

There has always been something new to see and to marvel at; there is always a change in nature.

There are never two days alike.

I have seen the countryside changing, not only as man encroaches, as he strives to get away from the crowded areas or perhaps from himself, but through the constant change in the life of the plants, insects and mammals.

After the so-called drab grey of the winter—and there is beauty there if we look—comes the changing of the winter bud; I have watched how the buds will burst forth in the spring in answer to the age-old call of nature.

The warm summer sun brings out the blossoms that in turn bring the many insects to feed and to propagate the plants.

I have watched the grasses store the life-giving energy from the sun, so that it may be passed on to animal life during the winter.

I have watched the fruit and seed develop in order that each species may survive and carry out its allotted task in this great world of nature.

I have enjoyed the warm spring sun and the hot summer days; yes and the beat of the rain on my face during the winter, knowing full well each of these things is a part of the living world and without them no living green thing would exist—and so all other things would cease to live.

'Another Glass to Santa, Patron Saint of Politics'

IT is always difficult for the voters of our rustic constituency to learn the true inwardness of national affairs but fortunately we have an agent in high places. Mrs. Alfred Noggins, the veteran secretary of the local Progressive Conservative Association, has just returned here from a flying visit to Ottawa with the latest authentic information.

Hutchison

"Confidentially," said Mrs. Noggins over a Yuletide glass of her innocent parsnip wine, "we've got the Pearson gover'mint practically licked already but first we must rally round our beloved leader, dear old Dief.

"So we've all agreed to give 'im the chance to lose 'is last election and make way for a younger man, if we can find a reckless volunteer. We'll prove our confidence in Dief by confirmin' 'is leadership and unloadin' him gently at the polls but it takes a little time.

"Like a loyal Tory, 'Dief' has promised to make the supreme sacrifice and 'ang on till the public finally rejects 'im. Loyalty can go no further.

"But between ourselves, I sometimes kind of suspect Dief might axually like to win again, not that 'e wants office, you understand, but only to save the country from Walter Gordon and the menace of a balanced budget. The risk is small but, like Dief says, we can't take any chances.

"So Dief wants a quick election before the party gets around to superannuatin' 'im and Mike wants it, too, before we can choose a winnin' leader. Mike thinks Dief's the easiest man to defeat. Dief thinks the same of Mike. They're united in brotherly understandin' and between the two of 'em they ort to be able to drag us, screamin', to the ballot boxes pretty soon.

"Well, I must say that in 'is old age Dief's statesmanship is bloomin' like a Christmas rose. With one foot, says Dief, I'll crush the Yankee monster into the ground but I'll keep the other in reserve to kick the Pearson gover'mint in the pants fer its poisonous anti-Americanism.

"I've the deepest sympathy with the downtrod French Canajians, says Dief, so long as they vote fer me, but seein' as they won't, they're expensable, and I pledge you all my energies to protect Confederation from the tyranny of Quebec and win a majority in the other provinces fer the precious cause of national unity.

"And pay no attention, says Dief, to young Peter Newman's book about me. I 'aven't read it and every word is false.

"Yes, sir, you can trust Dief but not the gover'mint that's sellin' us out to the States. Don't be deceived when Gordon plunges the knife into the American investors to cover 'is real purpose, like my Uncle 'Erbert uster beat up 'is Spanish dancin' lady now and then to prove 'is affection.

"Oh yes, says Gordon, we welcome the greedy foreigners' money with enthusiasm and discriminatory taxes, and therefore you can count on us to fight this 'ideous evil by every means in our power so long as they let us borrow all we want in Wall Street, which is only our right as bosom friends.

"Nacherally, the Americans feel deeply moved by this appeal to their better instinks and immejiately reward Gordon by crackin' down on our lumber to show their appreciation.

"Like Gordon says, the sacred friendship of North America must never be tainted by sordid commerce. It must be preserved from the sacrilege of the profit motive. Gordon and those far-seein' statesmen in Congress will preserve it together.

"But you've only seen the beginnin' so far. We can do better yet. Both sides 'ave plenty more neighborly rocks to 'url across the border and break the windows to let in the good fresh air of enlightened co-operation.

"So everythink is fine and dandy in this season of good will. Dief 'as rooted out the rebellion in our party till after election day, if it comes soon enough. Mike is gettin' ready to raise taxes fer the encouragement of enterprise and promote the failures of 'is cabinet to 'igher spheres of public service. Premier Bennett 'as fixed it so Canajian consumers will 'ave the patriotic satisfaction of buyin' expensive Peace River power while somebody else gets it cheap from the Columbia.

"The war with the Americans and Quebec 'as bin postponed till the winter snow melts. And the spirit of Christmas broods over this blessed continent. Drink another glass to Mike and Dief and Gordon and Bennett and their silent partner as always pays the bills."

"What partner?" I ventured to ask.

"Why, Santa Claus, of course, the patron saint of politics," said Mrs. Noggins.

'PEACE ON EARTH'

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Old Problems Withering on the Vine

IT is not, I hope, frivolous or disrespectful to say that the most telling act of last week's conference of NATO countries was to adjourn in good spirits after two, rather than the customary three, days.

Lippmann

There are, as we know, supposed to be momentous issues of strategy which divide the alliance. There are unanswered questions of when and how to use nuclear weapons and whether there should be a really significant buildup by the Europeans of their conventional forces.

None of these questions has really been answered. Yet the meetings seemed to go off with no feeling that anyone had been defeated or that the security of the alliance was threatened.

This could not have happened, did not the Europeans and the North Americans feel, without avowing it, that they have outlived the situation to which the supposed issues and questions were addressed. Is the Soviet Union preparing to conquer Western Europe? In the late forties before NATO was founded, that was a real question.

Will the Soviet Union seize West Berlin while the United States stands supinely aside? Only a few Europeans think so. Perhaps one should say only a few Europeans profess to think so. It would require some tall thinking to suppose that the United States would abandon its own men, women and children in West Berlin and Western Germany.

Is there a genuine need of a European nuclear force which can detonate a thermonuclear war without American consent? Examined closely, the notion is absurd in that tricks like that cannot be played with matters of life and death; an independent detonator of thermonuclear war would first of all incinerate the detonator.

Is there, then, a really urgent need for a sacrificial program of European armament? Not unless one supposes that the Soviet Union would contemplate launching a serious invasion of Western Europe in the illusion that the United States would not use nuclear weapons to defend its own troops.

These unresolved issues and questions are conundrums which are ceasing to interest the mass of the people of Europe and are no longer a serious concern of their statesmen. These questions and issues cannot be settled by a formula of agreement. For that would mean too much loss of face. But nobody is sufficiently interested in them to insist that the discussion about them must continue.

All this has happened because there have been historic changes in world affairs. They can, I believe, now be identified. Though we are not in sight of the end of the cold war, there is an impressive pause in the race of armaments. And in the two worlds of the postwar period—the Communist and the non-Communist — the abnormal unity of each great coalition is giving way to a pluralism of many powers.

The process is known among Communists as "polycentrism." The current issue of Foreign Affairs contains a brilliant description of polycentrism, which is, I believe, must reading for serious students. It is by Ambassador George Kennan.

I do not think it is too early to say that in the perspective of history men will look upon John F. Kennedy as the man who seized the opportunity to bring the race of armaments to a halt.

I believe it will be said that he used American wealth to build up military power that could not be defied, that he succeeded in making this power a quite credible deterrent to war and that he had the magnanimity to convince the Soviet Union that it could live comfortably within the existing balance of power.

The crowning act of this policy was the signing of the test ban treaty. Since then, the race of armaments has ceased to be the dramatic affair which in the race for absolute weapons it was threatening to become. It is no accident that the first NATO meeting since the consequences of the treaty became visible should have showed so much good-natured loss of interest in the old stubborn conundrums of the military bureaucrats.

The wide-reaching and closely-related development — "polycentrism" in both coalitions — is reducing decidedly the tensions which existed when there were two and only two hostile centres of power in the world. Now, be it in Warsaw, Budapest, Bucharest, Prague or in Hanoi, Saigon and Bangkok, there is no longer the simple confrontation of two superpowers. All kinds of new political combinations and permutations are becoming possible.

The small breaches made during the Christmas holidays in the Berlin Wall are a small symptom of what is happening in all sorts of ways between the two halves of Europe. The partition of Germany, which is the partition of Europe, will in time be healed by boring holes through the iron curtain which allow an increasing intercourse in human relations.

And so I say we must be careful not to hope too much. And then I say we must be careful not to be afraid to hope at all. For, while there is not nearly enough good will among men, there is a better prospect of peace than we once dared to hope for.

Leaders of the Great Shift Are Slipping Away

THERE is something about the practice of the arts that seems to make for either a very long life, or a tragically short one, to judge from the vital statistics of the great artists. Michelangelo and Titian, Monet and Goya, Hals and Bonnard, Picasso, Matisse and Braque are a few of the great octogenarians that spring to mind at once, though their longevity is balanced by the short spans attained by Masaccio and Seurat, Bonington and Vermeer, Marc and Gaudier and Bazille.

Emery

But, as the medieval painters and their early Renaissance followers have not omitted to point out, Death gets us all in the end: rich and poor, homely or beautiful, saints and sinners, long, short and tall, all must go in the natural course of things. (Full marks to the percipient ones who guess from these remarks that I have been working over the Flemish painters recently, and have Bruegel's "Triumph of Death" in the Prado very much in mind.)

The painters responsible for the great shift in direction that occurred in the visual arts about sixty years ago have, as is only natural, been quietly dropping out of the ranks in these last few years, until now there is only one great figure left. Since the "School of Paris," which revolved around the three great pillars of Matisse, Picasso and Braque, has not been the central focus of modern painting for twenty years, the loss of Braque last August is not likely to be felt by the majority of brisk young painters today.

I shall be surprised, however, if the same will hold true twenty years from now, and if I am right it will be for reasons that are not difficult to foresee.

Braque and Picasso, working together at the beginning, produced a new language in which to express their experience of the world around them: they broke down landscapes, people, familiar objects of the household and studio into their simplest component planes, and reassembled them to make the kinds of picture to which the generic name of "Cubist" is applied.

Like most revolutionaries they began in the most uncompromising way, and the works of the last seven or eight years before World War I are of an austerity that argues a rigorously logical application of their theories.

But they reckoned without one rather important factor. Nature, with a capital "N," whether expelled with a pitchfork or a palette knife, has a way of returning, it has been observed. And the subdepartment which we refer to (with unusual modesty) in lower case as "human nature," is especially hard to extirpate, root and branch.

So it was that first texture and then color came back into the painting of Braque and Picasso: from the work of Matisse it was only for a brief interval absent. And for all three their art was based, in the end as in the beginning, on their response to the visual world, expressed in recognizable terms which the ordinarily perceptive observer could match with his own experience, even though that experience was necessarily on a less intense level than that achieved by sensibilities of the order possessed by the great masters.

For Braque especially there was no lasting satisfaction to be derived from an art that did not attempt to give full expression to his lifelong love affair with common objects. "Georges Braque," wrote Jean Cocteau, "reminds me of the artisans of Greece, where Antiquity lived out its youth. The most ordinary common object attained nobility in their hands." (I read these words as I sat over my breakfast at a cafe table on the corner where the Rue Troyon meets the Avenue Macmahon. The cafe is celebrated as having been the one which took Edith Piaf in from the street outside where she was singing. And now Cocteau is dead, who so effortlessly managed to fulfil Diaghilev's command: "Surprise me." And Piaf's unforgettable, tinny voice will not be heard again.)

I cannot doubt that paintings will swing back to a more totally communicative kind of expression after its dalliance with the non-figurative. Now that the revolutionary painting of the 1940s has become the language of the Establishment, the more creative rebels of the art schools will seek a new way to show their contempt for the work of the "old men." Indeed "pop" art is one sign of this movement, already discernible.

In the last six months I have seen great retrospective shows devoted to the art of Kandinsky and Malevitch, and have studied the majority of the works produced by Mondrian. In the United States, in England, in France and Germany and Holland and Denmark, I have had the opportunity to see what is "cooking" in contemporary art, and I can say with all sincerity that the works which linger longest in my memory are the great still lifes of Braque, the glowing interiors of of Bonnard.

"C'est par realites sensibles que notre faible esprit s'eleve jusqu' au vrai," wrote Abbot Suger some centuries ago. Very French, very true, and the key to an understanding of the art of Braque.

Gerald Waring ...REPORTING

OTTAWA — The most serious domestic problem of the Pearson government is no longer unemployment, but the push-push-push of French-Canadian nationalists and the reactive opposition of English-Canadians.

A year ago, and in spite of the puerile militancy of the FLQ, there was a great curiosity over Quebec's complaints among Canadians in other provinces. Their interest was surprisingly open-minded. Indeed, many English-Canadians were finding themselves in growing sympathy with what they considered the not unreasonable aspirations of the people of Quebec.

This is much less so today. Carried away by their sense of grievance, French-Canadians pushed so hard on a partly open door that it has rebounded in their faces. Their sense of proportion, of propriety and of timing has been appalling. They failed to recognize, much less exploit, the nascent sympathy of English-Canada.

Instead, they are alienating sympathizers in the other nine provinces. Tory leader John Diefenbaker has shown, by his insinuation that the Pearson government is selling out Canada to Quebec, that he appreciates the political opportunity presented by the changed attitude outside Quebec.

When Liberal MPs met in their last regular caucus before Parliament prorogued, a heated wrangle developed over the CBC's decision to turn its second station in Toronto, CJBC, into a French-language station hooked into the CBC's French radio network.

The 16 Liberal MPs elected in the Toronto area April 8 are opposed to the plan. They know it is highly unpopular with a great many of their constituents, and they are alarmed at the possible political consequences. They want to be re-elected next election.

The development of anti-French reaction also has become evident in Ottawa, where Mayor Charlotte Whitton is receiving strong support for her rejection of proposals to make the city's administration bilingual.

In the Commons it's the Creditistes who push-push-push: they want to pre-empt the role of champions of French-Canadian nationalism from both the separatists and the Quebec Liberals.

In Quebec City the push-push comes mainly from Resources Minister Rene Levesque and Youth Minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie. Premier Jean Lesage is on the point of nervous exhaustion from what he has described as trying to juggle two hot coals with his bare hands. He has to lead the revolution or be thrown aside—and his leadership is looking more and more irrational to the rest of Canada.

"Lesage is living in a dream world," commented one source who watched him in action during private meetings of the recent federal-provincial conference. "He doesn't know what the rest of Canada is thinking."

Seemingly he doesn't care. He could scarcely have conceived a move to anger other Canadians more than his effort to blackmail the federal government into doubling the cost of the Canada Pension Plan to those outside Quebec, after he had rejected the plan for Quebec.

The federal plan will require contributions of 2 per cent of income. Lesage's independent provincial plan contemplates contributions of 4 per cent. So he demanded that Ottawa make its contribution rate conform to his.

The federal government has rejected the ultimatum. Whether this will sober Lesage remains to be seen—but there is no reason to build hopes high.

NATURE ON THE ISLAND By CLIFF CARL

Don't Tempt 'Safe' Cougars

Dear Dr. Carl:

In a recent book, Farley Mowat said that there was no known record of a wolf having attacked a man in Canada's north. Is this true? What is the record of Vancouver Island cougar in this respect? I recall that a zoo-lion attacked and killed a little girl at Nanaimo. Are lions more inclined to attack humans than cougars?

D. H.

Dear D. H.:

The experiences of Farley Mowat as recounted in his latest book Never Cry Wolf support the conclusions of several other biologists before him. For example, both Adolph Murie and Lois Crisler, who each spent lengthy periods of time in close contact with wolves in the wild state, concluded independently that wolves are not a menace to man, but "wolf haters" are!

Carl

As Mrs. Crisler says (in Arctic Wild), "North American wolves have been tarred with the reputation of their European and Arctic cousins, though American wolves have never normally been killers of man—perhaps because this continent was so rich in varied food supplies. There are authentic cases of unprovoked attack by wolves on man in America, but they are few."

One such proven case of "unprovoked attack" occurred in the Olympic Mountains where two wolves pursued and treed a ranger travelling down a steep slope.

The male subsequently proved to have a broken jaw, perhaps kicked by an elk, and it is assumed his helplessness may have inclined him toward weakly prey. In any case the wolves had not actually closed in; they were wary.

She then cites a few of the typical stories of wolf kills but in each case the "attack" was fancied or deliberately misconstructed in order to give the wolf a bad name.

This is not to say that under all conditions the wolf is entirely harmless to man. It would be unwise to trust him completely, especially if the human concerned were wounded or in difficulties. Under normal circumstances, however, all the evidence indicates that the North American wolf is not a man killer.

The same is apparently true of the cougar. There have been a number of instances of cougars attacking humans on Vancouver Island but in almost all cases there have been unusual circumstances.

In some incidents a dog has proven to be the object of attention and a human being had only become involved by trying to ward off the attacking cat. On several other occasions the cougar has turned out to be in poor condition and apparently driven to attack humans by partial starvation.

In only one instance on record was the cougar in good physical condition and no dog involved. Even in this case the cougar may have been "off balance" mentally after all there are "queers" among animals as well as among humans!

Lions are possibly more likely to attack a human than are wolves and cougars. But again this would depend upon circumstances.

All predators are controlled largely by a behavior pattern which may be triggered by sight or scent of a creature in distress. In the tragic case of the zoo lion which killed a little girl at Nanaimo, I suspect the youngster turned to flee, a perfectly natural reaction, and this was sufficient to arouse the normal hunting instinct of the animal.

Even domestication does not eliminate the urge to hunt and kill. Witness the pampered Persian cat. After generations of dependence upon humans for food and shelter such a pet will still stalk and pounce upon a bird or mouse, particularly if it is right under its nose.

To sum up, neither the wolf nor the cougar is dangerous to man under normal circumstances. But since they are both predators it would be unwise to tempt either one by doing anything which might precipitate an attack.

Send natural history questions to Dr. Cliff Carl, care of this newspaper.

MARE ISLAND, Calif. (AP)—The nuclear-powered Polaris-firing submarine Woodrow Wilson—capable of remaining submerged for more than two months — joined the United States fleet Friday. The navy said there is scarcely a point on the earth's surface beyond the reach of her 16 missiles. The 7,500-ton warship is the first to bear the name of the 28th president.

GREAT IDEAS FROM THE GREAT BOOKS

'Prejudice Worst of Evils, Nothing More Base, Cruel'

By MORTIMER J. ADLER

Dear Dr. Adler:

Bigotry and prejudice have plagued mankind for centuries. The degree of prejudice has fluctuated in the history of civilization, but it seems never to disappear entirely. How have the authors of the great books viewed this problem, and what were their solutions to it?

Michael Langenbach
Kenosha, Wisconsin

Dear Mr. Langenbach:

Prejudice has varied in its objects at different times. In former ages it was directed mainly against people of other cultures or religions. Aristotle, for instance, viewed the non-Greek peoples as "barbarians"; he regarded them as inferior to the Greeks in culture and political institutions. Similarly, the Jews were hated and persecuted because of their religious beliefs until fairly recent times when their ethnic origin became the object of prejudice.

In our day, race has replaced religion and culture as the main object of prejudce and discrimination. Race certainly affords an obvious target of attack, because skin-color and other racial traits are usually written on a man's face and are difficult to conceal. Appeals to a sense of racial identity and domination have been astonishingly, if lamentably, successful in our "advanced" modern civilization.

Many Causes

The causes of prejudice are multiple and deep. In the first place, prejudice satisfies certain psychological needs. Many persons like to have other people to whom they can feel superior and whom they can push around.

They like to have someone on whom they can vent their aggressions with impunity, and thereby alleviate their own frustrations. The Jews for centuries provided Europeans with such an outlet, as was pointed out by Sigmund Freud, to whom we owe the psychological analysis of prejudice.

Social and economic factors also play a role in prejudice. Attitudes of superiority toward Negroes rest on the concrete historical fact that Negroes have been an outcast or pariah class since the earliest days of the United States. Originally chattel slaves, since their legal emancipation they have lived in a state of economic peonage, at the bottom of the social ladder.

Discriminatory employment policies restricting the better jobs mainly to whites, and making Negroes the first to be laid off, are a very tangible economic factor on the side of racial prejudice. Such policies profit those who get or keep jobs which Negroes are not permitted to hold.

Lily-White

Residence in the better neighborhoods or suburbs is another mark of status and "arrival" in U.S. society, and the worth of this mark to its beneficiaries lies, among other things, in its "lily-white" exclusiveness.

Of this type of prejudice, the great American historian George Bancroft once sagely remarked, "The prejudices of ignorance are more easily removed than the prejudices of interest; the first are all blindly adopted, the second wilfully preferred." Added to the selfish appeal of special economic and social privileges to those who benefit from them, is the habitual ingraining of discrimination until it becomes revered custom and tradition.

Prejudice becomes a "way of life," which we drink in with our mothers' milk and take as natural and right. Hence, we regard proposals to modify or abolish discrimination as subversive and indecent.

However, as Freud has taught us, things are not so certain and secure deep down within us. We fear the people whom we are holding down, lest they retaliate against us; and we tend to hate and loathe those whom we fear. Then, too, we may—in spite of the influence of long-time custom—be disturbed by guilt feelings; becoming dimly aware of the discrepancy between our proclaimed religious and political ideals and our actual practices.

Psychic Circle

This at first may make us only angrier, self-defensive, and more set in our prejudices. But eventually we must emerge from the vicious psychic circle of fear, anxiety, and guilt.

"There is no more evil thing in this present world than race prejudice, none at all," said the late H. G. Wells. "I write deliberately—it is the worst single thing in life now. It justifies and holds together more baseness, cruelty, and abomination than any other sort of error in the world."

Let us, therefore, resolve to remove this abomination from our midst, and determine that the promise of democratic life shall be fulfilled for all of us.

You can win a 54-volume set of the Great Books of the Western World by writing a letter, not to exceed 150 words, incorporating a question of general interest for Dr. Adler to consider for inclusion in this column. Each week he will select as first prize winners the writers of the best letters. He will use ONE of these letters as a basis for a future column and will answer it in terms of the intellectual heritage of the Great Books—443 works by 74 authors, spannng 30 centuries of thought. Address the letters to Dr. Mortimer J. Adler, in care of this newspaper.

Navy Sees the World, Logs a Million Miles

OTTAWA (CP)—From tropical Hawaii to the chill Norwegian fjords, the Royal Canadian navy logged more than 1,000,000 miles in 1963.

Naval headquarters says in a year-end review that fleet units took part in three major NATO exercises, half a dozen with the U.S. Navy, one with the Royal Navy off Londonderry, Northern Ireland, and three full-scale national exercises.

These operations, as well as local exercises and training cruises, tested the readiness of ships and planes and polished fleet tactics, particularly in anti-submarine warfare.

A new type of joint national exercise took place in December when ships of the Atlantic Command and Canadian Army units joined in Operation Boat Cloak in the Canso Strait region of Nova Scotia.

There were a number of notable additions to the fleet.

Three Mackenzie class destroyers were commissioned—the Saskatchewan in February, Yukon in May and Qu'Appelle in September.

On Sept. 28, HMCS Provider, 22,000-ton supply ship and biggest vessel ever built in Canada for the Navy, was commissioned.

HMCS Assiniboine, first of seven St. Laurent class destroyers to be fitted with variable depth sonar and a helicopter flight deck and hangar, was recommissioned in June. The St. Laurent herself emerged with the new look in October.

BOOST JURORS' PAY LIBERTIES GROUP ASKS

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Civil Liberties Association Friday asked Attorney-General Bonner to increase jurors' pay and to take action to stop what it called unjust arrests of out-of-town motorists by Vancouver police.

The association asked Mr. Bonner to increase jurors' pay to $15 from the present $8 per day because low jury pay might tend to influence jurors "to speed unduly the course of justice . . . so they may return to their normal standard of living."

"If such is the case, parties to the trial, especially defendants in criminal trials, may not receive a fair and unhurried hearing and may thereby be prejudiced."

STRABISMUS

Strabismus or squint is the condition where the eyes are turned from their normal position either inwards or outwards. When the eyes are not in their normal position two greatly different images are presented . . . one from each eye. This is very confusing to the brain and the person will see double for a time and then one image will be ignored, and only one eye is used in seeing.

The result is a lowering of vision in the unused eye. This condition is particularly serious in childhood because if one eye goes unused for even a short time, then there will be little or no vision in that eye later in life.

Squint can very often be overcome with glasses or visual training or both but sometimes an operation is required to straighten the eye.

It is advisable to have your eyes examined at least every two years.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Post Yule Boom Hit On Friday

By IAN MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The week started with a sputter and ended with a bang when prices on Canadian stock markets suddenly took off Friday in what could turn into a post-Christmas boom.

Markets closed at noon Tuesday and remained closed for Christmas Day with the predictable effect on dollar and share volume for the week.

Monday markets marked time as they did again Thursday when banks and most stores and business offices were closed. Friday, however, a wide range of advances were chalked up on the Toronto industrial board and the volume, boosted by reactivated speculative issues, returned to the level of the past few weeks.

Meanwhile, the New York market also was registering healthy gains starting Boxing Day after four straight declines.

INTEREST IN MINES

Despite the promise industrials were showing, the main interest continued to be centred around the mining sections.

Field developments over the past year should have resulted in a better mining market—the proposed 15 per cent U.S. equalization tax was responsible for the situation as it stands, depriving Canadian mines of much of their customary American support.

"But it is highly possible that from these extensive field developments, coupled with a strengthening of the whole range of metal commodity prices, will arise a spring mining revival—perhaps not of the 1955 boom proportions, but at least a far better one than has accompanied the spring months of the past four or five years," said J. Scott Rattray of the Toronto brokerage house of Jenkin Evans and Co. Ltd.

Two mining issues on the Canadian Exchange in Montreal—Black Hawk, listed Monday, a Mount Pleasant—attracted attention, while on the Toronto market Croinor, Iso, Nisto, Northcal and Windfall were again active, picking up gains ranging from a cent or so to about 80 cents.

HEAVY TURNOVER

Consolidated Mogul, drilling in Ireland, registered heavy turnover and picked up 70 cents on the week to close at $3.90.

Among senior metals both Falconbridge and International Nickel were active and moved ahead. Falconbridge is partly owned by McIntyre Porcupine which started to trade heavily late last week following an offer by Montreal-based Power Corporation to acquire 42 per cent of the McIntyre shares at $57 a share.

The directors of McIntyre refused the proposition resulting in rumors that a higher price offer might be forthcoming, although the stock was down slightly on the week.

Volume in Toronto was 10,123,752 shares compared with 19,735,580 last week. Value was $24,507,908 compared with $41,873,869.

$8 Billion Construction Predicted

TORONTO (CP)—Construction of all types will reach $8,000,000,000 in 1964, an increase of $50,000,000 over 1963, says P. J. Harvey, president-elect of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards.

In a year-end statement, Mr. Harvey says residential construction including new housing and construction on existing housing will climb ot $1,700,000,000 in 1964 compared with $1,650,000,000 in 1963.

Mr. Harvey says the increasing costs of land will continue to "shove up the price of new houses."

The average price of an NHA house would likely be $15,296 in 1964 compared with $14,986 in 1963. The average lot price for NHA homes would hit $3,550 compared with $2,835.

"Mortgage rates should continue to be stable at 6¾ to 7¼ per cent. There are indications that there will be plenty of mortgage money for some time to come."

Offer Extended By Power Corp.

TORONTO (CP) — Power Corporation of Canada Limited Friday extended its offer of $57 Canadian a share for up to 1,000,000 shares of McIntyre Porcupine Mines Limited to United States shareholders of McIntyre stock.

McIntyre management announced earlier that its four largest group of shareholders, representing 40 per cent of the 2,383,032 shares, would not accept the offer. The original offer was to Canadian shareholders only. McIntyre stock closed at $56 on the Toronto stock market Friday.

Trade Minister Foresees Economic Growth in '64

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Sharp, estimating a 6 per cent growth this year in national output, foresees further expansion of the economy in 1964.

"A quite substantial increase" in 1964 exports is likely, and "significant expansionary forces" are apparent within the domestic economy, he said in his year-end economic review issued Thursday.

Mr. Sharp described 1963 as "a year of steady economic advance" in which Canada made significant progress toward overcoming its main economic difficulties.

"Unemployment is lower, industrial slack has been partially absorbed, and the imbalance in our external account and reliance on foreign borrowing have been reduced."

But he said a further substantial broadening of Canada's industrial structure on a competitive basis is necessary if the country is to achieve a lasting solution to its balance-of-payments problem.

The 6 per cent rise in gross national product indicated by the trade minister for 1963 would mean an increase to $42,825,000,000 in total value of goods and services produced from last year's $40,401,000,000.

He said it appears that total output in volume terms has risen by more than 4 per cent

GRAIN CROP HELPED

"A record grain crop has contributed to this advance, but non-farm output also is up by about 4 per cent.

"This growth has increased the earnings of all major income groups. Total personal income is up by 6 per cent, and per capita real income has advanced to a new high."

In the first 10 months of this year, Canada's merchandise trade surplus had risen by $275,000,000 "while further substantial gains are anticipated in ensuing months due to unusually heavy grain shipments."

But there was no sign of significant improvement in the international payments deficit on current non-merchandise transactions, which remained at close to $1,000,000,000 annually.

Thus Canada had a large over-all payments deficit on current transactions running at $542,000,000 for the 12 months ending last September.

"Nevertheless, the chances of a further increase in the surplus on merchandise trade appear good," Mr. Sharp said.

Besides heavy wheat sales, there was an "atmosphere of sustained expansion" in Canada's principal foreign markets.

"These conditions suggest the likelihood of a quite substantial increase in Canada's exports in 1964 which would be the fourth consecutive year of strong advance.

"Significant expansionary forces are also apparent within the domestic economy."

NEW STIMULUS

Even with a decline next year in grain production from this year's record high, "the additional spending power generated by this year's record production and exports will be a source of new stimulus in the economy as a whole for some time."

He said preliminary indications of capital spending plans for 1964 suggest continuation of this year's rate of advance in capital investment by business.

". . . The continuing growth of incomes should provide firm underpinning to the consumer market generally.

"All in all, demand prospects appear good in both home and foreign markets. Strong over-all demand means increased production, more jobs and higher incomes."

But Mr. Sharp said these conditions could be short-lived "unless they are accompanied by the kind of initiatives which will ensure a continued strengthening in our position in both home and foreign markets."

Looking back over 1963, Mr. Sharp said total industrial production rose five per cent, bringing the cumulative advance in the last three years to 16 per cent.

Total employment had averaged more than two per cent higher than in 1962 while unemployment was four per cent higher.

Industrial growth had been spearheaded in large part by a strong advance in secondary manufacturing. Motor vehicle production exceeded 600,000 units after having topped the 500,000-unit mark in 1962 for the first time.

Steel ingot production was 14 per cent higher and there had been substantial gains in production of farm implements, textiles, clothing, electrical apparatus and a number of chemicals. There were notable increases in iron ore, aluminum, lumber, kraft pulp and plywood.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Activity Regains Impetus

By JACK LEFLER

NEW YORK (AP) — United States business is closing out 1963 on a high plane despite early-1963 predictions that the economy might slow down in the second half of the year.

The commerce department reported this week that business activity has regained its momentum after a brief lag in November.

Here is evidence of the economy's robust health:

—The Gross National Product—total of all goods and services—is at annual rate of $592,000,000,000 against $554,900,000,000 for 1962.

—The Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production stands at 126.9, compared with 118.3 last year.

—Automobile sales, including imports, are estimated at 7,700,000 this year, up from 7,000,000 in 1962.

—Business spending on new plant and equipment is calculated to be up five per cent over last year.

—Steel production of 109,000,000 tons is the highest since 112,500,000 tons were turned out in 1957.

INCOME HITS RECORD

—Personal income hit a record $472,800,000,000 up from $442,100,000,000 last year.

—Corporate profits, estimated at $26,800,000,000, showed a nine per cent gain over the previous year.

—Dividends were estimated to have increased $1,000,000,000 over 1962.

—Employment rose to 69,300,000 from 67,800,000 last year but unemployment increased to 4,200,000 from 4,100,000.

Expressions of optimism about the outlook for 1964 were voiced by leading business men

Frederic G. Donner, chairman of General Motors Corp., said:

"The economy continues to have available increasing resources of capital and labor for further expansion. With sustained business and consumer confidence, all present indications are that in 1964 the economy will use more fully these growing resources."

SEES JOBLESS DROP

Walter W. Heller, chief economic adviser to President Johnson, predicted — dependent on early passage of an $11,000,000,000 tax cut—that the Gross National Product will rise to $620,000,000,000 next year and that the unemployment rate would drop to less than five per cent of the labor force.

Christmas buying apparently zoomed to a new record on a late rush after getting off to a slow start mainly due to shock over the assassination of President Kennedy. The National Retail Merchants Association said indications were that dollar volume was the highest ever although it probably failed to record the expected four per cent gain.

GOOD NEWS FOR CANADIAN OIL COMPANIES

10% Hike in Exports to U.S. Seen

WASHINGTON (CP) — Countries whose oil shipments to the U.S. are limited by import quotas will find these over-all ceilings increased by about two per cent during the first half of 1964 while quota-free imports from Canada will rise by almost 10 per cent, the interior department estimated Friday.

A spokesman, explaining details of the new oil import program for 1964, said the department anticipates imports from Canada will rise to a daily average of about 274,500 barrels during the January-June period, an increase from about 250,000 barrels during the July-December period of 1963.

Shipments from Canada, which are taken into account in setting import ceilings on oil from other countries, are expected to increase to 133,500 barrels daily from 125,000 barrels daily in districts east of the Rocky Mountains—an increase of about 7 per cent in an area where competition from domestic production is extremely heavy.

IMPORTS MAY RISE

In the Puget Sound and other points west of the Rockies, imports from Canada are anticipated to rise during the January-June period to a daily average of 141,000 barrels from 125,000 in the last half of 1963. American refineries plan to step up their pipeline imports from Canada, the spokesman said.

Total imports from other countries subjected to U.S. domestic controls are expected to increase to a daily average of 1,039,900 barrels during January-June from 1,013,000 in the last half of this year.

Total import quotas east of the Rockies are anticipated at 792,916 barrels daily, up from 783,093 daily during the July-December period of this year.

West of the Rockies, the daily average is expected to rise to about 247,000 barrels from 230,000.

CANADA DECLINES

Quotas for the regions east of the Rockies are based on 12.2 per cent of domestic production forecast for the next six months, after an allowance is made for anticipated overland imports from Canada and Mexico. Mexico has agreed to limit overland imports to 30,000 barrels daily. Canada has declined to enter into any similar agreement.

The department estimated domestic production of crude, unfinished and finished oil products will average about 7,840,000 barrels daily during the next six months, just about 1.7 per cent higher than the 7,690,000 barrels forecast for the last half of 1963.

In a separate report, the department estimated that crude oil production rose in the U.S. by 3.2 per cent during 1963 to a record 2,760,000,000 barrels, valued at about $8,000,000,000. Total demand for all oils averaged 10,745,000 barrels daily, an increase of 3.3 per cent over 1962, the department said.

Hudson Bay Sets Feb. 3 Opening For Man. Mine

WINNIPEG (CP) — Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. has set Feb. 3 as opening date for its new copper and zinc mine at Stall Lake, 500 miles north of Winnipeg, a company spokesman said Friday.

Eric S. Austin, the company's vice-president and general manager at Flin Flon, said the Stall Lake mine should produce 700 tons of copper and zinc ore a day.

He said the mine is the result of four years of research and development work. It will provide employment for 118 men at its opening stages.

Most of the output will be copper, a metal produced in relatively small volume in Manitoba at present, he said.

CARGO SHIPMENTS

Vancouver Tops Coast Ports

VANCOUVER (CP)—Year-end statistics are expected to confirm Vancouver can whip other Pacific Coast contenders individually or in bunches when it comes to shipping cargo.

Shipping men said here Friday Vancouver's general cargo tonnage exceeds that of Seattle, Portland and San Francisco combined. And Vancouver is the world's leading port for timber and wheat exports.

Final figures are not in yet, but the latest estimate puts Vancouver's total cargo movement for 1963 at 15,900,000 tons, an increase of 15 per cent over the 1962 total of 14,600,000 tons.

The California port of Long Beach, another of the contenders, is advertising itself as the "No. 1 dry cargo port on the West Coast," on estimates it will handle 11,400,000 tons of cargo this year.

In Canadian comparisons, Vancouver is exceeded only by Montreal as a port for day, or general, cargo. As a grain port, anywhere, only New Orleans has an edge.

INCREASE FACILITIES

Two big bulk-loading facilities have been completed in Vancouver Harbor in the last four years to handle growing exports of bulk cargoes such as oil, coal, copper concentrates, lead, zinc potash and sulpher.

The port complex includes 62 deep-sea berths and 32 coastal cargo berths. There are grain berths for 15 ships.

In 1962 total grain exports out of Vancouver totalled 156,905,821 bushels, of which wheat accounted for 132,906,502 bushels.

The other three British Columbia grain-exporting ports, New Westminster, Victoria and Prince Rupert, brought the total grain exports for the year from B.C. to 169,795,824 bushels.

The port of Vancouver is still a young giant with ample room for growth. The harbor comprises nearly 50 square miles within approximately 100 miles of shoreline. Much of it is still available for future expansion.

STELCO HITS PRODUCTION MILESTONE

HAMILTON (CP) — Steel Company of Canada has turned out its 3,000,000th ingot ton of steel this year, the first time a Canadian steel producer has reached that figure, the company reported Friday.

Stelco has a rated capacity of 3,125,000 ingot one a year, meaning that the company has been operating at close to 100 per cent of capacity in the year just ending.

Stelco, a Canadian-owned complex, produces about 40 per cent of Canada's steel and is ranked ninth in North America in terms of ingot capacity.

Winter House Building Sets Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Winter house construction in Canada has been spurred to a level of activity that may exceed the boom of the late 1950s.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. officials expect there will be about 90,000 houses under construction on Dec. 31. This would exceed by about 2,000 the record year-end total in 1958.

Even if there is a fall-off in housing starts in 1964, the carry-over of unfinished houses could ensure enough activity for the rest of this winter to be a major factor in holding down cold - weather unemployment.

The impetus has come mainly from three strong do-it-now incentives.

One if the recent spate of direct CMHC lending to contractors for speculative house-building. The corporation expects 1963 fourth-quarter loans to hit a total of 15,000. This has more than offset the decline in National Housing Act lending by trust and insurance companies.

Meanwhile, the impact of the government's $500 bonus for those buying new houses between Dec. 1 and March 31 has been greater than anticipated, CMHC says. The $500 comes off down payments, which already had been lowered in mid-year. This has brought hundreds of persons into a market in which normal demand had been slipping steadily.

TAX RISES APRIL 1

A third factor is the scheduled April 1 rise of the new sales tax on building materials to 8 per cent from 4. Builders have this date firmly in mind in their plans to start construction new.

Until a few months ago, CMHC had been forecasting 130,000 housing-unit starts in Canada for 1963—about the same as last year, but with a larger proportion in rental units. Now it has revised the forecast up to 145,000, with much of the increase in single-family houses.

In November, direct lending by CMHC was $89,000,000-five times higher than a year earlier. It makes 6,910 loans to both owners and builders—but mostly builders — compared with 1,250 in November last year, a jump of 452 per cent.

This reflects government policy announced last fall to provide up to $80,000,000 in CMHC lending to make up for what then was a rapid pull-out of the trust and insurance companies, in the face of rising interest rates that made alternative investment more attractive.

Big Machine Order Given B.C. Firms

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two city firms have received a multi-million-dollar order from the construction company that will build the Peace River dam.

Finning tractor and equipment has been engaged to supply $3,500,000 worth of earth-moving equipment to Kiewit-Dawson-Johnson.

Almost $1,000,000 of the order will be filled by Vancouver Iron and Engineering Works.

The contract calls for 14 600-h.p. tractors to be used to pull gigantic hauling units.

Vancouver Iron will build the hauling units — an American design.

Finning also received orders for 17 of the largest track-type tractors made by Caterpillar, the D9. The machines will push the material from the pit area into a conveyor belt, also to be supplied by Finning, leading to the dam site.

Construction of the earth-moving vehicles will start immediately in order to meet the early spring delivery date.

W. Germany Has Biggest Car Output

FRANKFURT (AP)—West Germany, the world's largest car exporting nation, had its biggest automotive boom year ever in 1963. And work has already started to increase capacities further.

Over-all 1963 production was 2,660,000 cars, trucks and buses, or about 13 per cent more than in 1962. This consolidated West German's number two position behind the United States among the world's auto-producing countries.

Every second automobile made in Germany was sold abroad as exports rose by more than 20 per cent, much faster than domestic sales which registered a six-per-cent gain. Passenger cars accounted for the bulk of exports.

Trade Talks Hold Top Canada Interest

TORONTO (CP) — Trade talks scheduled to open next summer in Geneva are shaping up as the most important event of 1964 as far as Canada is concerned, the Canadian Importers' Association says.

The association says in a year-end statement that Canada's prospects for economic growth depend on substantially increasing exports.

"In order to obtain entry into the markets of the world for Canadian goods under optimum conditions, it is necessary for us to reduce the tariff barriers that may prevent Canadian goods from being sold in those markets."

For that reason, the association says, it is of the utmost importance that Canada play its full role in giving equivalent concessions to its partners in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade "to obtain the best possible deal for Canadian exporters."

The success of such a program would depend on a broad measure of acceptance by the public of the fact it is in the long-term interest of the country to have trade conducted on a multi-lateral, non-discriminatory basis.

Canadians will have to blame themselves if they fail to take advantage of the many benefits to be gained by eliminating barriers preventing the flow of international trade, the association says.

Noting that Canada has had a favorable balance of merchandise trade recently, it says there is "every possibility" of another favorable balance in 1964.

Bedouins Don't Budge at Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS, Cal.—Here in the desert a mobile is not a house, it's a place.

Sutton

When you buy a trailer you don't take it rolling over the mesa, you plant it. Then you build another room alongside, and call that a cabana. On the opposite wing you build a carport for the car that doesn't pull the trailer. Then you cover this whole encampment with a roof. By the time you put in the plants and flowers, and Mabel moves in the baby grand, you'd have to blast to move it.

Immobile Marco Polos. Bedouins that don't budge. That's the breed they are growing in the California desert. The immobile mobile homes hereabouts have picture windows, fountains on the front lawn and maids. If you want to go anywhere you go in the family car, although lately that doesn't move much either. The spiffy mobile hacienda comes now with a golf cart, the dinghy of land cruisers. And the newest means of locomotion of all, especially designed for people of a certain age, is the outsized tricycle for adults who are shaky on two-wheelers. In the mobile home movement, you're a mogul if you have a Cadillac in the carport and a pair of three-wheelers alongside.

The ritziest roost for parked trailers is Blue Skies Village, a sort of private club of which Bing Crosby is president. When you establish your nest at Bing's bide-a-wee you have to agree to spend $7,500 on improvements. The management assists by offering sketches in a variety of styles—Western, Oriental, Egyptian, Italian, Mount Vernon or Modern. The improvements, of course, are in addition to the cost of the trailer itself which can run anywhere from $10,000 to $40,000. Add to that the cost for interior decorations. A specialist in trailer decorating is W. and J. Sloane, but some migrants have imported decorators from the Midwest. One mobile home owner had the interiors done twice in six months.

The L. H. Strong permanent rolling residence at Blue Skies is done with Oriental overtones including a front lawn done with black gravel and white rocks. Here from Salt Lake City, the Strongs also have a guest trailer for visitors. Richard Bishop from New York keeps a white Georgian mobile home with stately columns in front, a widow's walk on top, and a separate trailer for the maid in back. The fountain and pool at the entrance way was installed at a cost of a splashy $10,000.

Alongside Betty Gargal's extravagant pagoda with its Japanese bridge and its Buddha figures, A. V. Anderson of Snake River, Idaho, has installed an Egyptian trailer. Built of beige sandstone, it is decorated with frescoes of Egyptian figures. Not far away, Obert Tanner's place, with its white New Orleans grillwork, looks as if it has been rolled from Bourbon Street. An $8,500 fountain sends water gurgling down two sides of a rocky escarpment, and a white ironwork staircase leads to the roof where the owner prefers to sleep.

Nestled up against the mountains in Palm Springs is another mobile home oasis called Sahara Park. Its encampment is laid out in a pattern of sandy streets called Nile, Cairo, Aladdin and Suez. While Sahara Park doesn't encourage any pagodas or King Tut tombs, its trailers are hidden behind blankets of bougainvillaea. Orange trees grow on its front lawns, buggy whip cactus sprout out of beds of white stones. Neat hedges encircle picture windows that look out on other trailers, and in the afternoon sprinklers rain down on plots of green. At Sahara at least two-thirds of the open plot must be planted with grass.

The centre of Sahara Park is a club where the Monday art group meets at nine each week, all ladies convene once a month, and bridge and canasta players every week. There is a swimming pool surrounded by chaises, a card table and pool table, glistening shuffleboard courts for the athletes, and a small therapeutic pool for those kinks. Naturally, the place is called Mecca.

Over at Blue Skies the whole centre circle entranceway is a pigmy-sized golf course. Saturday nights brings dinner dances that cost from $3 to $20 a ticket. Some of the shows have had $3,000 in live talent, and for a long-remembered luau one time the residents filed out into the desert carrying a flaming torch.

A new Blue Skies is being built out in Las Vegas. One of its features will be a community laundry dressed up like a beautiful living room. Since it takes 45 minutes to do the family wash, the management is thoughtfully installing slot machines to help pass the time.

Setting up life in an immobile mobile home means that you're not stuck with your neighbor. If he's obnoxious, you might ask him to hitch up his trailer and git. Then, too, if you're merely parked your house on rented property you don't pay any land tax. There's a long long trailer awinding out here, but it ain't going anywhere.

BEAUTIFUL blue-white diamond from Amsterdam, Holland, one of the diamond centres of the world, was chosen there by Mrs. W. J. Wood of 6 Sylvan Lane, Victoria. Mrs. Wood was the winner in the diamond-a-day contest which is held under the joint sponsorship of the Amsterdam Tourist Association and The Netherlands National Tourist Office (ANVV). The contest, which will run through Dec. 31, asks visitors to the capital city of Holland, to state why they chose it as their entrance to Europe.

Marine Route Offers Lower Travel Fares

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—New, lower summer rates for travel on the southeast Alaska marine highway system have been announced by the state division of marine transportation.

The new rates, which become effective April 1, will provide savings of as much as $23.50 for passenger vehicles over rates in effect during the 1963 summer season.

The largest saving would accrue to passenger vehicles travelling the full length between Prince Rupert and Skagway.

Savings would be smaller on shorter trips.

Fares for individual passengers will not be changed from last summer's rates. There will be no charge for stop-overs.

With one exception, the commercial vehicle tariff also remains unchanged from that which went into effect Dec. 5. The driver's fare will not be included in the vehicle rate.

Commercial vehicles in the 11 to 20-foot class will receive the same reduced rate extended to passenger vehicles of comparable length.

In another announcement, the division said its 1964 schedule will follow the same three-vessel pattern used on a trial basis in October.

Starting May 1, this pattern provides for Monday through Saturday departures from Prince Rupert, with a Friday northbound and a Monday southbound trip each week to Sitka.

We Do Well at Going Full Circle But Can't Manage a Simple Symbol

Which Way Is Up?

The fact that two Progressive (?) Conservatives interpreted the Montreal World's Fair design as a series of MWs immediately put me on the defensive. I am in no way responsible for this controversial image, invented by industrial designer Julien Hebert.

One can have great fun with letters and had I been called upon to design a suitable emblem, out of loyalty I might perhaps have chosen the letters B.C., which is the abbreviated symbol recognized by H.M. Post Office as British Columbia. (Did you know, by the way, that there is a Victoria, British Cameroons? I didn't.)

Yet even this, in flag or symbolic form, is immediately open to misinterpretation. It could in fact represent Before Canada (which would suit the Quebec separatists nicely), or it might, Liberals members take note, signify Before Conservatism.

Cause for Debate

Frankly, I thought Mr. Diefenbaker's brilliantly imaginative suggestion that we should include the maple leaf in the centre of the design was cast aside too suddenly. The House should at least have debated this notion through till the Christmas recess. If somebody had suggested a maple leaf sticking out of an empty beer bottle, then perhaps Mr. Gerald Regan (L—Halifax) might have been justified in talking about a beatnik type of symbol.

"A beatnik type of symbol", which was Regan's comment on Julien Hebert's design, made me feel temporarily disabused with the entire Liberal party. How could one vote for people who made such idiotic remarks concerning what is a very serious crisis in our cultural life, namely our Canadian inability to successfully symbolize anything?

"It's difficult to understand—a series of angles chasing one another in a regular array around a circle", said the ex-PM.

On the contrary, Mr. D., this is an attitude we Canadians understand only too well. In the art world we have a remarkable ability for going in full circles.

To research archival material and read the newspaper art criticism written in Toronto in the early 1900s and then relate same to one's own work merely brings one face to face with that often thought, but seldom spoken, Canadian admission: You're more conservative than you think, Buster.

And this, in a round-about circular way brings me back again to Mr. Hebert's symbol which I would have accepted just because of those very qualities which Mr. Diefenbaker criticized. It symbolizes for me our most expendable quality, the passage of time.

I do not find the design complicated or fussy. I find it mechanical and as inhuman as a computer. It reminds me also of Fritz Lang's old movie "M" and because the artist has avoided the time worn symbols of maple leaf and fleur de lis we can't quibble on national grounds. His "stickmen" are not men but robots, which is quite symbolic enough, I think.

But when we get down to it, could you yourself have designed something better?

Canadian artists and industrial designers had every opportunity to display their own talents in the Canadian Art Weekend Magazine and Perspectives competition earlier this year to design a Canadian flag. The prize winner Rolland Lavoie won $2,000 for his circular symbol and immediately Canadians flipped.

Couldn't Do Better

One would hesitate to ask a non-artist if he could have done better, because we are sure that he couldn't. Artists themselves, particularly where they themselves had attempted designs, were significantly silent. I suspect they will be equally silent regarding the Montreal Fair symbol.

Where we have failed our artist-designers in terms of flags and symbols generally is through our reducing the noble art of designing to a nation-wide parlor game, conducted in the spirit of mediocrity.

I feel that artists would be content if the government made greater use of its own National Gallery authorities and accepted their rulings as final, instead of trying to solve artistic matters in the House.

Not for Legislation

State Secretary Pickersgill made perhaps the one sensible observation when he commented that he hoped this would be a lesson to governments not to submit art to legislation, and that he doubted if there would be a National Gallery if MPs had to decide on its contents.

Yes, indeed. Unless we make up our collective minds quickly next Christmas and New Year will arrive without either a Canadian flag or symbol, world's fair or otherwise.

Meanwhile, can any of my readers tell me what was the symbol of the Seattle World's Fair? I've forgotten it already.

Happy New Year.

Growth of an Artist Convincingly Presented

PAST EVE AND ADAM'S, by Thomas Curley. Toronto, McClelland and Stewart, 1963. 365 pp. $7.25.

Reviewed by R. G. Lawrence

This second novel by a young American writer has several merits, the chief of which is his skill in handling dialogue convincingly; however, the same dialogue contains a major defect, at least in the view of some readers. This defect is Mr. Curley's occasional use of very vulgar language.

The central figure is Philip Fay, who in his late twenties is tentatively approaching success as an artist after several years of a disreputable experience in the seamier sections of New York City.

The primary cause of Philip's emotional and social disorientation is his ambiguous relationship with his domineering father, recently deceased.

Jack Fay's death takes Philip back to Thatcher, Mass. (near Boston), thereby enabling the author to combine in the novel the arty side of New York and the middle-class conventionality of Thatcher.

Philip's complex relationship with his friends are too involved to follow easily; not all of the soul-baring is interesting, and not all of the plot is plausible. Strangely, the best character sketches are of people not intimately entangled in the story line, the Finnegans and Sid Stein, Fay's artist friend.

That part of the novel which could easily become most pretentious and least convincing is remarkably satisfactory: the world of modern art and the growth of an artist.

In these matters Mr. Curley speaks authoritatively, more so than in another circumstance: early in the book one of his male characters (not a heavy drinker by habit) has four rapid whiskies on an empty stomach.

The result? "A slight intoxication."

Resiliency of Spirit In a Time of Terror

INTO THE SMOTHER, by Ray Parkin. Toronto, Clarke, Irwin & Co., 1963. 291 pp., map and sketches by the author. $5.00

Reviewed by R. G. Lawrence

Two hundred and ninety-one pages of man's inhumanity to his fellow man hardly make for enjoyable casual reading; however, one specialized group of readers will consider this book with unusual interest. Anyone who was a prisoner of war in Europe is likely to regard himself lucky as he reads here of the barbarous conditions of Japanese PoW work camps in Thailand in 1943 and 1944.

The author, a member of the Australian navy, was captured when the "Perth" was sunk in 1942. He was subsequently one of a task force of 61,000 PoWs and 270,000 native workers who were compelled to build, by hand, a railway through the jungle ("the smother") from Thailand to Burma, 263 miles of tropical discomfort and disease, of cruelty and torture.

The Japanese did not count the cost: 304 men dead for every mile of railway; this condensed diary is the gruesome record of brutality and endurance: "the damnable struggle between physical agony and the eye for beauty."

The latter contributed significantly to the outhor's survival; his awareness of butterflies, birds, tropical plants and flowers, etc., gave him an interest outside himself, making him less constantly aware of semi-starvation, the lack of clothing and medicine, and the animal-like conditions of living and work. (His fine sketches illustrates both the beauty and the ugliness of the situation.)

Two episodes are particularly moving; the first is the celebration of Christmas in the midst of all the horror, the second is the author's receipt of three letters at once from his wife, all of them almost a year old. "What they meant to me is not easily told."

This well-written book is worth reading as an illustration of the resiliency of the human spirit, even in the midst of a thousand incitements to anger and bitterness, and the deaths of dozens of friends.

V.I. Railway History Colorful

"SHAYS ON THE SWITCHBACKS, by ELWOOD WHITE AND DAVID WILKIE, A HISTORY OF THE NARROW GAUGE LENORA, MT. SICKER RAILWAY", VICTORIA, THE BRITISH COLUMBIA RAILWAY HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION. 37 PAGES.

By DOUGLAS PARKER

Vancouver Island's own turn of the century mining boom complete with narrow gauge bonanza railway is described in considerable detail in this well-illustrated little book.

As its title suggests, it is basically a history of the narrow gauge railway involved, but much of its appeal lies in the description of the copper mining boom which the railway served.

Written in an appealing and easy to read style the book shows what can be done when an author is willing to spend considerable time obtaining local colour through personal interviews.

At the same time, Government and other records have not been ignored in the authors' insistence on accuracy.

Sombre World

THE AGE OF MALAISE, by Dacia Maraini, Toronto, McClelland & Stewart, 1963, 203 pages, $4.95.

In the tradiiton of so much modern European fiction, this prize-winning novel is almost starkly "realistic". The Rome in which it is set is that of the working classes, far from the tourist-trap glamor; the scene is made even more bleak by the seemingly incessant cold rains of winter.

Through this depressing world moves seventeen-year-old Enrica, hopelessly in love with a perennial student whose only interest in her is sexual, half-heartedly refusing or submitting to the wealthy lawyer and the young secretarial-school student who also want her.

Home, with a dying mother and a father whose only interest is his hobby, the construction of bird cages modelled on famous cathedrals, means little more to her than does the school she attends or the job she holds so briefly. Hers truly is an age of malaise, yet in the end not quite one of despair.—D.W.H.

F and W Dictionary Lists Canadianisms

STANDARD COLLEGE DICTIONARY, CANADIAN EDITION. Toronto, Longman's, 1963. $7.50.

Reviewed by R. H. ROY

A few weeks ago Longman's Canada published a new Canadian edition of Funk and Wagnall's Standard College Dictionary. This dictionary has been a respected one in the United States for well over half a century. The Canadian edition will win many friends, and might give the O.E.D. a run for its money in many respects.

The Standard College Dictionary has numerous features about it which are attractive. For one thing, it is reasonably priced. Also, it is easy to read—no eyestrain here. Further, it is exceptionally complete for its size, as its 150,000 entries in 1605 pages would indicate.

It is illustrated, has hundreds of small maps, charts, etc., to further explain certain words, is thumb-indexed, and in appendices has a variety of miscellany from lists of Canadian and United States universities to proof-reader's marks.

Of particular interest to Canadians are several hundred words peculiar to Canada. Some of those included, for example, are herring choker, bluenose, medicare, turque, scrutineer, peasouper, red-eye, voyageur, and similar words used freely and commonly in this country, but not identified in many of the "English" dictionaries of this size.

Professor W. A. Avis, head of the department of English at R.M.C., is responsible for the Canadianisms and he has done a good job.

This is a sound reference book, and will probably gain the popularity here in Canada which the American version enjoys in the U.S.A.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Like a diary in which entries have been made ahead, certain days and weeks of 1964 are already inscribed with events of importance to people in great and small numbers.

For Victorians, when we turn to the new page at midnight, Tuesday, it could well be the opening of one of the most significant chapters in the history of the city.

For one thing—apart from the fact that the university will undoubtedly see some notable developments including giving us our first Shakespearean festival — 1964 will mark the beginning, and partial completion, of Centennial Square.

By the end of 1964 we will certainly have a city hall we can be proud of. It is possible even that we will have a civic theatre. And I believe and trust that we will be able to be proud of that also.

I am familiar with the plans, as a member of the advisory committee and am satisfied that they hold great promise, considering the fact that they are based on a fait accompli—a theatre building upon which only so much structural change can be carried out.

Mind you, those of you who may be unfamiliar with the old Pantages Theatre, in its heyday which is now some 25 years in the past, it was considered the finest theatre of its size on the Pacific coast north from San Francisco.

Acoustically it is really excellent. And even since its heyday when it was on the vaudeville circuit and saw touring productions by the Carl Rosa Opera Company, the grand dame of Government Street has had its moments.

Old World Theatre Atmosphere

During use as a repertory house by the York and Totem resident companies, many citizens and visitors discovered and enjoyed its old world theatre atmosphere.

Almost its only drawback (but it was a major one that kept a great many people from attending shows there) was its situation in a decaying area of the city.

Rebirth of the area through the Centennial Square plan will cure that ill once and for all.

Anyone who has had anything to do with building knows that much can happen between the time the plans leave the architect's drawing board and the moment when the edifice is ready for occupancy.

But in the case of the civic theatre, so many elements are conducive to the most loving care being exercised toward presenting the finest possible adaptation to the citizens, that skimping adulterations of the present plans are unlikely to be permitted.

For one thing, this will be the most public of the public buildings on the square, from a point of usage.

Hundreds of citizens and a good number of annual visitors will be making a habit of visiting it at frequent intervals, and nobody screams louder than a theatre patron who is uncomfortable, inconvenienced or whose aesthetic senses are offended.

Coming: Year of the Theatre

And especially if the theatre comes into the category of a public utility.

This consideration in itself would enjoin particular care for the theatre project as a practical consideration.

But there is another aspect and a far less mundane point of view.

The theatre came into the city's possession through the will of the late Thomas S. McPherson, a man who in his lifetime had demonstrated again and again, a high regard for the arts.

And the same Thomas McPherson has supplied the city through his will, with a portion of the funds that have made possible the carrying out of the Centennial Square project.

It is inconceivable therefore that the building which is most clearly a memorial to this fine public-spirited citizen — which may well, in fact, bear his name ultimately, should be less than as ideal as it is possible to make it.

All things considered then, there is little doubt in my mind that Victorians who produce concerts and shows and participate in them, and those who attend them, can look to the year 1964 as the Year of the Theatre.

Even if the doors do not actually open until early 1965, the long awaited dream will have become a fact before the next new page is turned.

Thus with good things in store for us from various sources, it looks as though we are surely embarking on A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Rex Seeks Change Tires of Tyrants

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Rex Harrison has devoted almost five years of his acting career to playing two roles: Henry Higgins and Julius Caesar.

"It's extraordinary," even he must admit.

Academy voters will be balloting on half of Harrison's achievement next spring and it's possible his portrayal of Caesar in "Cleopatra" will be named 1963's best.

He's finishing up his 1,007th performance in "My Fair Lady," this one for the screen.

"It's difficult to imagine that it is finally coming to an end," Harrison said. "As you near the finish, you start yearning for it to be over. But hard work remains to be done.

"I Still have to do "I've Grown Accustomed to Her Face" and it's a most difficult number. It helps to explain Higgins and is very important to the plot. On the stage it was easier because I had built up the mood for myself through doing the rest of the play. In the film I've got to manufacture the feeling out of nowhere."

CREATED CHARACTER

Harrison, who played "My Fair Lady" two years in New York and another in London, told how he approached the role:

"When Lerner and Loewe first proposed the play to me, they showed me the old movie of the original, "Pygmalion," with Leslie Howard. I must say he was marvellous in it, and I agreed to it. Then I went about creating the character my own way.

"Before I started the picture, George Cukor, the director, wanted me to see Pygmalion. I did, and I was amazed at how dissimilar my interpretation and Leslie Howard's was."

Caesar, to whom Harrison devoted a full year of filming, was something else again.

"I had been hoping to have some time to ease into the role," he said. "But no. For my first scene I was put into a purple toga with those damned gold leaves on my head and plunked into the middle of the bloody forum with thousands of extras and a lot of senators I had to play lines to.

"It was disastrous, but fortunately very little of it ended up in the picture."

FOURTH MARRIAGE is being planned by singer Ethel Merman, 55, according to a New York newspaper. Columnist Leonard Lyons said she will wed actor Ernest Borgnine in Hollywood next July. Borgnine, 46, is in process of being divorced from second wife, actress Katy Jurado.

TAKE HER, SHE'S MINE
Lightweight Comedy
Odeon Theatre

If you're still in the holiday mood, and not looking for anything deeper than a few cracks at North American puritanism, you'll enjoy this fast-paced comedy as it shuttles back and forth between California and Paris.

The fun starts when James Stewart (small-town lawyer and chairman of the school board) decides to visit Paris because he fears for the moral welfare of his daughter (Sandra Dee).

Subsequently the board calls him to account for stories and photos in the newspapers which show him (1) taking part in a lie-down strike over the banning of allegedly pornographic books (2) clutching a Chinese girl in a house of doubtful repute and (3) jumping into the River Seine in his underwear.

We all know how innocent these activities really are, but of course James has a lot of explaining to do. In a series of flashbacks he tells the school board of Sandra's college adventures in Paris and of how her frankly-worded letters cause parental anxiety.

He flies to Paris and finds daughter Sandra employed in a beatnik coffee house. There is nothing immoral about it, but Papa Stewart is worried when he finds her engaged in a lie-down strike over banned books.

He is at first incensed over this demonstration, but supports the rebels when he sees how they are treated by the police. He is ejected from the premises and the first alarming headline is made.

Later he blunders into a house of ill-repute while trying to make a phone call and is photographed with one of the inmates during a police raid.

There is practically no limit to the amount of misunderstanding that is possible in a film of this kind. But in this instance the fast-paced continuity makes for good entertainment rather than nausea over well-worn situations.

It is modern in treatment and "hep" as to current fashions in the student world. There is a cute reference to the similarity in appearance between James Stewart, the father in the film, and James Stewart, the movie star.

Over-all, this is a good, light-hearted comedy for the holiday season, nothing more.

BALANCHINE $6 MILLION, GRAHAM $0

U.S. Dancers Hopping Over Grant

By JEAN BATTEY

WASHINGTON — Quantity rather than quality distinguished the Ford Foundation's $7,756,000 grant to ballet this week.

Anyone who has watched the remarkable development of dance in this country against the obstacles of great cost and low income cannot but suffer a sense of shock and concern at the awarding of such long-needed help to so narrow a segment of the teeming American dance scene.

Over 75 per cent of the total grant—$5,925,000—goes to the New York Ballet and its affiliated School of American Ballet, both directed by George Balanchine and Lincoln Kirstein. The rest of the grant, most of it to be paid over a ten-year period, goes to six ballet companies whose directors are alumni of Balanchine's school or otherwise closely connected with him.

The foundation's total emphasis on ballet and complete exclusion of modern dance has some painful implications. Money is an expression of opinion, a value judgment.

The Ford Foundation values George Balanchine at almost $6 million; it values Martha Graham at zero; Jose Limon at zero; American Ballet Theatre at zero.

Unique Gift

Modern dance is America's unique contribution to the world of dance. Beginning with the pioneering performances of Isadora Duncan, modern dance has found new and expressive ways of movement that have developed into an impressive art form. It deserves support not because of its nativity but because of its excellence.

It is good that George Balanchine and his great ballet company have been given financial assistance. They richly deserve it. Balanchine will not always be with us and he has much to give.

Martha Graham, one of the greatest creative artists that this country has ever produced has likewise devoted a lifetime to the highest creative endeavor. Her achievement has been enormous — in her heroic choreography, her brilliant company and her successful school. What a gift to all of us if a grant could help her sustain and perpetuate these accomplishments.

Graham obviously spoke for many in the world of dance besides herself when she commented on the Ford grant: "The thing that is devastating is that none of our contemporary dance troupes has been considered.

Love Ballet

"Nothing has been done here to support our dance steming from Isadora Duncan and Ruth St. Denis. Only dance forms of European origin, the ballet, have been recognized. I have nothing against ballet —I love it—but what are the foundations going to do about other essential dance expression?"

W. McNeil Lowry, director of the Foundation's humanities and arts program, expressed surprise that when the Ford Foundation announced a grant to ballet it should be criticized for omitting modern dance.

He did not rule out some future assistance to modern dance but added that the almost eight-million-dollar, ten-year grant to ballet represented the foundation's long-range support of dance. Only short-term dance projects would be considered in the future.

Gov't Model

Government assistance to the arts has seemed less preferable than private support, but the State Department's cultural exchange program, which in effect acts as a subsidy, appears to be a model of rationality compared to the Ford Foundation's lopsided grant.

Over the past few years the cultural exchange program has sent overseas American Ballet Theatre, New York City Ballet, Martha Graham, Jose Limon, the Robert Joffrey Ballet, the San Francisco Ballet, Jerome Robbins' Ballets: U.S.A., the Alvin Ailey Company and other smaller groups. The range of its support is a far better reflection of the range of American dance excellence than the Ford idiosyncratic grant.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Christmas Day is a time for celebrating His birthday, followed by some wonderful nonsense like eating, toasting, toasting, toasting . . .

It is a time for swallowing other things besides turkey. Like your pride when Aunt Heloise gives you a bilge yellow turtleneck sweater with black sleeves. The impulse to swing it around her neck succumbs to the decision to pull her under the mistletoe and say, "thanks—just what I wanted."

Great Christmas spirit. Real thing. Aunt Heloise may not believe you but she can't fault you either.

This myopic witness saw something he couldn't very well believe on Christmas Day. The incident occurred at 11 a.m. when most of the western world had scanned the presents under the tree and determined how long it would be before they would have the damages paid for.

In front of the Causeway 11 young men jumped up and down in their goose pimples and prepared to take a bath. They were participants in an annual loony exercise called the Christmas Day Swim. Such people are officially called "polar bears"—for obvious reasons. They are also called by other names—for obvious reasons.

TOM WELBURN
. . . 'once upon a time'

Some 200 awed and sweaty spectators, garbed in heavy woollen underthings, Oak Bay scarves and moustaches, stared in mild amusement.

At Christmas it is not uncommon to see people do things with water. Like mix it. But there is a scarcity of homo sapiens who cavort in it.

On the float, which was to serve as the finish line for the Natatorial Handicap, James McCague cuddled up to a warm microphone.

"Lovely day for the swim," he said. "Practically no wind. Water temperature is 44 degrees; the air is a warm 49. And the sun has gone down momentarily, making it better for the swimmers." He didn't explain, standing there with all HIS clothes on, how it would help the swimmers.

A loud roar went up when Matthew Wellburn was introduced. He waved his cap and looked fit enough to splash a few laps. Probably would, too, if he could make the age limit. But the truth is he'll be 93 on New Year's Day. He has witnessed every Christmas Day swim since 1919.

Now it was time to get the show on the waves. A tug hove alongside and the competitors, all members of Victoria Amateur Swimming Club, climbed aboard.

They putted down the road a ways and stopped at a float some 50 yards away from the finish line.

A nosy onlooker wondered aloud how they could accurately measure 50 yards in a bathtub the size of the Inner Harbor.

A Gull Just Happened to Pass By

"See that mark on the (Causeway) wall?" asked Tom Wellburn, VASC's hon. president. "Well, a seagull happened to pass by there some years ago just as we were looking for a way to measure . . ."

What happens, he was asked, if the mark is washed off?

"We're dead," he said.

Not dead but alive and squirming to keep the blood from coagulating were the swimmers. According to the rules the slowest went off first. A few splashed water over their arms and chests to lessen the shock when they hit the water. One gulped too much salt with his water and blew it back out.

From the float was heard: "Don't spit in the water, you dope."

Then Bill Robertson, who was a Polar Bear 13 times, pulled the trigger. William Hudson, at 35 the ancient mariner of this crew, dived in.

Robertson counted out the seconds of Hudson's handicap and then sent them all in within four seconds. Monty Holding, last year's champion, had to start last.

At 25 yards Hudson was going like a seal. Looked as if he would have to drown to lose. But he found another way. He stopped to look around for the boys. The boys almost engulfed him in their haste to pass.

Ice Skating Followed Swim in 1923

Near the end a 15-year-old, Ron Ptak, demonstrated extreme urgency. Holding, who is 19, made a charge but he could not ptcatch Ptak. Mr. Trevor Cole, an elderly 26, was a rousing third. He teaches this group the intricacies of swimming but he proved here that coaches are not necessarily infallible.

Winner Ptak was asked how he felt.

"Cold," he said. "Out here (on the float) it's warm." This landlubber stamped his feet, turned up his coat collar . . . and nodded assent.

Later at Crystal Garden where the entire field thawed out at a bath drawn to 78 degrees, starter Bill Robertson talked about other Christmas Day dunkings.

"I remember in 1923," Robertson said, "we had to break the ice in the Gorge. Then when the swim was over we dried and dressed and put on our skates and had a ball on Portage Inlet."

In 1937 the Polar Bears passed up the chance to attain their PB (Pulmonary Bronchitis) pins.

The swim was called. Enough swimmers. Enough officials. Enough watchers. But no water. The plumbing in the Inner Harbor was stuck solid . . .

McKinley Beats Newcombe To Give Yanks 3-2 Victory

By WILL GRIMSLEY

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Experience gained in three frustrating years of Davis Cup competition paid off for Chuck McKinley today when he rallied to defeat John Newcombe in a pay-off match and regain the coveted tennis trophy for the United States.

The 22-year-old senior from Trinity University of San Antonio, Tex., downed the 19-year-old rookie 10-12, 6-2, 9-7, 6-2, and earned the U.S. a 3-2 victory.

Earlier, Roy Emerson, Australian champion and outstanding player of the three-day challenge round, scored a 6-2, 6-3, 3-6, 6-2 victory over Dennis Ralston, 21, of Bakersfield, Calif., that deadlocked the best-of-five series 2-2.

But Dennis beat Newcombe in a five-set cliff hanger Thursday and combined with McKinley to hand Emerson and Neale Fraser, 30, their first defeat ever in a Davis Cup doubles match.

Emerson, 27, whipped McKinley in singles Thursday.

Thus McKinley and Ralston, who at one time had been set down by U.S. tennis officials for their temperamental outbursts, brought back the historic Cup to the U.S. for the first time since 1958. Australia won it from the U.S. in 1959 and repelled challenges in 1960 and 1961 from Italy and in 1962 from Mexico.

Newcombe cracked through McKinley's service in the 22nd game today to take the first set. McKinley swept the second set, rallied from a 3-0 deficit in a third set, and then crushed Newcombe in the fourth set.

After blowing the second set, Newcombe raced to a 3-0 lead. McKinley pulled up to 2-4 and then came a decision by the umpire that helped the American to victory.

Umpire Hesitated In Calling Fault

Newcombe was trailing 30-40 and hit both of his services out of the court. The second was not called a fault immediately. McKinley went to change sides and some of the fans in the capacity crowd of 7,000 murmured.

Then the umpire called "correction, fault, double fault, game to the United States."

Then they each held service until the 15th game when McKinley made the decisive breakthrough. Newcombe was down 0-40 on his service and pluckily fought back to 30-40. Then he dropped the game on a double fault. McKinley then shot over a series of blazers, winning the game with the loss of only one point.

He cracked Newcombe's shaky service in the fourth set with the loss of only one point, then broke through again and led 4-0 before Newcombe held his own service in the fifth game. The Aussie broke through McKinley's service to cut the lead to 4-2 but that was his last gasp. McKinley smashed his foe's service and held his own to wind it all up.

RALSTON LOOKED BAD

In the Emerson - Ralston match, only once did Ralston look like the player who dominated the grass court campaign in Australia the last five weeks, winning two championships and finishing runner-up in the third.

That came in the third set when, trailing 0-40 on Emerson's service, he suddenly came alive.

Emerson doublefaulted to make it 15-40. Ralston belted a wide forehand that sent Emerson skidding futilely across court. Then he banged a topsin forehand for a clean winner. He worked Emerson out of position and scored a game clinching point for the break. American hopes rose when he went to a ten minute intermission trailing only two sets to one but apparently on the rise.

However, Emerson after losing the opening service in the fourth set with two double faults and a pair of volleying errors, re-broke Ralston in the second game and then reeled off next five games in row without losing more than two points in any of them.

He broke the American in the fourth and again in the sixth games.

In the seventh game Ralston broke Emerson with two sharply hit service returns, a booming forehand shot down line and a neat backhand angle that caught the Aussie flatfooted. But Emerson closed it out in the eighth game when he sent back four of Ralston's finest services either for clean winners or so well placed that the American could not handle them.

The United States, now has won the cup 19 times since it was put in competition in 1902. Australia has won it 18 times, 11 of the victories coming since 1950. In head-to-head competition, Australia holds a 13-12 margin over the United States.

Old Rangers Kick Up Heels —Upset Leading Chihawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Old hockey players never seem to die—especially if they're New York Rangers.

The Blueshirts have a superfluity of middle-aged players and Friday they got goals from three of them to upset the league-leading Chicago Black Hawks 4-2.

Andy Bathgate and Harry Howell, both 12-year veterans, got a goal apiece and Camille Henry, a 10-year man, scored two.

The win jumped Rangers into fifth place, one point ahead of the Boston Bruins and was their first victory over the Hawks in seven meetings this year.

Chicago yanked goalie Glenn Hall in the dying minutes in an attempt to salvage a tie, but the move backfired when Henry scored at 19:22.

Stan Mikita and Ab McDonald scored for the Chihawks.

Montreal will have everything going for them heading into this weekend's action.

They will have a complete lineup—something they haven't had for some time.

Rookie John Ferguson returns Saturday night after nursing a severed tendon on the thumb of his right hand for three weeks. Ferguson picked up the injury in a brawl with Boston's Ed Westfall Sunday, Dec. 1.

Also — relatively speaking — the Canadiens have two easy games. They meet the fourth-place Red Wings in Montreal Saturday night and then tackle the fifth-place Rangers in New York Sunday.

TOUGH TEST

Meanwhile, Chicago, fighting desperately to maintain their six-point first-place lead over the Canadiens, have to take on the tough Toronto Maple Leafs in Chicago Sunday.

The Hawks have been having trouble lately. Their flying start that spurted them 10 points ahead of the rest of the league has levelled off and they have lost five of their last eight games.

The lowly Bruins, who have been bouncing back and forth between fifth and last place, will have their hands full Saturday in Toronto.

The Leafs don't often lose at home, especially to the Bruins.

Courtenay, Bays Bounce Into Final

Courtenay vs. Oak Bay . . . Victoria vs. Alberni . . .

That's the lineup for the big games on the basketball floor tonight.

Courtenay Towhees and Oak Bay square off in the final of the Bob Whyte tournament after rolling to impressive victories at Central Junior High Friday night.

STARTS AT 6:30

Claremont and Nanaimo meet in tonight's consolation final at 6:30. The championship finale starts at 7:45.

Woodroow scored 20 points for Courtenay to emerge as the night's high scorer. Schilling added 18 points and Taafe tossed in 17.

Leigh Large (18), Russ Ball (18) and Darrel Cairns (17) carried the brunt of Claremont's attack.

Oak Bay, the defending champions, showed too much balance and too much finesse for Nanaimo. Only Gordon Robinson, who tossed in 18 points, gave Bays any amount of trouble.

Feature game tonight is the Alberni-Victoria Inter-City Senior "A" Men's League match at 9.

Ken King's Haida Chiefs, hoping to rebound from a double loss to North Vancouver Harlems, will have high scorer Norris Martin back in action.

The Victoria team stands fourth in the league standings. Athletics, on the other hand, are top dogs.

The two teams will meet again Sunday in Port Alberni.

By George, It's Cold Out Here!

Freezing winds in Chicago Friday didn't keep Chicago Bears from working out for Sunday's National Football League final against New York Giants. It obviously wasn't fun for quarterback Billy Wade, who tosses passes with cold fingers while owner-coach George Halas peeks at notes from beneath parka. Cold, clear weather is forecast for championship game. (AP Wirephoto.)

COLD, DRY WEATHER . . . . . . PREDICTED FOR NFL FINAL

Kickers May Decide Title

CHICAGO (AP)—Cold, dry weather is predicted for the National Football League's title game between New York Giants and Chicago Bears here Sunday.

A weather bureau forecaster predicted that at kickoff time partly sunny skies will cover Wrigley Field. The temperature probably will be in the 20s, he added, and no snow is in prospect.

The news had been awaited by coaches of the contending clubs, as well as the fans, because playing conditions will shape strategy and can be an important factor in determining the result.

Freezing cold is a handicap in both catching and passing a football and it appears probable that the championship will be decided by the kicking of New York's Don Chandler or Roger Leclerc of the Bears.

Don't forget that Jerry Kramer's three field goals in the Yankee Stadium frigid wind tunnel last year did the job for Green Bay Packers when Y. A. Tittle's skills were dulled by the gales and the alert Packer defence.

The year before that in frozen Green Bay, three field goals by Paul Hornung proved a handy contribution in the Packers 37-0 romp.

Both the Bears and Giants have fallen back on the field goal in their most important tests on the way to the conference titles.

When the Bears beat Green Bay for the second time, 26-7, Leclerc kicked four field goals. When the Giants played their near-perfect game against Cleveland in their second meeting, it was a Chandler field goal that started it all. At the end of the day Chandler had kicked four field goals for the Giants in their 33-6 triumph.

The NFL statistics give Chandler a definite edge over Leclerc. Chandler has made good on 18 of 29 field goal tries compared with Leclerc's 13 for 23.

SURE ON SHORT ONES

Leclerc is accurate within 25 yards. He has made only five of more than 30 yards and only two of more than 40 yards. Chandler has booted 10 from 30 yards or more out and six from beyond the 40. Leclerc's best is a 46-yarder against the Packers. Chandler set a club record with a 53-yarder at Dallas.

Chandler is a four-way man for the Giants. In addition to the field goal chore, he handles the conversions, 52 of 56, kicks off and does the punting, 44.9-yard average.

Sunday's game is scheduled for 10 a.m. PST and will be seen on television in the U.S. over the NBC network and in Canada on the CBC network.

Third-Period Punch Kayos Pontiac Club

Nanaimo packed all of its scoring into the third period Friday night to clip Esquimalt Pontiac Chiefs 4-2 in an entertaining intermediate hockey exhibition at the Sports Centre.

Bill Wakelyn, Arnie Dugan, Harvey Thien and Earl Robinson scored for Red Carr's Nanaimo team.

Mike Woodley, in the first, and Sandy George, in the second, scored for Chiefs.

VINCE GETS ANOTHER FIVE-YEAR CONTRACT

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP)—Green Bay Packers gave Vince Lombardi a new contract as head coach and general manager Friday—his third five-year contract in five years with the National Football League club.

As usual, the Packers would not talk about contract contents—but the one it replaces was reported to have paid Lombardi about $65,000 a year.

When Lombardi agreed to leave New York Giants and take over the Packers after they had stumbled through the worst season in their history—1-10-1 in 1958—he insisted on the five-year pact.

In July of 1961, after Lombardi had brought the Packers from the cellar to the Western Division championship in two seasons, the original contract was torn up in favor of a new five-year contract, which has now given way to No. 3.

Tiger-Cats Named Top Team of 1963

TORONTO (CP) — Name it, and the Canadian Football League had it in 1963.

It was as simple as that as Canada's sports editors and sportcasters jogged their memories to give the answers to questions posed in the Canadian Press year-end poll.

Football also produced these results by the voters:

Dissappointment: Who else, but the sad Toronto Argonauts who managed three victories in 14 league starts although they had been ballyhooed as the club to beat long before the season's opening kickoff.

Thrill, surprise, oddity and comeback: All of these were supplied in the second Calgary Stampeder-Saskatchewan Roughrider game of the total-point Western Conference semi-final when the Roughriders overcame a 26-point deficit to sideline the heavily-favored Stampeders, 48-47, on the round.

LEAFS SECOND

The selectors were asked to name the three outstanding Canadian teams, any sport, professional or amateur, and the Ticats won it by a comfortable margin over Toronto Maple Leafs, Stanley Cup titleholders. On a basis of three points for a first choice, two for second and one for third, Ticats ended with 270 points against 216 for the Leafs.

The Ernie Richardson rink from Regina, winner of the Canadian curling championship and the Scotch Cup, emblematic of the world title, placed third with 128 points.

It was a tight fit for fourth spot between the Canadian junior hockey champion Edmonton Oil Kings and the Canadian team at the Pan-American Games in Brazil. It went, 53-49, to the Oil Kings, Memorial Cup winners, over the Canadian team that won a total of 63 medals, including 10 golds.

PARKER GETS VOTES

The disappointment vote was close between Argonauts and the Stampeders. Many Argonaut ballots went to the team and to Jackie Parker, its halfback - quarterback - flanker who joined the team in a five-for-one swap with Edmonton Eskimos and had a sorry season.

Argonauts received 26 votes, the Stampeders 23.

Next in line with 19 were the Trail Smoke Eaters, who finished fourth in the 1963 world hockey tournament. Following with 18 were Windsor Bulldogs who lost eight games in Russia and Czechoslovakia during an exhibition swing earlier this month.

The thrill to 84 of the 154 participating voters was Saskatchewan's dramatic win over Calgary. Following this was goal No. 545 on Nov. 10 for Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings, which made him the all-time high National Hockey League goal scorer.

The Roughrider - Stampeder clutch game headed the surprise and oddity categories with comfortable margins.

LUCKY BETTOR . . . . . . WON'T TAKE CHEQUE

$50,678.60 ... in Cash!

MIAMI (AP)—An unidentified man in the crowd of 9,670 at Tropical Park Friday walked away with $50,678.60—his reward for picking the twin-double. He invested $2 to win the prize.

The man refused to take a cheque for his winnings and demanded cash.

Track officials gave him $50,000 in $100 bills and the remainder in smaller bills, plus a half dollar and dime in silver.

Tropical's payoff came as a result of two winning long-shots in the first half of the twin-double and a pair of favorites in the concluding half.

Chief Sailor started it in the fifth race when he paid $33.40 to win. English Nannie, winner of the sixth race, paid $82.40 to win.

In the featured eighth race the favored Tamao won and paid $6.20.

In the ninth race, Borneo led from start to finish and returned $8.40 as the favorite.

Roosevelt Raceway in New York holds the twin-double record with a $79,660 payoff.

ONE LAP'S A SHOO-IN FOR SHOELESS MATRON

DURBAN, South Africa—Mrs. Vera Vincent was $280 richer today because she can run like a race horse.

Mrs. Vincent was sitting with a party of friends having refreshments in the clubhouse after the races at Clairwood race course Thursday when an argument enused over the length of the track.

"It's not so long," she insisted.

A wealthy gentleman in the party offered her the money if she could run the entire course without stopping.

Mrs. Vincent promptly shed her stilleto-heeled shoes and galloped the whole course—a mile and five furlongs.

After collecting her prize, she refused to tell newsmen how old she was, although she admitted she had two sons in their twenties.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

We're always told to head-man the puck, pass it to the player ahead of us, because the puck can travel faster than you can skate.

Whenever there is a possibility of a long pass, fine. But you've got to make sure that the puck doesn't go over two lines, for instance your blue line and the centre red line. That's illegal.

Another thing, the longer the pass, the more danger there is of its being intercepted.

When you're making a real wide pass, you make sure it is a hard one. Because if it does miss, it always can go off the boards and possibly you can pick it up, yourself.

Little short passes are very good. You find that the majority of the passes are on the lesser width of the rink. And they're always a forward pass.

Sometimes a player makes what looks to be a perfect pass to a wingman going down the ice. He doesn't get the puck. This happens often when the forward going down the ice keeps his back to you. All he does is turn the blade of his stick to catch the puck.

When he does this, he's only giving you a target about a foot wide. It's difficult for a player to be that accurate. And it is difficult for a wingman, with somebody chasing, to take that pass.

Instead, if he gives you a semi-approach and turns his body, then you've got a six to eight-foot area in which you can put the puck and he can pick it up.

Sometimes you'll find your teammate is turning his back unconsciously. So you tell him—give me more of a target.

In bringing the puck out of your end, for instance, when I go behind the net, I'll find a fellow up along the boards and another up along the blue line.

Unless I'm going to carry the puck out, I'll actually turn around, almost face him. This gives me a 10 to 15-foot area where I can throw it and he can still get a piece of it.

Christiansen Gets 'Full Opportunity'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Young Jack Christiansen, former National Football League defensive ace, was rehired last week as coach of San Francisco '49ers for 1964.

No contract terms will be announced, the NFL club said.

"We feel Chris deserved a full opportunity to coach the club," said '49ers president Vic Morabito. "He took over as an interim coach early in the season under very adverse circumstances.

"We feel he merits the chance to develop the team. There was no other candidate for the position."

Christiansen, 35, served as a '49ers assistant coach five years before being named head coach Sept. 30 when Howard (Red) Hickey resigned.

Until that time the '49ers had not won in eight 1963 outings, five exhibitions and three league contests. Under Christiansen, they beat the Western Conference champion Chicago Bears once and the Dallas Cowboys. They lost nine.

EVES TAKES A FOURTH

Canada's Crothers Cracks Indoor Mark

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—Canadian track stars swept to three victories at an invitational track and field meet here Friday night as the Toronto pair of Bill Crothers and Bruce Kidd once again dominated the field in their specialities.

Crothers, 22, last year's United States champion, set an indoor American record in the 880 yards with a 1:50.2 triumph over Jim Dupree, the best American half-miler. Crothers, a druggist, knocked 1-10th of a second off the mark set by Pittsburgh's Arnie Sowell nearly seven years ago.

Crothers also ran a blazing half-mile relay team to victory over Oregon State by a handy margin.

Kidd, 20, a University of Toronto student who is among the world's best distance runners, won the open two-mile in 8:54.

Crothers and Kidd are the backbone of the 1964 Canadian Olympic team that will compete in Tokyo in October. And on them will rest Canada's chances of winning a gold medal in track.

Crothers' win in the 880 he won the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union title over the same distance in 1963—was the highlight of the season-opening San Francisco Examiner holiday invitational track and field meet, at which U.S. citizens began their intense training for berths on the U.S. Olympic team.

Dupree finished in 1:51.7. Sig Ohlemann of Vancouver was third in 1:52.3 and Willie Atterberry of the U.S. fouth in 1:55.2.

In the two-mile relay, the winning East York team in addition to Crothers was made up of George Shepherd, Dave McClure and Stan Worsfold. Shepherd and Worsfold are from Toronto and McClure from Saanichton, B.C.

The Canadian quarter finished 1.3 seconds in front of Oregon State. The Canadians were clocked in 7:48.3, Oregon State in 7:49.6. Long Beach State was third in 7:50.0.

Hylke Van Der Wal of Hamilton, Ont., put on a strong finish to take second place in the mile steeplechase behind George Young of the U.S. who won the race in 4:27.4. The Canadian was clocked in 4:27.7.

FINISH FOURTH, FIFTH

A pair of Canadians, however, could do not better than fourth and fifth in the 440 where Arizona State's Ulis Williams sprinted past Adolph Plummer for a 50.5 victory, thus continuing his hex over the world record holder.

Plummer was clocked in 51.3. Mike Larrabbee of the U.S. was third in 51.3, Lynn Eves of Saanichton fourth at 51.8 and McClure fifth in 53.9.

Wests Face United

Victoria United of the Pacific Coast Soccer League will meet the District League's Victoria West entry Sunday in an exhibition match at Beacon Hill Park. Kickoff at 2 p.m.

WHL President Already Counting '64-65 'Hatch'

VANCOUVER — Al Leader, president of Western Hockey League, said Friday he already has next season's schedule drawn up with all six teams present and accounted for.

"This summer I will be able to take a vacation for the first time in years," Leader told reporters.

There have been some doubts that Vancouver Canucks and Denver Invaders would be back next season. Invaders made their league debut this year.

But Leader said, both clubs are having upswings in attendance.

"There is no concern now about Denver and with the Canucks playing so much better recently there is good reason to feel that crowds will go up in the new year."

The financial position at Portland, Los Angeles and San Francisco is said to be strong, and Seattle has been drawing better than at any time in the club's history.

BOWLERS OF WEEK

Latest to win tenpin awards in Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition are Peggy Trickett and Bill McKay. Peggy fired games of 177, 200 and 214 for 591 total in Friday Mixed League at Gibson's Bowladrome to top women's division and Bill set pace for male trundlers when he put together games of 210, 212, 222 for fine 644 count in Gold Crown Senior League at the Aurora Lanes.

Invaders Continue To Climb

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Denver Invaders mixed a Friday with a 13 — and fortune smiled.

The Western Hockey League Leaders went after their 13th win in as many home games and blunted Los Angeles Blades 9-1 Friday night.

Attendance at Denver was 5,528—the biggest home crowd the new WHL entry has drawn.

San Francisco dumped the Canucks out of fourth place when Pete Panagabko scored with less than two minutes remaining for a 4-3 Seal victory before a Vancouver crowd of 2,828.

MIGAY LEADS WAY

At Denver, captain Rudy Migay lead the winners with two goals and three assists. Lou Jankowski and Steve Witiuk got two goals each while singles came from Bruce Draper, Gord Redahl and Garry Jarett.

Norm Johnson scored the lone Los Angeles goal.

Other San Francisco scorers were Nick Mickoski, Al Nicholson and Gerry Brisson. Phil Maloney, Buddy Boone and Dave Duke scored for Canucks.

'Shoe' Takes Second Spot

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Jockey Willie Shoemaker became the second highest winning jockey in United States history Friday.

The Shoe was aboard the favored Ceiling Zero, winner of the second race at Santa Anita Park, putting his lifetime victory total at 4,780—one more than the retired Eddie Arcaro. Shoemaker tied Arcaro's mark Thursday.

Grandpappy Johnny Longden, also riding at Santa Anita, is the No. 1 winner. He has 5,777 winners.

ZEIDEL TO PAY FOR SWINGING

SEATTLE (AP) — Larry Zeidel of the Seattle Totems has been fined $100 and suspended for four games by Western Hockey League president Al Leader for "vicious and unwarranted stick swinging."

The action stemmed from a clash here last Sunday between the Seattle defenceman and Los Angeles winger Willie O'Ree, who was fined $25 and suspended for the one game between the two teams in Los Angeles Jan. 3.

LLOYD, McNEILLY, WHITE AND HOLLETT . . . . . . TOP TIMES' EVENT

Bowlers Pass 12-Week Mark

Pins by the hundreds will drop with reckless abandon next May.

That's when four Victoria bowling establishments will be invaded by 112 pin-busters, all trying for one of The Daily Times' four Bowler-of-the-Year titles and part of the $400 in prize money.

The 28-week contest, running for 12 weeks, has paused for the festive season. Competition will resume next Saturday.

Brightest effort in the men's tenpin division was turned in by Bruce Lloyd, who rolled a 687 three-game series at Mayfair Lanes in the seventh week of the competition.

Leader in the ladies' tenpin category is Barbara McNeilly, who fired a 620 series at Mayfair Lanes.

Lew White has the highest fivepin total with the sizzling 954 he rolled at Gibson's Bowladrome in the sixth week of the contest.

Dordie Hollett chalked up an excellent 904 series to top the distaff side in fivepin competition.

Sixteen of the 24 winners already named in the tenpin categories rolled their winning series at Mayfair Lanes.

The competition is being held for league bowlers in Greater Victoria, Duncan, Chemainus, Lake Cowichan and Youbou.

All weekly winners will be eligible to participate in The Times Bowlerama—the Tournament of Champions—to be held next May.

Bowlers in each of the four categories with the best three-game scratch total will be declared Bowler of the Year and, if Times subscribers, will each receive $100 in addition to trophies.

Canuck Errors Pave the Way For Swede Win

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Canada's world hockey title hopes suffered another setback Friday night as the touring Swedish national team took advantage of Canadian mistakes to take a 3-1 decision from the Canadian Olympic team.

The Swedes were outplayed and outshot, but spectacular goaltending by Lennart Haggroth kept the Canadians off the score sheet until late in the second period when the Swedes had established a 2-0 lead.

And the European team jumped on Canadian errors for two of their goals as they evened their tour record after a 5-4 loss to Montreal Junior Canadiens in Montreal Thursday.

Sweden opened the scoring in the last minute of the first period when Canadian defenceman Terry O'Malley fell while carrying the puck out of his own zone. Defenceman Nils Johansson picked up the loose puck at centre ice and passed to Carol Goran Oberg, who drew goalie Len Broderick out of the net before shooting.

Right winger Ronald Petterson gave the Swedes a 2-0 lead late in the second period. He was left uncovered in front of the net and took a pass from behind the goal by Lars-Eric Lundvall.

Right winger Ray Cadieux put Canada back in the game 57 seconds later when he scored after a pass from Roger Bourbonnais, but the Swedes regained their two-goal margin in less than two minutes, just before the end of the second period.

Broderick came 30 feet out of his net to clear a loose puck, but lost it to Tumba Johansson. Johansson passed to left winger Uno Ohrlund, who put the puck in the empty net.

The Swedes picked up seven of the 12 minor penalties handed out in the game, but no goals were scored on power plays. The teams were playing five a side when Oberg opened the scoring, and were at full strength for the other three goals.

Canada now has lost two of three games against the two European teams touring the country. They split a two-game series with Czechoslovakia earlier.

Canada and Sweden meet again Sunday in Toronto in the opener of a three-game round-robin series that will include the Czech national team.

Czechs Praise Tough Quakers

SASKATOON (CP)—Saskatoon Quakers of the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League provided the toughest opposition of the Czechoslovakia national team's Canadian tour to date, said national coach Jiri Anton after his club was held to a 2-2 deadlock here Friday.

A capacity crowd of 5,000 watched the two teams keep pace throughout the contest. All the scoring was done during the fast-moving second period.

Marksmen were Fred Dunsmore and Billy Lindsay for Saskatoon and Rudolf Potsch and Jan Klapac for the nationals.

"Saskatoon gave us the hardest game we have had so far," said Anton. "The Quakers played very well. I think our boys played well, too, and the result was a good match."

Anton praised the goaltending of Vladimir Nadrchal and Saskatoon's Don Campbell.

Campbell "made some miraculous saves," he said.

Nadrchal handled 36 shots while Campbell booted out 23.

Vic Lynn, coach of the Quakers who played in Czechoslovakia on an exhibition tour last year, said he thought his team had enough of an edge to win.

"Those Czechs were always dangerous. They were fast and handled their passes well but I believe our boys matched them and perhaps outshone them at times."

APPLY THE PRESSURE

Quakers, bolstered by a line rom Winnipeg Maroons and a defenceman from both Regina Caps and Moose Jaw Pla-Mors, matched play with the visitors for most of the first period. In the last four minutes, they applied pressure and bounced rubber all around the net.

Borrowed players for the game were Dunsmore, Reg Abbott, Al Johnson from Winnipeg, George Hunchuk from Moose Jaw and Lorne Davis from Regina.

Saskatoon held an edge on opportunities in the final frame but missed some golden chances. In the first period, both goalies came up with dazzling saves to keep the scoreboard clean.

Tonight, the nationals play the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League All-Stars in Regina.

Answers to Previous Puzzle

They may have cut down the old pine tree and hauled it away to the mill, as the song says, but the ghost of that old conifer is still hovering around for anyone to see.

A red crayon is needed. Use it to color the tree above. When you have finished, place the red tree under a strong light, and gaze at it steadily for approximately 60 seconds. Then, switch your gaze to a nearby dark wall. Lo, and behold! there stands the old pine tree, bright-eyed and bushy needled . . . And in all its forest-green splendor!!

CUTTING UP

Steps are being taken to cut a gigantic candy cane into 10 pieces each a foot long. If it takes one minute to make each cut, how long will it take to cut the 10-foot cane into 10 pieces?

Answer: It will take nine minutes.

TONGUE TWISTS

Repeat the following aloud as rapidly as possible without twisting your tongue:

Tillie twines tinsel for Christmas trees.

Santa's shoes show signs of snow.

Grimley Grant's gifts generally grate.

Wesley wobbled the wassail bowl.

CRAZY ABOUT WORK, EH?

If you are possessed of any ergomaniacal qualities, this problem will bring them to the fore. (Ergomaniacs are those excessively devoted to hard work, you know.) The problem here is to arrange the figures 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19 in the 19 blank spaces of the design above so that a maximum number of straight lines, points of triangles, stars or hexagons total multiples of 10.

It's a tough one, that's for sure.

Solution—Top Row: 12, 14, 4. Second row from top: 17, 11, 5, 7. Middle row: 1, 2, 10, 18, 19. Fourth row: 13, 15, 9, 8. Bottom row: 16, 6, 3.

A TASTY GAME

Determining whether your friends have "good taste" at Christmas, or any time, offers an amusing party pastime. Arrange to have ready a number of different liquids, such as ginger ale, vnegar, grape juice, water, etc. Place four or five of these in identical glasses. Blindfold the person who is to take the test. Hand the glasses to him in turn, asking him to sip and identify the content. If he is given a tangy drink first, chances are he'll have trouble thereafter.

A-Z AROUND THE WORLD

|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Q | C | N | A | A | X | U | Z |
| I | E | A | D | I | N | L | R |
| R | M | N | X | H | D | U | S |
| A | Y | A | M | N | A | I | S |

Hidden in the maze of letters above are the names of at least seven nationalities or ethnic groups, ranging from the letters A to Z. To spell out these names, trace with your pencil from square to square in any direction. The same letter may be used more than once in a single name, and in subsequent names. How quickly can you find at least five such names?

Answers: American, Canadian, Hindu, Mayan, Manxman, Russian, Zulu.

CAN YOU COUNT?

If I had as many again, half as many again and two and a half, I would have twenty coins in my hand. How many have I?

Solution: I have seven coins in my hand.

Dear Henry:

I get into fights with my parents very often (because they are so out-dated.) Sometimes they are so mean that I wonder if I am really their boy and not adopted.

Dear Anonymous:

You sound like a little devil to me and because of that you can wipe away all your fears. Your parents wouldn't keep you unless you were their OWN little devil.

Dear Henry:

It's been a month since I turned 16. I have spent that month trying to persuade my father to let me learn how to drive. The law says I can learn. How can I get my father to change his mind?

URGENT

Dear Urgent:

Study the rules inside out, Be sober in your mind,
On your face look devout And Dad may turn out kind.
But if you ever crash When out on a drive
And the car's a pile of trash You'll regret you're alive.

Dear Henry:

My best friend and I are being bugged by a boy our age. He swears sometimes and gets people in trouble. I feel sorry for him because he has no friends. My best friend's mother doesn't like this boy and says if he (my best friend) doesn't stop playing with him, she will not let him play with me. How can I lose him politely?

FRIEND OF FOE

Dear Friend of Foe:

Let's get it straight. You're B and your friend is C. C's mother says that C can't play with you unless you both dump A, and A's mother says she is glad you play with him because he has no friends.

The way I see it is that A stands for Aggravated and he could use a friend. I say you stay friends with A even at the cost of losing C. A needs a friend and I'm sure that one day A will stand for Appreciative.

What happened to President Kennedy was a terrible thing.

Unfortunately, not all teen-agers realized the depth of the matter. Many acted like cub reporters who just got a scoop, arguing who found out about the news first.

Mr. Kennedy died trying to make this world a better place to live and the people who would have benefited first are the teenagers of today.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

An international stamp program in memory of the late Eleanor Roosevelt was launched a couple of months ago. Some 40 countries are to participate.

The stamps will bear designs based on a proposed common emblem, showing a portrait of Mrs. Roosevelt, along with the "Human Rights Flame." The income from donated quantities of these stamps will be used in the interests of cancer research.

It is a certainty that there wil be a spate of stamps all over the world to honor the late President Kennedy, and while some will no doubt be issued in a genuine desire to pay homage to this world leader, it is feared that many countries will print them off with less altruistic motives.

As noted in this column recently, Australia, New Zealand and Fiji all marked the opening of the Commonwealth Telecommunications system with special issues of stamps. Great Britain has also commemorated the event in a similar manner.

Canada is one of the main links in this project, for a special microwave system carries the messages across the dominion from Port Alberni to Hampden, Nfld., joining the gap between the Pacific and Atlantic cables.

Seeing that Canada holds this important position, one would think that it would join in with a special stamp at this time, but so far there has been no word of it.

Life insurance in New Zealand has, for many years, been nationalized, and this government department has, since 1891, used special official stamps on its mail, inscribed "Government Life Insurance." The current set, showing well known lighthouses, is quite attractive.

A 2½d value has recently been added, showing the beacon at Cape Campbell, which, by the way, looks very much like our own lighthouse at Race Rocks. The ½d value of the series has been dropped, and is no longer available.

20th Century Examines Children's Summer Village

'They Simply Accepted Us'

By BARBARA SAPINSLEY
(Writer of "Too Young to Hate")

National boundaries are artificial. I came to realize this after watching children from many lands, with different languages, eating habits, manners, tastes and customs, come together in still another strange land and, in a matter of days, make friends without being able to exchange a sentence.

In the steaming heat of a Mississippi summer, a technical crew and I, as writer, spent several weeks at that state's first Children's International Summer Village filming the documentary Too Young To Hate. The program includes films of other Children's Village conclaves held in England, Germany and Norway.

The camp last summer in Long Beach, Miss., was operated by the Children's International Summer Villages, Inc., which started running such camps in 1951. Their hope is that if enough bright and talented youngsters are globally oriented through having friends all over the world, the world may become a more peaceable and understanding place when these children grow up to positions of leadership and influence.

The children — 11-year-olds from England, Japan, Norway, Holland, Guatemala and Mexico — were intrigued by The Twentieth Century crew for the first few hours. But once the few with scientific curiosity had looked through the camera sight and had a rudimentary and pantomimed explanation of what some of the equipment did, they simply accepted us as part of their milieu.

The children quickly picked up words in each other's languages. It wasn't unusual to hear a Spanish-speaking child say, "One, two, three," while showing a Dutch or Japanese child how to play a Spanish game. By the time the children went home, they could count to 10 in English, and part of the way in Japanese and Spanish.

The Dutch and Norwegian youngsters had a hard time adjusting to the Mississippi heat; they had never experienced anything like it. One British boy was impressed by the sunshine. "It doesn't shine like this at home," he said.

The Norwegians didn't like the food, being used to a fish diet. They and the Dutch were unhappy about having to wear life jackets when they went sailing. Swimmers and sailors from earliest childhood, they considered life jackets for babies.

But all the children loved their stay at the camp. One English boy said it was "smashing fun;" one of the Japanese didn't want to go home at all. Most of the Mississippi Gulf Coast residents are very proud of this, their first CISV camp. Their desire was that the children return to their various countries with a favorable view of Mississippi hospitality and Mississippi internationalism, and they rolled out the red carpet in welcome and friendship.

Different Customs, Colors, Languages

How future international citizens of the world—all aged 11—discover their alikeness despite different languages, color and national customs, will be seen on Too Young to Hate, this week's presentation of Twentieth Century, to be aired on Sunday at 6 p.m. on Channel 7.

The broadcast focuses on the children's international summer village in Mississippi, organized by the Gulf Coast chapter of CISV, Inc., which was host to 11-year-old delegates from Japan, England, Norway, Holland, Guatamala and the Gulf Coast itself.

44 COUNTRIES

Since 1951 there have been 48 such villages, in which youngsters from 44 countries have participated. Four children, picked for leadership, scholarship and sociability from each participating nation, meet at summer camps in various countries for four weeks. The Twentieth Century crew filmed villages in England, Germany, Norway, and at Long Beach, Miss.

The program shows children from dissimilar cultures becoming friends, young Guatemalans being entertained by a local Gulf Coast family, and a camp feature—a national day put on, in this instance, by Japanese children. The campers in Mississippi also are questioned about what their experience meant to them.

Egyptians and Israelis have learned about each other at a village in Ohio; Mississippians and Africans have played together at one in the Netherlands; five Iron Curtain countries have sent children to camps on several occasions.

Canada-Sweden Hockey To Be Seen Wednesday

Two major sports events, the international hockey game between Canada and Sweden, and the Rose Bowl football game at Pasadena Calif., will be telecast on the CBC television network Wednesday.

Starting at 12:30 p.m., CBC will carry one hour of taped highlights of the exhibition hockey game played at Maple Leaf Gardens, Dec. 29.

Fred Scambatti describes the play-by-play, with Steve Douglas handling the color commentary.

The game is part of a round-robin series involving the national teams from Sweden, Czechoslovakia and Canada. The tour was arranged by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association as part of its 50th anniversary celebrations.

The three teams will represent their countries at the 1964 Winter Olympics to be held at Innsbruck, Austria, from Jan. 29 to Feb. 9.

In the past, Canada has sent a senior team to the world championships. This year it was decided to send a national team consisting of top university players. The players were assembled to play and practice together for a full season.

The team is coached by Father David Bauer, currently teaching at St. Mark's College, University of British Columbia.

Father Bauer, brother of Bobby Bauer of Boston's famous Kraut line, coached St. Michael's Majors to a Memorial Cup victory over the Edmonton Oil Kings in 1961. Last year he coached the U.B.C. Thunderbirds.

Two members of the team are sons of former NHL greats. Leftwinger Terry Clancy's father is King Clancy, a star NHL defenceman in the 1930's and now assistant manager-coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs. Centre Brian Conacher is the son of the late Lionel Conacher, Canadian athlete of the half century.

This year's Rose Bowl, the 50th, sees the "Huskies" of the University of Washington meeting the University of Illinois "Fighting Illini." Lindsey Nelson handles the play-by-play, with Rod Belcher and Bill Symes providing color commentary.

A LONG WAY

Lonely Ernie Real 'Marty' When Home

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—It's a long way from the South Pacific to Beverly Hills, but the distance is covered in 20 minutes by Ernie Borgnine when he leaves the set of "McHale's Navy" in the San Fernando valley for his home.

The psychological jump is a big one, too.

From the zany camaraderie of actors who play his crew in the television series to the quiet, lonely life he leads off-screen is the difference between black and white.

Underneath he is almost a dead ringer for "Marty," the characterization that brought him an Academy Award in 1955. Thoughtful and easily bruised, Borgnine, for all his pals, is a loner.

When the day's work is done he hops in his grey Ferrari and manoeuvres his way through the canyons to his white Mediterrean style home.

There is no one at the door to greet him. No loving wife, no kids to frolic with, and these are the things this rugged man of Italian extraction holds most dear.

Once inside he goes to his little bar for a beer or a scotch and soda highball. His housekeeper prepares dinner—her name is Tolla Diaz—and Ernie eats alone. Then he switches on the television set, studies his lines and goes to bed.

If that's the glamour life, you can have it.

Ernie is in the middle of seeking a divorce from his estranged wife, Mexican actress Katy Jurado. Another ex-wife has custody of an 11-year-old daughter, Nancy.

Ernie looks forward to his visits with his little girl, taking her to Disneyland, to restaurants for dinner and on long drives up and down the Pacific Coast highway. When the walls of his home seem to crowd him a little too much, Borgnine jumps in the Ferrari for a lonely spin up and down the beaches by himself.

When he entertains at home it usually is to host a small dinner party on Saturday nights. Infrequently it's a post-dinner gathering around the bar followed by a stag poker game. His face lights up into a white-toothed grin when visitors spot his gleaming Oscar atop the fireplace mantle.

The little statuette is a symbol to Borgnine who takes his acting seriously.

But eventually the guests go home, the party's over and Ernie is alone again. His biggest regret is being a part-time father.

"I do the best I can, but it's not easy," he says. "In the long run if you show children the love and affection they crave, they grow up to be normal, wonderful, healthy persons. I think that's the way it is with Nancy."

Borgnine has made several movies in Italy in the past three years and his house is filled with mementoes of his trips to Rome where he is something of a legend.

He particularly treasures an ancient music box he picked up there two years ago. It can be heard tinkling in the near-empty house when the television set is dark and it's still too early to sleep.

Ernie Borgnine is an altogether different man from the wacky Commander McHale of television.

HUMORIST, HUMANITARIAN

Newspaper Was Printed Only When Editor Sober

Faults and Virtues Of Frontier Editor To Be Seen Friday

"Never exaggerate your faults, your friends will attend to that," was one of the favorite sayings of the late Bob Edwards, frontier editor, humorist, humanitarian and drinking man.

The faults and the virtues of Bob Edwards himself, will be recalled Friday at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6 when CBC-TV's Telescope presents The Calgary Eye-Opener.

HE'S REMEMBERED

Although Edwards and his newspaper died more than 40 years ago, getting anecdotes about them for Telescope wasn't difficult. There are still many Calgarians who remember Edwards well; and his writing, which has been favorably compared to that of Mark Twain, is all on file in old issues of the Eye-Opener.

Edwards was a well-educated Scot who came to Canada in 1894. After founding weekly newspapers in several small western communities, he settled in Calgary at the turn of the century and established a reputation throughout the West with his Calgary Eye-Opener.

SOBER

Although The Eye-Opener was supposedly a weekly newspaper, Edwards published it "semi-occasionally"—whenever he felt he had enough news, and was in a sober condition.

With strong convictions about human behavior, he used the paper to prick the egos of insincere public figures. His society notes were read with glee by Calgarians.

A typical example: "Mrs. P. Q. Shinkleblister, 1201 Twenty-Sixth Ave. West, will receive this afternoon. She will be glad to receive anything, preferably something in the bottled goods line."

On the program, Mavor Moore will portray Edwards, a role he has played before on CBC television. His quotes from the Eye-Opener will be interspersed with the reminiscences of some of Edwards' friends and former employees.

MAYOR APPEARS

Among those who supply a verbal portrait of Edwards are Grant MacEwan, the mayor of Calgary, who has made a lifetime study of Edwards; Arthur Halpern, the Eye-Opener printer who now works for the Calgary Albertan; Mrs. Bertha Seagall, Edwards' secretary and girl Friday; Josh Henthlow, master of ceremonies for the Calgary Stampede and long-time friend of the editor; and Hugh Dempsey, archivist at the Glen Bow foundation in Calgary who supplied Telescope with historic films and photographs of Calgary during the Edwards era.

"For all of them, it was difficult to keep the man separate from the newspaper," said a member of the Telescope productions team. "Practically all of them thought Bob Edwards was the Calgary Eye-Opener, and vice-versa."

The Calgary Eye-Opener was directed by Gerald Richardson and filmed by Harold Makin. The supervising producer of Telescope is Ross McLean.

Bob Edwards (Mavor Moore) and his irreverent "weekly newspaper."

Morgan Joins 'TW3' Show

Henry Morgan has been signed to appear regularly on the new satirical revue, That Was the Week That Was, which premieres Friday, January 10.

Morgan, a pioneer of satire in broadcasting, will be featured each week in the cast of players. He appeared on the recent special which previewed the series.

Nancy Ames, who also starred in the preview, has been named the "TW3 Girl" and will sing a running commentary on the late news events of each week.

Robert Emmett, Earl Doud and Gerald Gardner, the three writers responsible for the preview's script, have been assigned to write the weekly telecasts.

The 30-minute NBC show will be seen here Fridays at 8.30 on Channel 5.

MURDER

Lawyers To Discuss Oswald Case

Two distinguished members of the Texas bar — Leon Douglas, State's Prosecuting Attorney before the Court of Criminal Appeals, and Percy Foreman, Houston criminal lawyer and President of the National Association of Defence Attorneys—will discuss the legal aspects of the Oswald case on The Law and Lee Oswald, to be seen Sunday at 1.00 on Channels 7 and 12.

Newton N. Minow, former Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission and now Executive Vice President and General Counsel of Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc., and Professor Paul Freund of the Harvard Law School will be the other panelists.

WON MANY AWARDS

Composer Henry Mancini of "Peter Gunn" and "Moon River" fame has won a dozen U.S. television awards and two academy awards.

NEW YEAR'S EVE

Quest Features Satire From Three Top Revues

Quest starts 1964 right—with laughter.

A New Year's Eve Revue, to be seen on Channel 2 at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday, is a fun-filled half-hour of sketches by The Village Revue of Toronto, The Establishment of London, England, and The Living Premise of New York City.

Among the comic characters in The Village Revue are such individuals as Monsieur Pustule Crapeau of the FLQ, "who spent many a war year hunting and fishing," television news commentator Chester Resonance, and a Dominion Drama Festival adjudicator trying desperately to find nice things to say.

The Bohemian Embassy gave The Village Revue its first public forum about two years ago.

Don Cullen, one of the founders, saw the Embassy as an after-hours club for the encouragement of young performers, as well as promising writers.

Toronto's powerful drama critics liked their youthful vigor and modest presentation, and they've had a steady following ever since.

On the New Year's Eve Quest show three sketches will be seen. Drummer Ron Rully and his trio contribute a jazz number. Eleanor Bron and John Fortune of The Establishment will play one of their most painfully truthful sketches—about a boy and girl on their first date.

Godfrey Cambridge and Al Freeman, Jr., of The Living Premise are featured in a sketch about two Negroes who crash a Russian Embassy reception in Washington, and pretend to be African diplomats. Other members of this New York group, whose hard-hitting satire punctures the absurdities of race prejudice, are Diana Sands, Jo Ann Lecompte and David Petersen.

HELP TO CIVIL AUTHORITIES

Versatile Canadian Army Active on Many 'Fronts'

From nuclear defence to civil assistance illustrates the range and variety of the Army's activities in 1963, according to the official year-end review.

Overseas the Army was authorized by the Canadian government to use atomic warheads on its Honest John artillery rockets in West Germany, and at home the Army responded to requests for assistance from civil authorities for help on more than 20 occasions.

The list of tasks taken on across the country shows the human side of Canada's peacetime soldiers. Among them were: at Beeton, Ont., 300 soldiers searched for a kidnapped girl; 100 troops scoured the woods for a mute child lost near Charleswood, Man.; more than 200 soldiers were encamped outside the walls of St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary near Montreal for six weeks as a back-up force for the penitentiary security staff; explosives experts risked their lives at dozens of places at the height of terrorist hoaxes and bombings; demolition experts blased ice at Chateauguay, Que., and Whitecourt, Alta., and eased the threat of serious flooding.

UN Peacekeeping

Outside Canada, in 1963 the Army continued to serve with substantial contributions to the United Nations peacekeeping efforts in The Congo and Egypt, and continued to fulfill the country's ground forces commitment to NATO with its 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group in West Germany. During the year the Canadian Army was represented in a score of countries on United Nations teams, on loan to the department of external affairs or at official military establishments.

Training in 1963 was progressive in nature, designed to adapt the soldier to developing techniques and skills of modern battle concepts. Two large training concentrations took place in Canada during the summer. The 2nd and 3rd Canadian Infantry Brigade Groups exercised at Camp Gagetown, N.B., and 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade Group trained at Camp Wainwright, Alta. At the Camp Wainwright concentration, a dummy Honest John artillery rocket was fired for the first time as part of a tactical exercise.

Emergency Move

Several significant exercises were held during the year. Exercise "Qui Vive 3" successfully moved the Army's emergency stand-by battalion—1st Battalion Royal 22e Regiment—from Camp Valcartier, Que., to Camp Wainwright, Alta., in an airlift simulating a global move on United Nations duty.

Once at Camp Wainwright, the "Van Doos" took part in exercise "Vol Ouest," acting as UN security troops in a restless and excited country to restore civilian order out of near chaos. The "chaos" was provided by soldiers of 2nd Battalion Queen's Own Rifles of Canada from Calgary, Alta., acting as the civilian populace. The exercise was the first of its type to be held in Canada. During the week-long operation internal security tasks practiced included anti-terrorist sweeps, crowd control, curfew operations and setting up road blocks.

Winter Manoeuvre

Early in the year exercise "Timberline" in Alaska saw the parachute company of 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry from Edmonton, Alta., working with elements of the United States Army in extensive winter warfare manoeuvre.

In West Germany in late fall, 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group took part in exercise "Keen Blade," an armoured and infantry manoeuvre with their "enemy" being armoured elements of today's German Army of the West German Republic.

Major equipment acquisitions announced during the year were armoured personnel carriers, anti-tank guided missiles and cargo helicopters.

Acquired Carrier

The American M-113 armoured personnel carrier, already in service with the U.S. Army and many other forces, will be supplied first to the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group in West Germany. The 10-ton, full-tracked amphibious vehicle can travel across rough terrain at a high rate of speed and over water at more than three miles an hour while carrying a driver and 12 fully-armed infantrymen. The carrier may also be used as a cargo vehicle, stretcher vehicle, for reconnaissance and may be para-dropped.

Known as the "SS-11" and the "Entac," the French-made guided missiles are for the use of the armoured corps and infantry soldiers against the heaviest armour of any known tank. At year's end they were being taken into service with Canada's NATO Brigade.

Manufacture began in 1963 of 12 cargo helicopters for the Canadian Army. The twin-turbine, tandem-rotor helicopters are capable of lifting two tons of stores or transporting 25 fully equipped troops, and may be used as well for casualty evacuation.

Secret Raid Nabs 1,300 At Bingo

VANCOUVER (CP)—An estimated 1,300 people playing at Vancouver's largest bingo operation were caught in the middle of a secret police raid by 25 officers late Friday.

Police confiscated all bingo equipment, books and accounts but laid no charges immediately against players or operators of the game at a Legion branch.

BEFORE CARDS

The players, seated before their cards on two floors of the Legion building when the raid occurred, were ordered to surrender their bingo and membership cards in the Mount Pleasant War Memorial Community Co-Operative Association, operators of the game.

Insp. J. S. Robertson, head of the vice division, took over the public address system and ordered the 1,300 players to write name, address and amount of money spent on envelopes provided.

The raid was the first step in a test case to determine if the association is a bonafide social club. It was so secret only top members of the police force knew about it in advance.

Peasants Seek Land

LIMA, Peru (AP)—The newspaper La Prensa reported Friday that eight persons were killed and 22 hurt Thursday in an attempt by Indian peasants to seize a plantation near Cuzco, in southeastern Bolivia. The plantation owner and staff fought off the Indians, the dispatch said. La Prensa said Communists led the peasants.

Mau Mau Drop Arms

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—An army of 700 Mau Mau members marched out of the forest Friday and laid down their arms. It was the biggest mass surrender thus far under Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta's independence amnesty for forest fighters.

'Pulling An Oswald' Threat Made

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—An unemployed kitchen worker who was quoted as saying he was going to Washington to "pull an Oswald" was arrested Friday on a federal warrant.

James Fancis Burns, 36, was charged under federal statutes pertaining to threats against the president. Lee Harvey Oswald was the man accused of assassinating President Kennedy.

U.S Commissioner George C. Hastings adjourned a preliminary hearing until next Tuesday and held Burns under $3,500 bond. The offence is punishable by a maximum sentence of five years and a $1,000 fine.

The complaint against Burns said the incident allegedly took place Dec. 17 in the office of William Johnston, a staff assistant in the contact division of the veterans administration.

The complaint said Burns told Johnston that "if he didn't get satisfaction on his claim for a revision of his undesirable discharge, he would go to Washington and pull an Oswald and get satisfaction one way or another."

Oswald Probe Brings Abuse On Warren

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP)—Chief Justice Earl Warren of the U.S. Supreme Court was hung in effigy Wednesday at a downtown intersection, authorities reported today.

They said they did not know who was responsible.

The life-size dummy and a five-foot sign were hoisted on a flagpole.

Sheriff's deputies said the sign read:

"Earl Warren, ex-American, head of Oswald whitewash committee, is betraying the U.S. to the international anti-Christ in the Kremlin."

Oswald Tie Too Much, Cuba Group Disbands

NEW YORK (AP)—The Fair Play for Cuba Committee, with which the late Lee H. Oswald said he was affiliated, is reported disbanding.

The New York Times quotes unidentified persons formerly active in the pro-Castro group as saying they are discussing how the committee's affairs can be wound up. But they said they are finding it difficult getting someone to attend to the liquidation.

The Times says the group began disintegrating before the Nov. 22 assassination of President John F. Kennedy, an act charged to Oswald, a self-styled Marxist.

Oswald distributed the committee's literature in New Orleans, but after the assassination the organization disowned him as a member, saying his application never had been acted on.

The committee's remaining supporters say the group was dealt a fatal blow by the disclosure that Oswald represented himself as one of its collaborators, according to The Times.

The newspaper quotes these supporters as saying that even the most ardent sympathizers of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro now want nothing to do with the organization.

The committee was founded in 1960 by Robert Taber of New York. He was succeeded as national chairman, in turn, by Richard Gibson and Vincent T. Lee. The latter resigned when the group began breaking up, prior to the assassination.

HOMES and GARDENS

BEASTALL ADVISES

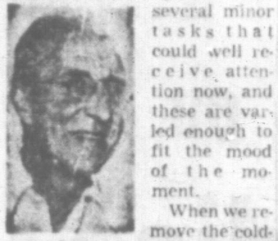
Big Jobs? No, Just Enough To Fit the Mood of Moment

As Christmas approaches most of our thoughts are concerned with things other than gardening, but between Christmas and New Year's there comes a longing to get back to the plants and the soil.

Not that the urge is for undertaking any large task. It is more a desire to be in contact with something basic, something fundamental.

Therefore we wander around the garden or greenhouse, enjoying the atmosphere and looking for some small job that will satisfy.



Jack

Fortunately, there are several minor tasks that could well receive attention now, and these are varied enough to fit the mood of the moment.

When we remove the coldframe covers to see how the plants are enduring their winter quarters, the first thing we notice is some fallen leaves in various stages of decay.

It is wise to gather these, rather than let them mould near the plants and spread fungus troubles to new growths or old crowns.

Silver Trails

We may also notice that the mild and damp weather has been to the entire satisfaction of slugs. The silvery trails indicating their journeys for food are to be seen everywhere these days, in coldframes, greenhouse, rock garden, and over herbaceous perennials in beds and borders.

No great amount of effort is needed to scatter a few slug pelets in appropriate places, but it is rewarding to provide an orgy for these nocturnal marauders to celebrate the passing of the old year and, at the same time, assure the survival of our plants.

The more energetic gardener may find time and suitable weather conditions for the spraying of the peach tree to lessen the curling of the leaves next spring.

Fungicide

In this instance we are fighting a fungus disease, the spores of which are left on the tree over winter. Therefore it is necessary to use a spray known as a fungicide.

Such sprays may be purchased under a number of trade names and most gardeners will already have a preferred brand.

The newcomer to peach growing is often uncertain as to which spray to choose and when to do the job. The best guide will be the Fruit Tree Spray Calendar which may be obtained free from the B.C. department of agriculture in the Douglas Block on Government Street.

This chart, together with its companion on vegetables, will answer questions on what to use, and when, for the most common pests and diseases found in the home garden.

Correct Timing

More important than the brand name of a spray is the thoroughness of application and the correct timing. Most of the poor results we hear about can be traced to inadequate equipment, wrong time of application, and leaving areas where the pest eggs or disease spores are untouched by the spray.

A week ago, when cutting twigs of ornamental trees for forcing into bloom indoors, we discovered several bands of tent caterpillar eggs. The presence of these provides another not too arduous year-end job.

The egg bands may glisten or be dull in appearance according to the angle of light, but they always appear as a blister formed part way around the twigs.

Easily Seen

Under a magnifying glass the individual eggs are clearly seen, 50 or more packed tightly together and glued to the twig. Removal is easily accomplished with the blade of a small pocket knife, dropping the bands into a paper bag and consigning the bag to a good, hot fire.

We are told that the egg bands may be dropped on the ground, where, if they hatch in spring, the tiny caterpillars will not be in the vicinity of tender young green shoots, their food while young.

Frequent checking of the trees will be needed over the next few weeks to eliminate even half of the bands likely to be present.

BUILT-IN BUFFET has sliding trays and removable dividers for flexible and multi-storage space.

Everything at Hand And Easily Adjusted

By PAULINE GRAVES

Built-in cabinets make the most of available wall space, occupying the area from floor to ceiling with shelves designed for specific items usually.

If they are not planned for specifc items, then bowls and vases are nested and dishes stacked so that they are hard to reach.

Here is a cabinet that keeps everything right at hand, yet it can be adjusted to store varied objects as the homemaker acquires or discards serving equipment.

The base of the cabinet has slots for trays, but the dividers are removable so that the width of the slots can be made larger or more narrow. At the side, small shelves hold serving dishes.

Completing the cabinet base are two sliding trays, placed very close together, allowing just enough room for a platter.

In this way, each platter is immediately accessible and protected from scratches that might accrue were the platters stacked. These trays would be convenient for place mat sets as well.

The upper part of the buffet differs from the normal in that the closed cupboard, which has a glass door for dust protection, starts about six inches above the base, leaving an open space for serving dishes, and trays that have daily use.

This can also be used as a small serving counter.

Giving Attic A Subfloor

If you are remodelling an attic which has no subfloor, you can provide both subfloor and underlayment in one fir plywood panel if you follow these directions:

Nails should be two inch common for the ½-inch plywood and 2½ inches for the other sizes. The nails should be spaced six inches apart on the panel edges, 10 inches apart into joists between the edges.

If you're planning on covering the plywood with resilient flooring, set the nails slightly to prevent "dimpling." Blocking is required for unsupported panel edges unless you buy panels with the new, engineered tongue-and-groove joints.

Underlayment grade plywood comes with the word "underlayment" stamped on the wood. Use the panels with the best side up.

MAKE SAFETY RULES BASIC IN WORKSHOP

By MR. FIX

You've saved nothing and accomplished nothing if, in working on some home project, you also manage to injure yourself.

Good safety practices should be learned early and practiced always when handling tools.

Work should be properly held or braced. A vice or a clamp should be used to hold material on which you are using a chisel, or any other cutting or pointed tool.

Don't attempt to hold material with one hand and drill with an electric drill with the other. It can't be done.

Keep tools in good condition. Sharp edges not only get the work done better, they also keep from slipping off the material.

Equip your files with properly fitting handles. Don't attempt to use a file without a handle. Chisel handles that are broken should be replaced. Handles on screwdrivers and other tools where replacement is impossible should never be given some makeshift repair. Throw out the tools.

If the head of a hammer or ax is loose, buy some wedges and drive them into the handle where it enters the head of the tool. Cracked or broken handles should be replaced.

If you store your tools properly they will last longer and you are less likely to be injured. Hang them when possible. Reaching into a drawer filled with sharp tools is a sure way to cut a finger.

If you own power tools safety precautions must be observed even when the tools are not in use.

Read all instructions before operating any power tool. Make certain the tool is properly wired and grounded. It should be set up solidly so that it isn't likely to tip over. Choose tools that have switches in easily accessible areas, so that the tool can be turned off quickly.

When not in use, tools should be disconected. Circuits for power tools should be separately fused whenever possible.

DRYER MAY BE NAMED

Volumes of Evidence Face New Compensation Prober

By PETE LOUDON

DRYER
. . . most familiar

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson is expected to appoint someone to a formidable task within the next few days.

The appointee has to read and digest 5,000,000 words of testimony. That amount of words would fill about 100 average-sized novels.

When he's finished there's a score of briefs, many of them book-sized, which he also must absorb.

The appointee will fill the post of royal commissioner for an inquiry into Workmen's Compensation Board matters. The submissions he must tackle are those already accepted by the late Chief Justice A. C. DesBrisay.

Then the appointee must resume hearings. At the time of the commissioner's death recently, testimony was about to be taken from the three-man board itself.

Logic suggests that Labor Minister Peterson will appoint B.C. Judge Victor Dryer to the job.

COUNSEL

That's one way of reducing the mammoth homework assignment to human proportions, because Mr. Dryer was commission counsel during most of the hearings which began in 1962.

Judge Dryer resigned the post when he was appointed last fall as a trustee of Canadian maritime unions.

But if he could now be spared from that task in Eastern Canada, it is generally felt it wouldn't be too long before he could catch up on the testimony he missed.

LONG DELAY

If anyone not as familiar with the hearings gets the job, it is likely the probe will face a delay of weeks or months.

Chief Justice DesBrisay had intended taking the hearings back into the interior at the close of sessions under way last fall in Vancouver. He had already been to Nelson and Penticton.

The royal commission had been demanded for years by B.C. labor unions. The commissioner is expected to come up with recommendations to ensure that injured workers and the families of workers killed on the job, will get just compensation, without some of the snags complained of in past years.

At the same time, the revisions must satisfy employers who finance the administration, that they are not being unjustly exploited.

DAMPENER

There is a political advantage for Premier Bennett if Labor Minister Peterson acts quickly. If the commission hearings are underway during the legislative session which begins Jan. 23, it will be impossible for the opposition to harass the government on behalf of those dissatisfied with the Compensation Act.

And it was proven at most election meetings in recent years throughout the province—a great many people are dissatisfied with it.

DISROBED

On one notable occasion in the 1960 campaign an injured worker disrobed in the aisle of the Orpheum Theatre at a Bennett rally, to show his injuries.

He was hustled out of the hall. But so far as is known he still is seeking satisfaction in his dealings with the compensation board. And the unions say his name is legion.

THEY MEAN BUSINESS!

No more warning tickets are going to be issued by police for traffic violations at the city's re-vamped Roundabout, now called Humber Circus.

Traffic police said motorists should be familiar with the new traffic pattern by this time and from now on regulations are going to be enforced.

Up to now police have mostly issued only warning tickets.

Arthur Mayse

Today we'll do a little turkey-picking, and for a start, here are some white-meat slivers from Doncaster Elementary School's brisk journal, "The News Blast-Off".

"In my opinion," a student editorial writer declares, "school should be from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 noon. This would not appeal to some people, but in this way you would have more time for fooling around in the afternoon.'

On another page, Karen Wilson of grade six indulges in some wishful thinking about the world of the future.

"The parents would be run by the children," says she, "and would be made to sweep and to drive us anywhere we wanted . . .

"You would be able to go to Earth to see all the old-fashioned cars, boats, clothes, houses that are much different from our things floating up in space.

"Then, of course, at home you would have a TV 10 yards by 10 yards and your bedroom would float in when you pushed a button so you could sleep in any room in the house.

"The clothes would be long dresses with diamond tiaras for your hair and the old clothes would be made of strong plastic so you couldn't tear them.

"That's how it would be in 2063 if I had my way."

Personally, I don't expect to be around for that brave new world, but if I were, one aspect would be all too familiar . . . the bit about parents and children!

The question of what Victoria can do to increase her intake of paying guests is still bringing in notions. Here's a set from H. H. Hughes of Sidney:

"As a drawing card, Victoria needs shows like the Black Watch band that was here this fall. All across the U.S., this show filled the arenas, and it has been proved that this type of thing always draws a crowd.

"The biggest problem is finding a place big enough to hold a spectacular like that in. Military shows are never a success unless they have concrete or blacktop underfoot, and the only place I know big enough is the new Mayfair parking lot.

"If only we could work up something of the 'tattoo' kind, and get space to produce it!

"We must find something to hold them downtown," Mr. Hughes continues, "because if they ever leave for Butchart's by car, you can kiss them goodby, as they nip on to the ferry and are gone. They can buy the same things in Vancouver, and often cheaper, so to hold them until you can bleed them, you must have something to dangle as a bribe."

That's blunt language, but there's worse to come.

"Let's face it, kid," growls Mr. Hughes from his Sidney lair, "Victoria is only a rather common, once pretty little town. The only old English charm you will ever see is around Oak Bay, and they are knocking all the old places down there, too."

* * *

Dr. Albert Trueman, chairman of Canada Council, is a book-lover who delves deep. A while ago he came up with a work titled 'Five Hundreth Pointes of Good Husbandry," written by Thomas Tusser in 1573. Among the verses with which it celebrates feast and frolic in country England is this swinging set:

Good husband and huswife
now chiefly be glad,
Things handsom to have, as they ought to be had;
They both doo provide against
Christmas doo come,
To welcome good neighbor,
good cheere to have some,
Good bread and good drinke,
a good fier in the hall
Brawne, pudding and souse,
and good mustard withall.

Beefe, mutton, and porke,
shred pies of the best,
Pig, veale, goose and capon,
and turkey well drest;
Cheese, apples and nuts, joly
Carols to heare,
As then in the countrie is counted good cheare.

What cost to good husband is any of this?
Good household provision only
it is.
Of other the like, I doo leave
out a menie
That costeth the husbandman
never a penie.

Souse, Dr. Trueman explains, is pigs' feet and ears pickled, and shred pies are mince pies, a seasonal treat which has changed but little since Tom Tusser rhymed about good eating in Elizabethan England.

Operation Cleanup Starts at Theatre

By LESLIE MILLIN

Crystal chandeliers were turned on in the old Pantages Theatre today — but they weren't bright.

Ten years' dust is crusted on every one.

By their blotchy light, Victoria University students — members of the Players Club —began to clean up the old theatre.

They were preparing it for its new role: entertainment attraction in the new civic centennial square.

In exchange, the city will give them a small donation to the club treasury, and anything in the way of props and costume they can salvage.

Ten years ago, the Totem Theatre went broke, and abandoned the place.

Today, you could get a box seat ticket easily—they were still scattered on the floor where they had been thrown when the old vaudeville house closed up.

Wilted Toulouse-Lautrec reproductions hung on the walls. Grease paint sticks still sat on dressing room ledges, and costumes were hung neatly on racks.

OLD PROGRAMS

A vault yielded bales of old programs.

Dust rose in puffs from aisle carpets, and hung in ropes on marble pillars in the foyer.

"There'll be good performances in this theatre before long," said Uvic professor Carl Hare, admiring the steep pitch of the balcony.

"There's life in the old girl yet."

Wreck School, Trustee Advises

North Ward Touches 'Social Conscience'

One Greater Victoria school trustee has come out for demolition and replacement of North Ward School as soon as possible.

Trustee Peter Bunn is the first member of the school board to take a strong stand on the question which has fired parents in the area and caused a 300-name petition to come to the board.

"BOTHERED ME"

He says the 69-year-old building is a "slum school."

He told the Times:

"When I see children in good areas going to beautiful new schools . . . then I see this terrible looking, prison-like building . . . with many children attending who haven't had the best start anyway—this has bothered me.

"They not only live in a slum area—if Victoria has slums—but they have to go to a slum school as well.

"This has touched my social conscience."

SECOND PRIORITY

Chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, trustee George Curran, said that second priority for replacement of North Ward will be recommended to the school board.

First priority, he said, will go to extra classrooms or new schools needed to end the shift system now in force at several Victoria schools.

Mr. Bunn says he has arranged with officials of the buildings and grounds department for an inspection tour of the building.

Numerous accidents—none causing injury—have occurred there in recent years.

WEAK FLOORS

Plaster has fallen from ceilings, outside masonry has collapsed, and teachers have crashed through weak floors that groan and bend when children walk on them.

The top floor of the school has been closed.

Proposed repltcement for North Ward is a 12 to 16-room school, two-storey reinforced concrete, costing between $250,000 and $300,000.

About a year ago, a government-assisted urban renewal scheme planned by the city suggested a new school site east of the present school.

BOGGED DOWN

Because of the high commercial value of the Douglas Street site, the scheme proposed selling it to pay for a new site and redevelopment in the Rose-Blanshard area.

"I don't know where it (the plan) has bogged down, whether at the federal or provincial level," says Mr. Bunn.

Mr. Curran said his committee is recommending the new school be built with or without urban renewal assistance.

University Newspapers Show Profit

Canadian campus coverage is in the black but read all over, university student editors were told in Vancouver today.

Victoria students are among more than 100 delegates attending the 26th annual Canadian University Press meeting that opened at University of B.C. and swings to Victoria tonight and Sunday.

Sidney Black, president of the C.U.P. service that supplies campus newspapers across the country, said there is a growing interchange of news and that for the first time in its history C.U.P. is operating at a profit.

OPENING SESSION

The Toronto student spoke at the opening session, in which a panel of professional newspapermen and university newspaper writers replied to questions from delegates at large.

The representatives from 30 universities from here to St. John's, Nfld., were to arrive here at about 9:30 p.m., conducting business sessions and winding up with an awards banquet Sunday.

20 Per Cent Signed JFK Tribute Here

Tribute to ex-president John F. Kennedy was supported by 20 per cent of the student body at University of Victoria in a petition sent to Ottawa as Christmas exams ended.

About 400 students signed the petition circulated by Canadian Union of Students at English and French-speaking universities across the country.

Purpose was to show the U.S. Congress the force of spirit backing the assassinated president's civil rights program.

CUS representative Roger Barnsley said more signatures might have been obtained had it not been examination time. Also, he said, some students resisted the principle.

"A lot of students felt this was none of our business," Barnsley said.

Petitions were being assembled into one at CUS Ottawa headquarters for dispatch to Congress.

Ask The Times

Q. Recently I was told that St. Boniface, Manitoba, had its own French schools. Would you please verify this? Also, what is the population of St. Boniface? S.E.L.

A. The city does have French schools. The French and Catholic culture of St. Boniface is also reinforced by St. Boniface College and French language CBC affiliates.

The city's population is 37,600.

Q. If you leave Victoria to travel to India via China, which way are you going, east or west? I. McK.

A. You are travelling west, but you are in what is known as the eastern half of the globe when you cross the international date line or the 180th degree of longitude.

Why Twist When You Can Do the Sxwaixwe?

By HUMPHRY DAVY

While the "twist" still ranks as one of the most popular dances performed at white man's festive social functions, it isn't so for members of the Salish tribe.

The large tribe which includes the Songhees and Cowichans, have their own favorite dance, a "Sxwaixwe," pronounced squi-quay.

It is performed around this time of the year and is a natural for a New Year's Eve dance.

But to perform a sxwaixwe, the dancer must wear a strange mask with protruding peglike eyes, and if possible a feathered costume.

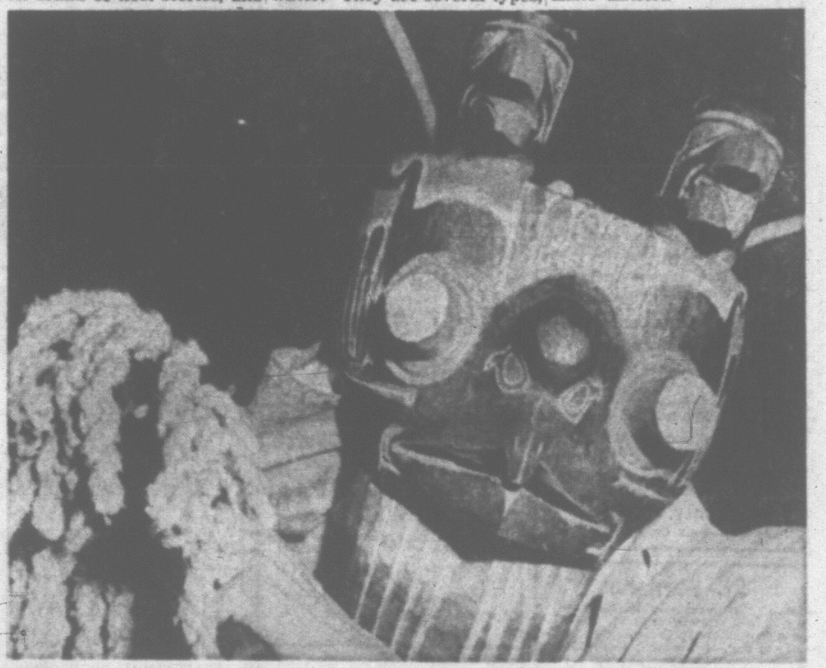
The origin of the mask and dance is lost in antiquity, but some anthropologists believe it may have been created around 1780. The dance is primarily social and most interesting to watch.

Sxwaixwe dancers at one time were hired to dance at a marriage, a potlatch or a reception for visitors. It is still a favorite with the Salish people.

There are other types of dances performed by Indians at this time of the year. Some of these are religious in nature which only few and trusted white people are allowed to see. These are known as guardian-spirit dances.

It is also a season for story-telling. The Indians have their own brand of host stories, and many of these have to do with Slalakums.

Slalakums live in the mountains and in certain bodies of water. They are several types, the best known the cannibal woman, a two-headed creature, a giant snake, and the famous hairy giants of the Harrison Lake district.



Masked dancer invokes New Year's spirit.

TOPICS of the DAY

Wilbur Walter Barkley, 3323 Oak Street, was fined $250 and lost his licence when he pleaded guilty in Esquimalt magistrate's court Friday to impaired driving.

He was arrested Christmas Eve after he crossed the centre line on Tillicum and hit an oncoming car.

Barkley told police who investigated the accident that he "had a skinful" to drink.

There were long lineups and long waits at Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen Friday, but all cars and foot passengers were accommodated by the end of scheduled runs by B.C. Toll Authority ferries.

The ferries have reverted to winter schedule of departures every two hours, after providing hourly service during the peak holiday travel period.

A 25-year-old UBC student injured in the bush near Jordan River Christmas Eve is reported to be steadily improving at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Frans Van Netten, 461 Chesterfield, broke his hip when he fell out of a tree. He is reported in good condition.

A Christmas Day fire did $2,700 damage to the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Matteson, 1485 Finlayson.

The blaze gutted the pantry, kitchen and bathroom.

The couple was asleep when the fire broke out. They barely had time to escape without being burned. Mr. Matteson tried to save some belongings but the fierce heat forced him out of the house.

DeMolay Teams Set Sights On World Monopoly Record

Members of Goldstream, Victoria, Signal Hill and Oak Bay chapters, Order of DeMolay, have launched an attack on the all-time Monopoly playing record of 132 hours.

Bob Munn of Goldstream chapter read about the record in an American sporting magazine and organized a Monopoly marathon for the Christmas holidays.

The listed world's record is held by a West Virginia University fraternity.

The boys began playing the financial game before noon Thursday and will have to continue day and night until midnight New Year's Eve to claim a record.

They are playing in shifts in a vacant store at Shelbourne shopping plaza. Each chapter is manning a token.

ALONG THE WATERFRONT

By MONTE ROBERTS

The Biggest Were There With the Mostest

Keen-eyed members of the Fraternity of Waterfront Watchers saw something to remember off Discovery Island Friday—two of the Pacific's largest towboats, each hauling one of the world's largest cargo barges, passing within a cable's length.

The two tugs, of course, were the Ss. Sudbury and Sudbury II, the biggest pair in the fleet of Island Tug and Barge Ltd.

Ss. Sudbury was hauling the Island Importer, Yarrows-built barge rated as the largest deck cargo barge in the world. Her load was 11,000 tons of limerock, from Texada Island to the Portland Cement Co. plant in Oregon.

Sudbury II had the Island Importer's twin, Island Exporter, in tow, with an equally large load of industrial salts aboard. Sudbury II was inbound for Vancouver, with 1,600 miles of ocean behind her from the port of loading, Black Warrior Lagoon, Mexico.

Two of the senior skippers of Island Tug were in command, both well-known and highly respected deep-sea towboatmen: Capt. Harley Blagborne had Sudbury II, Capt. Steve Fairhurst Ss. Sudbury.

You may have noticed the respect with which Ss. Sudbury and Sudbury II were referred to in the above paragraphs. The reason they weren't called Sudsone and Sudstwo, as has been my casual custom, is because of an admonishment received from a veteran coastal towboatman.

"Treat Ss. Sudbury with the honor due her," he advised. "She's a steamboat, and more than that, she's a steam towboat. And they don't hardly make them any more."

Aye aye, sir.

Regret to report an error in Friday's account of the perils of the British freighter Argobeam, which took aboard a huge wave off the west coast Christmas Eve.

The wheat cargo suffered no damage whatsoever, despite the fact part of a hatch cover was torn away by the wave. But about 200 tons will have to be re-stowed to correct the trim of the ship before she sets out for Japan again, probably Monday.

This seems to be explanation day. Next explanation; why I refer to the "government jetty at HMCS Naden" when the jetty in question has nothing to do with the navy or Naden.

Reason is simple: if I said "South Jetty, Government Graving Dock," most people would have trouble locating it. "At HMCS Naden" is simply a geographical description.

The fisheries protection vessel FPL Surge Rock will be launched with appropriate ceremony at McKay-Cormack Shipyards, Kingston Street, at 11:30 a.m. Jan. 11.

The lucky lady who won the honor of swinging the champagne bottle is Mrs. K. C. Lucas, wife of the assistant area director of the federal department of fisheries.

The vessel will be used in fisheries conservation and research in coastal waters and far out into the Pacific.

'In God We Trust' Civil War Message

Although so many pennies now come to church every Sunday, it was not until 1864 that the inscription, "In God We Trust," first appeared on a U.S. coin—the 2c piece.

The Catholic Digest explains that after 1864 the phrase appeared on many coins, but only since 1938, with coinage of the Jefferson nickel, have all U.S. coins carried this simple affirmation of a nation's faith.

A Protestant minister was responsible for this. The Rev. Mr. Watkinson of Ridleyville, Pa., was worried about Union defeats at Fort Sumter and Bull Run. He was concerned about the godlessness of a nation which set brother against brother in a civil war.

One November day in 1861 he wrote to Treasury Secretary Salmon P. Chase. "One fact touching our currency has hitherto been seriously overlooked," he said. "I mean the recognition of the Almighty God in some form on our coins.

"What is our republic were now shattered beyond reconstruction? Would not the antiquaries of succeeding centuries rightly reason from our past that we were a heathen nation?"

In consequence of the minister's letter, the Philadelphia mint director, James Pollock, was ordered to prepare a motto expresing the nation's recognition of its dependence upon God.

Pope to Follow Pilgrims Along Street of Sorrows

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

JERUSALEM (AP) — As countless other pilgrims to the Holy Land, Pope Paul will retrace Christ's footsteps to the cross when he walks through Jerusalem's Via Dolorosa next weekend.

From a Moslem schoolyard whose arches ring the site of Pontius Pilate's fortress, the way of the cross winds along twisting, stone-paved streets to a marble tomb where many believe Jesus was buried. The Pope is to celebrate mass there.

Dark, vaulted alleyways, soaring stone arches, cobblestone steps and close-packed bazaars where Jeruslem residents and desert tribesmen do their daily business mark Christ's path to Calvary. Parts of the "street of sorrows" are garish with tourist souvenir shops.

But for a devout pilgrim, it is simple to see this sacred city as it was that Friday almost 2,000 years ago. Many sights along the way are the same as Jesus may have seen.

NARROW STREETS

Tattooed Bedouin women appear in brightly embroidered gowns. Tribesmen in desert headdresses drive flocks of goats and sheep through ancient-stepped streets too narrow for any motor vehicle. A visitor sees haggling shopkeepers, nanging carcasses of butchered sheep, glistening fish from the Red Sea, teeming crowds—and tough Jordanian troops.

The smell of incense mixes with the bazar's scented spices every Good Friday when thousands of pilgrims sing and pray at 14 Stations of the Cross, commemorating incidents along Christ's way.

The Pope is to be met outside Jerusalem's massive Crusader Walls, rebuilt 400 years ago, at the stately Damascus Gate. On foot, he is to make his way to the first of the Stations of the Cross.

This is the scene of Christ's interrogation by Pilate, in the palace fortress called the Antonia, now the courtyard of the Umariyah School.

Nearby, in what then was also part of the fortress, Pilate's soldiers stripped Jesus of His robes, scourged Him, crowned Him with thorns and, in mockery, clad Him in purple. Here, at the second station, Pilate washed his hands and gave Jesus to the mob, saying, "ecce Homo"—behold the man.

The third station is a broken column where it is said Christ stumbled and fell under the weight of the cross. Historians say Mary, the mother of Jesus, was among the women of Jerusalem who followed Him, and above a doorway is a stone carving where she is said to have broken through the crowd to look upon her son. This is the fourth station.

At a nearby corner stands the fifth station, a chapel to Simon, who was ordered to bear Christ's cross to the foot of Calvary. Another stone arch hangs overhead where the street begins to ascend by slow steps, and here is the sixth station, where legend says Veronica gave her headcloth to Jesus to wipe the blood and sweat from His face. When He returned it, His face was printed on the cloth, and an image said to be the original was taken to St. Peter's Basilica in 1297.

Roman numerals cut into a walled archway show the seventh station, where Jesus fell again. The street here is in the midst of a bustling bazaar, roofed with stone. Outside Jerusalem's walls in Christ's time, but now near the Lutheran Hospice, is the eighth station, where he said "daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for Me but for yourselves and your children."

MONASTERY MARKS SPOT

A new Coptic monastery marks the ninth station, where tradition says Christ sank again under the weight of the cross at the foot of Calvary.

The 10th station is inside the crumbling Church of the Holy Sepulchre, with 1,600-year-old walls enclosing one of the most hallowed places of Christendom.

The next three stations are on what is believed to be Calvary, the barren hill where Christ died. Now it is a richly ornamented chapel. Ornate mosaics show the Crucifixion, glittering in the candlelight.

In a nearby rotunda, propped by scaffolding, beneath a soaring dome whose paint is flaking with age, a Byzantine chapel of marble, carved and decorated, is built above the cave that is considered Christ's tomb.

The vault, lit with lamps and candles, reveals some bare rock and a simple marble slab from the original sepulchre—the final station.

PREACHER at all services in First United Church will be Rev. Robert J. D. Morris. At 9:30 and 11 a.m. his subject will be "Taking Stock" and at 7:30 p.m. "The Story of the Other Wise Man."

Union of Ministers Brings Hope to Many

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

Story and picture in the Times on Christmas Eve, that told of an informal union here of ministers of the Roman Catholic, Anglican, Presbyterian and United Churches, brought life and meaning to the words — "Peace on Earth to men of Goodwill."

The union took place in the Chapel of the Peace of God, adjoining Bishop's Close in Christ Church Cathedral precincts.

Within the quiet, reverential atmosphere of the little chapel with its miniature altar and secluded wall lights, the ministers exchanged Christmas blessings.

I doubt if there was anyone who read the story or looked at the picture, who did not feel a warm glow of hope for the future. For this informal union not only symbolizes the harmonious relationship now existing between all churches of the Christian faith, it points the way for "men of good will" to work together as friends—not only at the Christmastide but throughout the year—in the search for peace on earth.

Other ministers in other years, in Victoria, have hoped and prayed for this melding of Christian faiths.

Back in the 20's, clergy of all denominations in Victoria, met together informally once a month, during the winter seasons, to discuss theology, philosophy, matters of religion and the social problems faced from day to day.

Leaders were Dr. W. Leslie Clay, a Presbyterian; Bishop Alex MacDonald of the Roman Catholic religion and the Anglican Bishop C. D. Schofield.

First meeting of the season was always held in the Clay home on Linden Avenue with Dr. Clay as chairman. Each week the gathering moved to another locale including both Bishop's Close and the Bishop's Palace.

Members of this group did not live long enough to see their dream of harmony between churches of the Christian faith fulfilled.

However, their friendships, their beliefs and their prayers, helped form the foundation upon which today's closer understandinging is built.

Will Legend Heard Long Ago Come True?

To me the story and the picture, brought the memory of a legend I had heard many years ago, into clear, sharp focus.

The legend was told to a group of teen-age girls by a Sunday school teacher who had a flare for the dramatic and a good speaking voice that held our attention at all times.

In the beginning, she said, there was a gateway to the Garden of Eden, made of shimmering, precious and semi-precious stones.

When the day came for Adam and Eve to leave the Garden, an angel with a flaming sword smashed the gateway into many pieces.

Those pieces, each one perfect in its own way, flew far and wide with the force of the sword stroke.

And, where each piece settled back to earth, in time, a religion sprang up.

Some pieces were very small and where they settled, small groups were born. Others were so large, they were the founding stones of major religions. Each piece, in its own way, brought comfort and hope to the peoples of the world.

I can still hear the Sunday school teacher's voice ring out strong and clear as she concluded the legend.

Only as the pieces are brought together again, and fitted into a complete whole, will we ever have peace on earth and goodwill toward all men.

"Tapestry" by well-known Canadian swim suit designer proves that fashion and real figure-making magic are wonderfully compatible. The overbloused, shorted silhouette sends many a perplexed figure problem into hiding under a chic facade that is one part shape, one part fabric and one part pure design wizardry.

In Step With Style

Cotton to Kidskin In Chic Swimsuits

Damaske

Sun seekers are on the move!

Those fortunate enough to be taking winter vacations are putting away holiday decorations until next December and packing suitcases with swimsuits, beach shifts and shorts.

Winter holidays become more popular each year, and right now, after the hectic rush of the Yuletide, what could be more inviting than sun-warmed sand and the soft splash of clear water on your toes?

Hawaii, Acapulco and Palm Springs are popular haunts for Westcoasters and whether you prefer the dry desert air or the warm ocean breeze, your wardrobe requirements will be the same.

Cotton is your best friend in all these areas. There is always marvellous one-day laundry service, but dry cleaning can be a problem, especially if you are on the move.

Your swimwear could be cotton, wool, jersey or any miracle material. A swimsuit of any fabric dries so quickly it is of no concern.

The look of swimwear for 1964 is contradictory, sophisticated, sexy, demure and flirty. There is a look for the active swimmer and one for the gal who never really gets wet but loves the sun and sand.

The knitted look with built up bodice gives utter freedom of movement and a feeling of security to the gal who likes to put her face in the water and do her pool laps or ocean mile each day.

One famed designer predicts a strong return to the strapless suit for the sun worshipper who wants evenly tanned shoulders.

A new innovation for this Canadian, who began her career in Vancouver, is a kidskin swimsuit. French glove leather, fully tested, and fitting like a second skin, is included in the 1964 collection. The sportive look brings natural suede to the swimwear field.

There are suits of mohair, wool jersey, Helenca knit, Swiss embroidered batiste, cotton print, spandex and luscious velvet.

If you are ready to flap your wings and fly due south your most important wardrobe item will be your swimsuit or swimsuits if you really want to be "in the swim".

Hear Vows

Out-of-town guests in Victoria to attend today's wedding of Miss Linda Marrion and Mr. Murray Ruehlen include Mr. and Mrs. M. Callister of Jasper, Alta.; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Richards of Terrace; Mrs. J. Shafer, Portland; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Radford and Miss C. Weir of North Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sparks of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Boyle of Prince George, and Miss D. Maedel, Alberni.

Naval Uniforms Worn At Friday's Wedding

Naval dress uniforms of the groom and his attendants added color to Friday evening's wedding in St. Andrew's Chapel in HMCS Naden, when Dorothy Anne Ditlevson exchanged vows with AB Roy Lawrence Smith, RCN.

White candles flanked the chancel for the ceremony at which Chaplain W. L. Dalton officiated.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Eric M. Ditlevson, 2167 Amity Drive, and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Smith of Courtenay, B.C.

Given in marriage by her father, the petite bride wore a floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta. Fitted bodice featured a scalloped neckline and the full skirt swept back to a slight train. Her illusion net veil misted from a large crystal and pearl flower. Red carnations were in her bouquet.

Identical gowns of turquoise blue chiffon over taffeta, with white accessories and white carnation bouquets were choice of maid of honor, Miss Carol Nicholls, North Vancouver, and bridesmaid, Miss Lorraine Smith, Courtenay, the groom's sister.

AB B. D. Sturch, RCN, was best man and AB R. L. S. Fransden, RCN, ushered guests to their pews.

Red candles and holly flanked the wedding cake on the bride's table at a reception in Olde England Inn. The cake had been made by the bride's mother.

N. Shillitto proposed the toast to the bride's happiness. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. Nicholls of North Vancouver and K. Larsen, Hussar, Alta.

For her going-away ensemble the bride chose a gold tailored suit, black accessories and rose corsage.

After a honeymoon trip up-Island, the newlyweds will make their home in Victoria.

Canadian Club Cancel Meeting

Announcement is being made by the Victoria Women's Canadian Club that the meeting arranged for Friday, January 3, in the Empress Hotel at 2:30 p.m., has been cancelled owing to the illness of the speaker, Prof. J. J. Cohen of Montreal.

Leave Today For E. Africa

DUNCAN — Dr. and Mrs. David Lott were guests of honor at a recent farewell party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Maxwell, and sponsored by the Cowichan District Riding Club. Dr. Lott has accepted a position with the Tanganyika government and he and his family left today for Edmonton for a brief visit with Mrs. Lott's relatives before travelling on to East Africa.

The family includes four children who were all born in the Cowichan district during Dr. Lott's 15-year practice as a veterinarian. They are Patricia, 14; Beth, 13; Mark, 9, and Bruce, 8.

Gifts to the family included separate sets of travelling luggage presented to the couple by W. A. King, president of the local riding club.

Dr. David Reed, Vancouver, will take over Dr. Lott's veterinarian duties in the district.

Ruehlen-Marrion Vows Exchanged

Miss Linda Joy Marrion made a lovely picture as she entered Fairfield United Church this afternoon for her marriage to Murray Dennis Ruehlen.

Her floor-length gown of white peau de soie was styled with a graceful belled skirt and topped with a jacket of hand-embroidered peau de soie. It was styled with a high neckline, lily point sleeves and tiny pearl buttons from neck to waistline at back.

The fingertip veil of French net misted from a white peau de soie pillbox headpiece. Red roses and white chrysanthemums were in the cascade bouquet. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace and earrings, gift of the groom.

Dr. H. K. Johnston heard the marriage vows between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Marrion, 453 Arnold Avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Ruehlen of Terrace, B.C.

Allan Dahlo, Vancouver, sang "Because" during the signing of the register. Chrysanthemums were at the altar and pews were marked with sprigs of holly. Mr. Marrion gave his daughter in marriage.

Short-length gowns of deep red peau de soie with matching jackets were choice of matron of honor, Mrs. R. Urchison and bridesmaid, Miss Joan Sands. They had pill box hats to match.

Miss Susan Metcalfe wore a floor-length flower girl dress of white peau de soie with matching pill box hat.

All carried white fur muffs, accented with a red fabric rose and holly.

Bob Miller, Winnipeg, was best man and ushering guests were Bill McConnell, North Vancouver, and Bryan Marrion, the bride's brother.

Red roses, matching those in her bouquet, decorated the bride's table at a reception at the Carlton Club. Robert Dunkley proposed the toast to the bride.

B. Marrion and R. Vink entertained with trumpet and accordion selections.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to Portland, Ore., the bride wore a white wool dress, black fur-trimmed coat, white feathered hat and black accessories.

Newlyweds will make their home in Vancouver.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Pay the Piper!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The daughter of my husband's boss was married recently and someone in the office decided that a collection should be taken up for a wedding present. My husband said that since we were not invited to the wedding, and didn't socialize with the boss, he didn't want to chip in on the present. The girl collecting the money said he was entitled to his opinion, and she let it go at that. Well, it seems a gift was bought for $90, and through some mistake, my husband's name got on the card. He got a nice personal "thank you" from the boss himself, but he didn't tell the boss that his name got on the card by mistake, and he didn't deserve any thanks. The office people think my husband should kick in with five dollars since he got credit for being in on the gift. What do you think? HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Having accepted the unearned "thank you," your husband should kick in with the five dollars.

DEAR ABBY: A girl who works with us got a genuine mink stole from her boy friend for Christmas. What do you think she gave him?

THE OFFICE GANG

DEAR GANG: It wasn't the cold shoulder.

DEAR READERS: A police department I know prepared 10 easy rules for raising a delinquent. And here they are:

1. Begin at infancy to give the child everything he wants. In this way he will grow up to believe the world owes him a living.

2. When he picks up bad words, laugh at him. This will make him think he's cute.

3. Never give him any spiritual training. Wait until he is 21, and then let him "decide for himself."

4. Pick up everything he leaves lying around—books, shoes, clothes. DO everything for him so that he will be experienced in throwing all responsibility on others.

5. Quarrel frequently in his presence. In this way he will not be too shocked when the home is broken later.

6. Give a child all the spending money he wants. Never let him earn his own. Why should he have things as tough as you had them?

7. Satisfy his every craving for food, drink and comfort. Denial may lead to harmful frustrations.

8. Take his part against neighbors, teachers, policemen. They are all prejudiced against your child.

9. When he gets into real trouble, apologize for yourself by saying "I never could do anything with him."

10. Prepare for a life of grief. You are bound to have it.

Usher in the New Year With Party Noisemakers

By PENNY SAVER

The other day, Penny went on an "all-out" search for something with which to usher in the New Year. For she believes, like you, that no New Year's Eve party is complete without midnight noisemakers.

The loudest of all gadgets she found is a tin box with a wooden handle, that, twirled around, makes a grating sound. Also made of tin are colorful bells and plates with a wooden hammer on the back. All these gadgets are priced at 15 cents each.

In the line of blowers are musical cigarettes which sell at six for 15 cents; party blowouts, three for 10 cents, and novelty blowouts, three for 10 cents. The last named have cardboard faces of Indians, cowboys and lions attached to them.

Of course, we musn't forget our hats. Another shop has all sorts, sizes and shapes of party hats priced at five cents each.

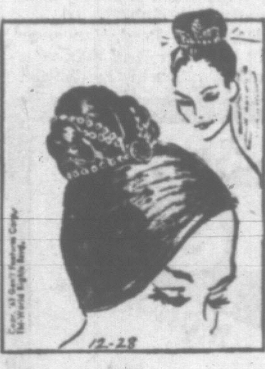
Decorations are also on the list for party purchases and this shop has balloons priced at 50 cents a dozen. Garlands and lanterns sell at 10 cents each.

If you are having an informal gathering around the fireplace and decorations and noisemakers are out, why don't you try having on hand some small gifts for your visitors?

Multicolored matches will delight everyone and price is only 50 cents for nine packages.

Matches also come with an extra long stick and are practical for lighting the fireplace. Large round box of these is priced at $2.50.

If you are looking for party ideas let Penny help. Call 382-3131.



BE SMART—

Well, we know you want a really gala coiffure for all the future parties and we can't imagine a more dramatic one than this. Excitingly stark with ends drawn up to form high foil for jewels, tiara, bright plumage. Hair too short? Just use hairpiece!

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

One Step Toward More Weight Could Be Vitamins

Every few months I help the would-be gainers out. Here are some directions if you wish to gain weight and become more curvaceous. Women who are very much underweight, with straight up and down legs and a flat chest are as unhappy as those who fight rolls and bulges.

Lowman

Perhaps just the following four additions to your daily routine will be all that is needed.

One: Be sure that you get enough sleep regularly. You may need as much as eight or nine hours.

Two: Add more milk to your diet. Drink a glass at midmorning and mid-afternoon and before going to sleep at night. Some women find that a soft drink with a small amount of cream added is very good and adds to the calorie intake. At any rate, drink whole milk.

Three: Take a daily walk or swim. These are relaxing if you do not indulge in them in a strenuous manner. Most underweights are tense and swimming and walking are corrective measures for this handicap. Be sure to breathe in deeply as you walk.

Four: Take vitamin B complex. Brewers' yeast is a good and inexpensive source.

Consider the following possibilities: Do you have diseased tonsils or adenoids or teeth; do you have indigestion or an overactive thyroid?

Sometimes the simple measure of planning your life so that you do not have to rush and feel hurried a lot of the time is the best of all.

Married in City Church, To Live at Port Alberni

After a honeymoon trip up Island, Mr. and Mrs. Wermart Van Deventer will make their home at Port Alberni.

Rev. R. W. Popma officiated at the ceremony in the Christian Reformed Church which united Gerda Johanna Bomhof, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bomhof, 4353 Wilkinson Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Van Deventer, 1225 Rudlin Avenue.

Pink and white chrysanthemums decorated the church for the occasion. Organist was B. Olivier.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white silk brocade, styled with a fitted bodice featuring a scoop neckline and lily point sleeves. Waistline dipped to a V at back and had a bow accent at front. The skirt had a slim front panel and soft deep pleats gave fullness to sides and back. Tiny matching buttons trimmed a back fastening. A headpiece of chiffon petals and orange blossom held the elbow-length veil. White ribbons edged her colonial bouquet of deep pink roses and camellia leaves.

Miss Ko Bomhof, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. Her turquoise blue gown was a short-style replica of the bride's. A matching bandeau and bow and pink carnation bouquet completed her outfit.

Christina Bomhof made a charming flower girl in a short full-skirted frock of turquoise silk brocade and toning head bow. Her bouquet was a a miniature copy of the senior attendant's.

Gowns of the bride and her attendants were made by the bride's mother.

Best man was H. Kuyvenhoven and ushering guests were William Bomhof, Hans Bomhof and William Spyksma.

B. van Der Heiden proposed the toast to the bride at a reception held in her parents' home. Pink and white candles and chrysanthemums in same shades set decor.

Leaving on honeymoon, the bride wore a leaf green suit, complemented with black leather accessories.

It's . . . Open Season on Bachelors

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! All single men in Victoria, including the seven pictured on this page tonight, will need to beware once the New Year arrives, of the age-old Leap Year custom that allows a girl to propose to the one of her choice any time between January 1 and Leap Year Day which falls on Saturday, February 29, 1964.

The custom maintains that if the proposal is accepted, wedding bells will ring before the end of the year. If it is refused, then the man pays the young lady a forfeit to help dry her tears of disappointment. 'Tis said this forfeit must be a new dress. S-o-o-o! Let us repeat! All single men in Victoria BEWARE! It's open season on bachelors until the end of February, 1964.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD JACOBY

John R. Crawford of New York is one of the finest and most colorful players of all time. Almost anything can and does happen when Johnny is at the table. Unquestionably his falsecard in a rubber bridge game at Newport was the most sensational of the year 1963.

Opening lead—♠10

South was pretty proud of his restraint in opening with only one club. He had 23 points, but in addition he had better than six old-fashioned honor tricks. So once North responded to that one club opening, South was on his way to a slam and would probably have gone all the way to seven had North shown a king in reponse to South's five no-trump Blackwood call.

Johnny was looking at a lot of cards in defence against six no-trump, but it never occurred to him to double. He did not want to show the location of all those picture cards.

When he saw dummy, Johnny was really glad that he hadn't doubled. Obviously, South held all the missing aces and kings and if he could bring those six diamond tricks he would have his slam.

It also looked as if South would bring those six diamond tricks home unless Johnny could create an illusion for him.

That is just what Johnny did. South finessed dummy's queen of diamonds at trick two and Johnny dropped the jack.

South returned to his hand with a club, led a diamond, played dummy's ten and was about to claim a grand slam when Johnny produced the king. Instead of making all the tricks South wound up going down four.

FRONTIERS OF SCIENCE

THE LASER - Part 5

LASER LIGHT, BECAUSE OF ITS "PURE" WAVELENGTH AND VERY HIGH FREQUENCY OF VIBRATION, CAN CARRY MUCH MORE INFORMATION THAN RADIO WAVES.
AS LASER LIGHT IS BLOCKED BY CLOUDS AND FOG, LIKE ORDINARY LIGHT, SUCH TV RELAY BEAMS WOULD BE "PIPED" THROUGH GAS-FILLED TUBES, WHICH COULD BE OPTICALLY "BENT" AROUND CORNERS!
(NEXT WEEK: FROM LASER TO DEATH-RAY.)
THEORETICALLY, A SINGLE LASER BURST LASTING ONLY A FIVE-THOUSANDTH OF A SECOND COULD CARRY CODED INFORMATION EQUIVALENT TO 200,000 WORDS—THE LENGTH OF "GONE WITH THE WIND"!
A LASER LIGHT BEAM COULD THEREFORE BE USED TO RELAY HUNDREDS OF TV PROGRAMS SIMULTANEOUSLY, WHEREAS MICROWAVE LINKS CARRY ONLY ONE TV RELAY.

SOCCER UPSETS

West Ham Upsets Blackburn Squad

LONDON (AP)—Right-winger John McLeod scored two goals in Arsenal's 4-1 victory at Birmingham and helped move the London team into a challenging fourth place in the English League soccer standings.

Blackburn, the league leaders lost 3-1 at home to West Ham United. Tottenham Hotspur, the second team in the standings, went under 2-0 at home to West Bromwich Albion. Liverpool's match against Stoke was postponed because of an unfit ground.

Blackburn now tops the standings with 34 points from 26 matches followed by Tottenham with 33 points from 24 games. Liverpool has 32 points from 23 matches and Arsenal totals 31 from 26 games.

Only six points separate the 10 top teams in the First Division as the program passed the halfway mark.

It was a day of revenge for three teams. West Ham, trounced 8-2 on its own ground by Blackburn on Thursday, turned the tables by winning at Blackburn; Ipswich, 10-1 loser at Fulham, won 4-2 on its own ground, and Manchester United, defeated 6-1 by Burnley, won 5-1 today.

Centre-forward Johnny Byrne was the man who got revenge for West Ham at Blackburn. Byrne scored two second-half goals—one in the 58th minute and another seven minutes later—to give West Ham a 3-1 win.

STREAK ENDS

Two goals in two minutes wrecked Tottenham's unbeaten run at home in the league this season. A crowd of 48,000 saw the two teams play a goalless first half. Then inside-right Ron Fenton scored in the 58th minute and a minute later right-winger Ken Foggo whipped in West Brom's second for a 2-0 win.

Arsenal led Birmingham 2-1 at half-time and goals from left-winger George Armstrong and McLeod in the second half wrapped up the match.

Manchester United took the steam out of Burnley with two goals in three minutes. Inside-left David Herd got the first in the 10th minute and the second came from Graham Moore. Left-winger George Best, a 17-year-old, made it 3-0 for Manchester before half-time. Moore and Herd got two more goals for Manchester in the second half and now Manchester is fifth in the standings with 30 points—only four behind the leader.

Ipswich is at the bottom of Division I with only 11 points. Bolton is next to the bottom with 13 and Blackpool is third from the foot with 17.

Leeds United, defeated 2-0 at Sunderland, hangs on to a one-point lead in the Second Division. Leeds has 37 points followed by Sunderland and Preston with 36 each.

Lobbyist Press LBJ On Lumber Label Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson has received a number of pleas to veto legislation that would force country-of-origin labels on all repackaged imports as well as on every stick of sawn lumber from Canada.

Organizations representing major U.S. industries, importers and even women interested in politics have urged him to kill the bill, partly on the grounds that the legislation presents a threat to Canadian trade.

Those supporting the legislation said they have flooded the White House with argument in support of the bill.

Diplomatic and trade attention is being focussed on the outcome of this bill because of the clues it may provide as to Johnson's trade philosophy.

Canadian and other authorities opposed to the bill have described it as a product of protectionists who want to hamper and curtail imports. The Canadian government has lodged a number of formal protests against the measure.

Attention also is being intensified because of the approaching veto deadline. Johnson received the legislation from Congress last week and had 10 days in which to exercise a veto. That 10-day period expires next Tuesday.

Adventist Thanks Victoria Donors For Mission Help

John Penner, local director of the Seventh-Day Adventist Missions Appeal, today issued a statement of thanks to citizens of Victoria.

Mr. Penner said "The people of Victoria have demonstrated their regard for the less fortunately situated."

Funds collected by volunteer workers during the appeal go toward extending a world ministry of welfare, disaster aid, educational, medical and spiritual services at home and in 195 other lands.

The church operates 2,762 health and welfare units in addition to 239 medical units around the world. All activities are co-ordinated with the master plans of civil authorities.

Japan Exports Meat

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan will export various kinds of meat, chiefly beef, to the United States shortly. The way for such exports was cleared Friday after the government designated meat processing plants for the purpose.

Atomic Ills Kill 41 In Hiroshima

HIROSHIMA, Japan (P)—The Hiroshima Atomic Casualties Hospital reports 41 persons died this year of so-called "atomic bomb diseases" — illnesses attributed to the 1945 atomic bomb drop on this city. This is one more than last year.

The latest victim was a girl born in Hiroshima two days after the bomb fell. The hospital said she died of acute leukemia of the marrow last month.

The hospital also said malignant tumor patients had risen from one in 1956 to 44 this year, while leukemia cases dropped from a peak of 15 in 1958 to an average of seven or eight a year now.

Since it was opened in September, 1956, the hospital has treated 152,495 patients with illnesses it says resulted from atomic causes.

Saved Chief, Aide Dies

ADEN (Reuters)—British diplomat George Henderson died Friday of wounds suffered when he threw himself in the way of his chief to protect him from a grenade explosion, it was announced today.

Henderson, 42, assistant high commissioner in the South Arabian Federation, saved British high commissioner Sir Kennedy Trevaskis from serious injury when the grenade exploded among a crowd at Aden Airport Dec. 10.

Henderson was one of 39 persons wounded in the blast that occurred as a group of British and Aden officials were about to board a plane to fly to London for talks. An Indian woman was killed.

Trevaskis was only slightly injured.

Henderson Thursday was awarded Britain's George Medal, a civilian award for gallantry.

ENGINEER ON JOB

Whistle Tester Howls in Forest

LADYSMITH—A one-time "whistle punk" is operating near here what is believed to be the only whistle and horn testing centre in Canada.

He is Robert E. Swanson, chief inspecting engineer for the B.C. department of commercial transport and inventor of warning horns used on diesel engines. Most of the major railways in North America have their diesels outfitted with Swanson horns.

The centre is located about 30 miles northwest of Ladysmith in Crown Zellerbach Nanaimo Lakes logging division.

The equipment consists of a king-sized version of a multiple speaker stereo set. It is powered by a steam boiler once used to run a log loader.

Sound-producing devices ranging from high-pitched donkey engine whistle to deep-throated, thundering foghorns are tested on the unique installation.

POWER SOURCE

It was in 1951 when Mr. Swanson was seeking a place to conduct his tests that his brother Danny, a veteran company employee, suggested that the "old steam pot" which lay rusting in the Nanaimo Lakes logging area, might be utilized as a source of power.

An inspection showed the boiler, once used to power an A-frame loading winch, could be rehabilitated.

Today, what appears to be a rustic mountain cabin at the lakes actually contains an orderly array of control levers and dials.

The power plant can produce steam or air to test his warning devices. Although miles from power lines, the place is equipped with fluorescent lighting powered by a small steam turbine.

Transport Aid Asked For Retarded

PORT ALBERNI—John B. Walkin, president of the Retarded Children's Association, has asked the school board to take over the responsibility of transporting retarded children to school.

He said the association is finding it too expensive to operate a special bus.

The bus in operation now travels 74 miles to pick up and deliver 13 children to school.

District superintendent of schools, W. H. Gurney said: "It would seem a logical extension of the board's services to these pupils."

The issue will be settled at the school board's next meeting.

Medical Officer Claims School Not Sanitary

School medical inspector Dr. G. H. Bonham has protested to the school board about unsanitary conditions in Alberni Elementary School.

In a letter, he recommended more regular cleaning of washrooms plus the insallation of tile floors and more soap dispensers.

He said the halls had a "dirty, scruffy appearance," and should be washed regularly.

Former Island School Teacher Dies at 89

Rev. Emma Smiley of Victoria Truth Centre officiated.

Miss King was a former teacher at Denman Island and Colwood and for many years conducted a kindergarten at 302 Douglas Street. At the time of her death, she was a patient at West Bay private hospital.

She is survived by three nieces—Mrs. A. Adams, Mrs. G. Kinsey and Mrs. N. Walker, all of Victoria, and two nephews, Clifford Vye and Reginald Emery, of Victoria.

SWIM POOL FIRST

Many Projects On Agenda In Esquimalt

By RON SUDLOW

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele today looked into 1964 and saw a busy year shaping up for the incoming council.

Probably one of the first matters to be dealt with by council will be the proposed municipal swimming pool.

This will be presented informally at a public meeting before putting a money bylaw before the ratepayers.

Also awaiting council's attention next year are results of Greater Victoria traffic and sewer studies.

The reeve said the traffic study will have a direct bearing on the present Gorge bridge renewal proposal.

Reeve Wurtele also indicated council will be giving some serious thought to a centennial project.

"Our pet project is the beautification of the Gorge waterway," he said, "but we will give the other municipalities our full co-operation.

"Other matters which must be reviewed are land use, boulevards, road maintenance, development of parks, recreation and protection for small boats and boat ramps."

Looking back over 1963, Reeve Wurtele saw another year of record spending for Esquimalt.

For the second year in a row the municipality's budget exceeded the million mark at $1,216,000.

Revenues to Top Estimates

And projected figures indicate revenues will exceed estimates by five or six thousand dollars.

Tax collections in the municipality are going well. Only $7,880 remained uncollected Nov. 30.

Perhaps the biggest step taken by Esquimalt council during 1963 was establishing a recreation commission, the reeve said.

The municipality employed recreation director Harold Moist who now plans for various recreational expenditures and assists council in developing available facilities.

Supervised playground activities were also sponsored by the newly-formed recreation commission this year.

The reeve said he is satisfied with the operation of Esquimalt Sports Centre, but hoped it could be put to better use, possibly through minor lacrosse, during the summer months.

Roads, parks and boulevards showed general improvement in 1963 under winter works projects.

Reeve Wurtele noted big improvements to Kinsmen Gorge Park and Highrock Park.

Street Lighting Improved

"There has also been a great improvement on street lighting during the past year. Mercury vapor lights have been installed at all major intersections," he said.

Another of the year's highlights was the sale of lots in the Rockheights area.

In November, 11 of 15 lots put on sale were bought in 20 minutes. One woman camped three nights in the Municipal Hall, spelled off by her husband and a hired man.

"There's still plenty of room for development there without taking away any of the green belts," the reeve said.

"There's also a site for a school up there and we hope it won't be too long before the school board takes that up."

Reeve Wurtele said the "most distressing" event of 1963 for Esquimalt was the loss through death of Coun. G. K. Sammon.

Sisters Catching Up On 58 Missing Years

Three sisters who have been apart since 1905 had a happy Christmas reunion in Victoria.

They are Mrs. Ninian Black, 68, of 741 Cloverdale; Mrs. Albert Weber, 73, Vancouver, and Mrs. Joseph Bergeron, 79, of Espanola, Ont.

Mrs. Bergeron left her home in October to travel to the West Coast, meeting other members of the family en route.

Their father, David Turcotte, lived at Sturgeon Falls, Ont., and worked as a logger and prospector. In 1905 the family moved to Saskatchewan, but Mrs. Bergeron stayed in the east.

PRAIRIE HOMESTEAD

Mr. Turcotte homesteaded in Saskatchewan until his death in 1937. Meantime, other members of the family married and moved away.

The others are Villena, 74, of Prince Albert; Alvina, 62, Saskatoon; Lesime, 66, Makwa, Sask.; Hattie, 72, Vancouver; Angeline, 72, Campbellville, Ont.; David 60, Terrace, B.C., and Francis, 54, in Moose Jaw

Reds Ready in '64 For Flights to U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Russians are ready to begin direct air service between New York and Moscow next summer, provided the United States agrees.

Najeeb E. Halaby, administrator of the U.S. Federal Aviation Agency (FAA), said Friday he expected President Johnson and the state department to decide within a month whether to sign an agreement establishing such a service

Halaby, just back from a trip to Moscow where he discussed technical and operational problems involved, said, "The Russians are ready to sign now. They say they can start proving flights this spring and will be ready to start service by summer."

Halaby indicated that the technical problems could be worked out in five or six months. These consist principally of making sure that the Russian state airline, Aeroflot, will be able to navigate safely in the congested airspace around New York's Kennedy (formerly Idlewild) Airport and use U.S. navigational aids.

THWARTS SHAREHOLDERS

Donald Farris Quits Before Being Ousted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Unhappy shareholders of Combined Estates Limited met here Friday in a move to oust President Donald F. Farris and other members of the board.

The shareholders discovered, however, that Mr. Farris and two other officers had held a directors' meeting Dec. 23 at which the only business was the submission of their resignations.

When Mr. Farris failed to show up at Friday's meeting, called by him on the demand of the shareholders, J. Earl White, who was holding proxies for 82 per cent of the share votes, was elected chairman.

Discovering the minute book of the company was not at hand, he ordered it brought in. A secretary thumbing through it found that a directors' meeting had been held Dec. 23 attended only by Mr. Farris, Lauch F. F. Farris and John R. Mackay, who had submitted their resignations.

"For four days, Combined Estates has had no directors or officers," said Mr. White.

Other directors, including Ralph K. Farris, had resigned earlier.

The meeting elected nine directors who in turn named Mr. White president of Combined Estates, a holding company which owns 10 per cent of 19 companies involved in apartment rentals.

B.C. Estates Limited, another company, holds management contracts to run the properties held by the 19 companies. Donald Farris is head of B.C. Estates.

New Welsh Translation Of Bible Set

LONDON (CP) — About 15 eminent Welsh scholars are about to translate the Bible into Welsh for the first time since 1588.

Prof. Bleddyn J. Roberts, director of the translation work, says a new version is needed because of the changes in the meaning of Welsh words since the days of the Armada. He expects the work will take 10 years to complete.

He doesn't expect there will be many sweeping changes. The 1588 edition, the work of a Bishop Morgan, had such an impact on the language that much of modern-day literary Welsh is still biblical in tone.

"We are not going to change for the sake of change but for the sake of correction," says Pof. Roberts.

Father, Son Die On Mountain Hike

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — The frozen bodies of a 12-year-old boy and his teacher-columnist father awaited return today from the slopes of Mt. Index.

Exposure and exhaustion claimed their lives Thursday, as a post-Christmas family climb turned into a tragedy.

Dead are outdoors columnist Horace Gates, 42, who also taught in a Seventh-Day Adventist school, and his son Frank.

Two other sons, William, 17, and Louis, 13, survived.

William struggled down the mountain in the darkness Thursday night and led rescuers back to the spot where his father lay with one arm around Frank. Louis was alive nearby.

Wiliam said that during the climb he looked around to see that his youngest brother had collapsed. He and Louis built a fire and tried to bring their father and Frank to the warmth but the pair could not make it.

A helicopter stood by here today to bring the bodies off the mountain if necessary and if weather permitted.

A tragic aftermath of the two deaths took the life of Tom Carson, 48, a veteran photographer for the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

He died early today of injuries suffered Friday as he and reporter Jack Jarvis, 51, were returning from covering the story at Mt. Index.

Officers said Jarvis was driving Carson's car when it collided near Snohomish with a car driven by Gilbert V. Arthur, 33, of Springfield, Ore.

Arthur, his wife, Jolene, 24, and Jarvis were in satisfactory condition in hospital at Seattle.

DESECRATION was charged today by Victoria tree lovers when they learned that highways work crews last week cut down one of the areas most famous groves of dogwood. Seven stumps now border West Saanich Road, overlooking Heal's Range, at a point where thousands have stopped to admire or take pictures of the trees in blooming season. Victoria city parks boss Herb Warren says the stand was the last of the really fine dogwood trees in the district. He disagrees that the trees were a traffic hazard since the road was widened and says the province should have taken other steps if there was concern—even to changing the roadway to avoid the trees. He charged the department with being heavy-handed. (Halkett photo.)

CABINET MINISTERS RESIGN

Liberals Take Gamble In Opening Two Seats

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—In putting two of its seats up for by-election grabs, the Pearson minority government is risking a reduction in its ability to control Parliament and remain in power.

Having won 129 seats in the April general election, the Liberals fell four seats short of holding an absolute majority in 265-seat commons.

With the resignation from their Montreal seats of Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier and Postmaster General Azellus Denis, announced Friday, and the calling of Feb. 10 byelections, The Pearson government apparently is taking a calculated risk.

Sources say the government feels it has a good chance to win both byelections because the constituencies involved have been solidly Liberal for years—even through the massive electoral victory won by the Progressive Conservatives in 1958.

Should the Liberals be surprised and lose the two byelections, these sources say, they would quickly recognize the need to do some fence-mending.

They don't fear a defeat in the house, and consequent general election through loss of the two seats because they are confident the Social Credit MPs and New Democrats will continue to vote with the government to avoid an early election.

Prime Minister Pearson now has made a start on his cabinet shuffle—the first since taking office.

Chevrier and Denis are both veteran Liberal MPs.

They will be given other jobs and will continue in an active capacity as heads of their departments until their new appointments.

Mr. Pearson also announced at a press conference that

Plane Shot Down

JAKARTA (AP)—Indonesia claimed today its troops shot down an "enemy" reconnaissance plane along the Indonesia-Malaysia border on the island of Borneo, killing one of the two crewmen.

Only Sad Stumps Left Of Noble Dogwoods

By PETE LOUDON

One of the most beautiful clusters of dogwood on the Saanich Peninsula has been sacrificed for highway improvement.

The trees were felled last week on West Saanich Road near Heal's Rifle Range by the B.C. highways department.

They had been an outstanding attraction for years and had been photographed by thousands of passersby.

ROAD WIDENED

Residents in the area said the destruction of the trees was undertaken because the road was widened recently. The loss is justified according to some. But most people who knew the trees hover between rage and tears.

Victoria city parks superintendent W. H. Warren was upset by the news.

"Good species of dogwood are exceedingly rare. I can't point to one good dogwood in the area any more.

HEAVY HANDED

He said, "I think all the operations of the highways department are heavy handed when it comes to trees. These have been a landmark for 50 years. They were no traffic hazard.

Mr. Warren said a dogwood lasts for 80 to 100 years and he said the trees just felled were getting on to maturity "but would last for many years ordinarily."

The trees had fronted the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Harvey for 35 years that they have lived there.

"I call it a crime," said Mr. Harvey.

He said the branches of the dogwoods had been brushing the tops of the Vancouver Island Coach Line buses and "they kicked up a fuss."

RUINED THEM

Mr. Harvey said a man recently was sent out to prune the trees, "but he ruined them."

Mrs. Harvey, who has another fine dogwood clump in her yard, was more philosophical.

"The trees were badly decayed and three of the branches were gone." She said that as close to the road as they were, they consti-

PLASTIC HEART MAY BE BETTER THAN THE REAL ONE

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A surgeon whose father died of a cardiac ailment is developing an artificial heart that he says may be more efficient than the disease-prone organ provided by nature.

Dr. Harold D. Kletschka says he believes his plastic heart will outperform a damaged organ and will be so dependable that it "may still be going when its owner is dead from another disease."

Kletschka, 39, a native of Minneapolis, is chief of thoracic (chest) surgery at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Syracuse and an assistant professor of surgery at the Upstate Medical Centre of the state university.

His heart concept, Kletschka said, has been proven in principle. A plastics company with which he is working has developed the materials to meet biological requirements.

Now, he is seeking a $33,000 federal grant to complete the project and assemble a working model that would be tested first in animals.

If proven effective, he said, the artificial heart could play a dramatic role in prolonging human life and in the battle against heart disease.

The surgeon is reluctant to discuss his concept in detail.

Both Sides Ready to Talk

Times News Service

BERLIN—West Berlin and East German officials said today they are willing to negotiate to keep the wall open in 1964 after the current Christmas passes expire.

The statements appeared on the surface to be good news for families split by the wall. But some feared the separate West Berlin-East German talks could undermine the city's legal position and weaken its ties to West Germany.

The Soviet Embassy in East Berlin announced today it refused to accept an American protest Friday against the Christmas Day murder by East German border guards of a young refugee. The Soviet action was in line with the Communist attempt to cut West Berlin's legal ties with the West and build up the Soviet concept of an independent, sovereign East Germany.

More than 70,000 West Berliners used the Christmas passes today to enter East Berlin to visit relatives, and a city spokesman said the number might be as high as 150,000 Sunday. Total of 250,000 has passed through so far.

The Communists made three different offers to conclude a new agreement to allow West Berliners to continue to pass through the wall after the present holiday season agreement runs out Jan. 5.

A West Berlin spokesman said the city government "is ready" to negotiate again with the East Germans. He expressed the hope an agreement would alleviate some of the inhuman effects of the anti-refugee wall built Aug. 13, 1961.

Red Offer Made by Eisler

The Communist offer to negotiate a new pass agreement was made by Gerhart Eisler, top East German propagandist, Deputy Premier Alexander Abusch and the official Communist Party newspaper Neues Deutschland.

Eisler, bail-jumping fugitive from American justice, in his regular weekly column in the Communist Youth newspaper Young World, was asked if he thought a new agreement could be reached after the present Christmas pass agreement expires Jan. 5.

Eisler answered "Yes, indeed, I think so. Why should it not be possible to reach other, perhaps more far-reaching agreements in the spirit of the pass agreement."

Abusch, who started the negotiations that led to the present agreement by a letter to West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt early this month, said today: "Our government is ready after Jan. 5, 1964, to negotiate with authorized representatives of West Berlin all questions on the normalization of ties to West Berlin."

West Berliners Salute Body

The body of the slain refugee, Paul Schultz, 19-year-old electricians' apprentice, was shiped to East Berlin today for burial at the request of his brother.

He was shot in the back as he scaled the wall on the American sector border Christmas Day.

The Communists today defended his murder even as they offered to keep the wall open. The official Communist party newspaper Neues Deutschland, said "Our border soldiers act quite correctly. They are friendly to those who obey our laws and hard on those who violate them."

The remains of the 18-year-old

Cyprus Remains Tense

(Times News Services)

NICOSIA, Cyprus—A British patrol was fired on today as violence flared up again on this Mediterranean island which has been torn by fighting between Greeks and Turks for the last week.

A British army spokesman said the patrol came under attack near the Kyrenia Gate in Nicosia but did not return the fire. No one was injured.

At the same time the British wife of a serviceman was reported wounded in the leg by gunfire from Turkish Cypriots in the Neapolis quarter of the city.

The latest shooting came as British Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys arrived here by air for urgent talks.

Sandys left Britain unexpectedly aboard a troop transport. A three - nation peacekeeping operation already was attempting to keep order between the two Cypriot communities.

Meanwhile, a military spokesman at the three-power truce headquarters said three Turkish jet fighters flew over Nicosia this morning following a tense night filled with rumors of an imminent Turkish invasion.

The low-level buzzing was the third such incident in the last four days and followed a nerve-wracking night during which Turkish warships were reported off the northern Cyprus coast.

The buzzing brought renewed charges by Greek Cypriots that the Turkish air force was "showing the flag" in an attempt to incite the Turkish Cypriot community in Nicosia.

The invasion rumors roused acting British High Commissioner Denis Cleary and U.S. Ambassador Frazer Wilkins from their beds. They hurried to the presidential palace for an emergency conference with

32 FREEZE TO DEATH IN SNOW-CLOGGED IRAN

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Fourteen passengers and the driver froze to death in a bus stranded in massive snowdrifts near the Haraz Pass, reports reaching Tehran said today.

With 17 other persons frozen to death on northern Iran's snow-blocked highways, this brought the reported death toll for one day to 32.

'TREATED HIM SAME AS OTHERS'

Paper Boy Left $10,000

CLEVELAND (AP)—A 13-year-old newsboy has been left an estimated $10,000 estate by a customer he said he "treated the same as I did all the others on my route."

The estate was bequeathed to Alfred Thurman, one of 18 children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watson of nearby Chagrin Falls, it was disclosed Friday.

His benefactor was William Stovall, 68 - year - old retired rubbish collector who died last June.

Stovall, an orphan who had known hard times, lost his wife in 1961 and had no relatives. Shortly after Mrs. Stovall's death James A. Woodward, his attorney, asked Stovall to think about "making out a will or your estate will go to the state."

About a month later Stovall came to Woodward and told him, "I'd like to do something nice for my paperboy," Woodward said. "He's such a good kid and knows the value of a buck."

THURMAN
. . . customer satisfied

The estate will be the boy's after the death of Stovall's elderly housekeeper. It consists of 24 lots, each 20 x 100 foot, in the park allotment, the 10-room brick house in which Stovall lived and a partially completed house. The park allotment is a low-income negro community.

"I don't know why he left it to me," said the seventh-grade honor pupil. "Whenever he was sick I would get water for him and help him a little around the house. But it wasn't anything I wouldn't do for my other customers."

Asked about his future plans, the teen-age boy with a 26-customer route answered matter-of-factly:

"I'll take the money and go to college. I'd like to be a doctor."

10% Hike in Exports to U.S. Seen

WASHINGTON (CP) — Countries whose oil shipments to the U.S. are limited by import quotas will find these over-all ceilings increased by about two per cent during the first half of 1964 while quota-free imports from Canada will rise by almost 10 per cent, the interior department estimated Friday.

A spokesman, explaining details of the new oil import program for 1964, said the department anticipates imports from Canada will rise to a daily average of about 274,500 barrels during the January-June period, an increase from about 250,000 barrels during the July-December period of 1963.

Shipments from Canada, which are taken into account in setting import ceilings on oil from other countries, are expected to increase to 133,500 barrels daily from 125,000 barrels daily in districts east of the Rocky Mountains—an increase of about 7 per cent in an area where competition from domestic production is extremely heavy.

IMPORTS MAY RISE

In the Puget Sound and other points west of the Rockies, imports from Canada are anticipated to rise during the January-June period to a daily average of 141,000 barrels from 125,000 in the last half of 1963. American refineries plan to step up their pipeline imports from Canada, the spokesman said.

Total imports from other countries subjected to U.S. domestic controls are expected to increase to a daily average of 1,039,900 barrels during January-June from 1,013,000 in the last half of this year.

Total import quotas east of the Rockies are anticipated at 792,916 barrels daily, up from 783,093 daily during the July-December period of this year.

West of the Rockies, the daily average is expected to rise to about 247,000 barrels from 230,000.

CANADA DECLINES

Quotas for the regions east of the Rockies are based on 12.2 per cent of domestic production forecast for the next six months, after an allowance is made for anticipated overland imports from Canada and Mexico. Mexico has agreed to limit overland imports to 30,000 barrels daily. Canada has declined to enter into any similar agreement.

The department estimated domestic production of crude, unfinished and finished oil products will average about 7,840,000 barrels daily during the next six months, just about 1.7 per cent higher than the 7,690,000 barrels forecast for the last half of 1963.

In a separate report, the department estimated that crude oil production rose in the U.S. by 3.2 per cent during 1963 to a record 2,760,000,000 barrels, valued at about $8,000,000,000. Total demand for all oils averaged 10,745,000 barrels daily, an increase of 3.3 per cent over 1962, the department said.

CARGO SHIPMENTS

Vancouver Tops Coast Ports

VANCOUVER (CP)—Year-end statistics are expected to confirm Vancouver can whip other Pacific Coast contenders individually or in bunches when it comes to shipping cargo.

Shipping men said here Friday Vancouver's general cargo tonnage exceeds that of Seattle, Portland and San Francisco combined. And Vancouver is the world's leading port for timber and wheat exports.

Final figures are not in yet, but the latest estimate puts Vancouver's total cargo movement for 1963 at 15,900,000 tons, an increase of 15 per cent over the 1962 total of 14,600,000 tons.

The California port of Long Beach, another of the contenders, is advertising itself as the "No. 1 dry cargo port on the West Coast," on estimates it will handle 11,400,000 tons of cargo this year.

In Canadian comparisons, Vancouver is exceeded only by Montreal as a port for day, or general, cargo. As a grain port, anywhere, only New Orleans has an edge.

INCREASE FACILITIES

Two big bulk-loading facilities have been completed in Vancouver Harbor in the last four years to handle growing exports of bulk cargoes such as oil, coal, copper concentrates, lead, zinc potash and sulpher.

The port complex includes 62 deep-sea berths and 32 coastal cargo berths. There are grain berths for 15 ships.

In 1962 total grain exports out of Vancouver totalled 156,905,821 bushels, of which wheat accounted for 132,906,502 bushels.

The other three British Columbia grain-exporting ports, New Westminster, Victoria and Prince Rupert, brought the total grain exports for the year from B.C. to 169,795,824 bushels.

The port of Vancouver is still a young giant with ample room for growth. The harbor comprises nearly 50 square miles within approximately 100 miles of shoreline. Much of it is stil available for future expansion.

STELCO HITS PRODUCTION MILESTONE

HAMILTON (CP) — Steel Company of Canada has turned out its 3,000,000th ingot ton of steel this year, the first time a Canadian steel producer has reached that figure, the company reported Friday.

Stelco has a rated capacity of 3,125,000 ingot one a year, meaning that the company has been operating at close to 100 per cent of capacity in the year just ending.

Stelco, a Canadian-owned complex, produces about 40 per cent of Canada's steel and is ranked ninth in North America in terms of ingot capacity.

Winter House Building Sets Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Winter house construction in Canada has been spurred to a level of activity that may exceed the boom of the late 1950s.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. officials expect there will be about 90,000 houses under construction on Dec. 31. This would exceed by about 2,000 the record year-end total in 1958.

Even if there is a fall-off in housing starts in 1964, the carry-over of unfinished houses could ensure enough activity for the rest of this winter to be a major factor in holding down cold - weather unemployment.

The impetus has come mainly from three strong do-it-now incentives.

One if the recent spate of direct CMHC lending to contractors for speculative house-building. The corporation expects 1963 fourth-quarter loans to hit a total of 15,000. This has more than offset the decline in National Housing Act lending by trust and insurance companies.

Meanwhile, the impact of the government's $500 bonus for those buying new houses between Dec. 1 and March 31 has been greater than anticipated, CMHC says. The $500 comes off down payments, which already had been lowered in mid-year. This has brought hundreds of persons into a market in which normal demand had been slipping steadily.

TAX RISES APRIL 1

A third factor is the scheduled April 1 rise of the new sales tax on building materials to 8 per cent from 4. Builders have this date firmly in mind in their plans to start construction new.

Until a few months ago, CMHC had been forecasting 130,000 housing-unit starts in Canada for 1963—about the same as last year, but with a larger proportion in rental units. Now it has revised the forecast up to 145,000, with much of the increase in single-family houses.

In November, direct lending by CMHC was $89,000,000-five times higher than a year earlier. It makes 6,910 loans to both owners and builders—but mostly builders — compared with 1,250 in November last year, a jump of 452 per cent.

This reflects government policy announced last fall to provide up to $80,000,000 in CMHC lending to make up for what then was a rapid pull-out of the trust and insurance companies, in the face of rising interest rates that made alternative investment more attractive.

Big Machine Order Given B.C. Firms

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two city firms have received a multi-million-dollar order from the construction company that will build the Peace River dam.

Finning tractor and equipment has been engaged to supply $3,500,000 worth of earth-moving equipment to Kiewit-Dawson-Johnson.

Almost $1,000,000 of the order will be filled by Vancouver Iron and Engineering Works.

The contract calls for 14 600-h.p. tractors to be used to pull gigantic hauling units.

Vancouver Iron will build the hauling units to an American design.

Finning also received orders for 17 of the largest track-type tractors made by Caterpillar, the D9. The machines will push the material from the pit area into a conveyor belt, also to be supplied by Finning, leading to the dam site.

Construction of the earth-moving vehicles will start immediately in order to meet the early spring delivery date.

W. Germany Has Biggest Car Output

FRANKFURT (AP)—West Germany, the world's largest car exporting nation, had its biggest automotive boom year ever in 1963. And work has already started to increase capacities further.

Over-all 1963 production was 2,660,000 cars, trucks and buses, or about 13 per cent more than in 1962. This consolidated West German's number two position behind the United States among the world's auto-producing countries.

Every second automobile made in Germany was sold abroad as exports rose by more than 20 per cent, much faster than domestic sales which registered a six-per-cent gain. Passenger cars accounted for the bulk of exports.

Hudson Bay Sets Feb. 3 Opening For Man. Mine

WINNIPEG (CP) — Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. has set Feb. 3 as opening date for its new copper and zinc mine at Stall Lake, 500 miles north of Winnipeg, a company spokesman said Friday.

Eric S. Austin, the company's vice-president and general manager at Flin Flon, said the Stall Lake mine should produce 700 tons of copper and zinc ore a day.

He said the mine is the result of four years of research and development work. It will provide employment for 118 men at its opening stages.

Most of the output will be copper, a metal produced in relatively small volume in Manitoba at present, he said.

MUST END BARRIERS

Trade Talks Hold Top Canada Interest

TORONTO (CP) — Trade talks scheduled to open next summer in Geneva are shaping up as the most important event of 1964 as far as Canada is concerned, the Canadian Importers' Association says.

The association says in a year-end statement that Canada's prospects for economic growth depend on substantially increasing exports.

"In order to obtain entry into the markets of the world for Canadian goods under optimum conditions, it is necessary for us to reduce the tariff barriers that may prevent Canadian goods from being sold in those markets."

For that reason, the association says, it is of the utmost importance that Canada play its full role in giving equivalent concessions to its partners in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade "to obtain the best possible deal for Canadian exporters."

The success of such a program would depend on a broad measure of acceptance by the public of the fact it is in the long-term interest of the country to have trade conducted on a multi-lateral, non-discriminatory basis.

Canadians will have to blame themselves if they fail to take advantage of the many benefits to be gained by eliminating barriers preventing the flow of international trade, the association says.

Noting that Canada has had a favorable balance of merchandise trade recently, it says there is "every possibility" of another favorable balance in 1964.

DRYER MAY BE NAMED

Volumes of Evidence Face New Compensation Prober

By PETE LOUDON

DRYER
. . . most familiar

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson is expected to appoint someone to a formidable task within the next few days.

The appointee has to read and digest 5,000,000 words of testimony. That amount of words would fill about 100 average-sized novels.

When he's finished there's a score of briefs, many of them book-sized, which he also must absorb.

The appointee will fill the post of royal commissioner for an inquiry into Workmen's Compensation Board matters. The submissions he must tackle are those already accepted by the late Chief Justice A. C. DesBrisay.

Then the appointee must resume hearings. At the time of the commissioner's death recently, testimony was about to be taken from the three-man board itself.

Logic suggests that Labor Minister Peterson will appoint B.C. lawyer Victor Dryer to the job.

COUNSEL

That's one way of reducing the mammoth homework assignment to human proportions, because Mr. Dryer was commission counsel during most of the hearings which began in 1962.

Mr. Dryer resigned from the post when he was appointed last fall as a trustee of Canadian maritime unions.

But if he could now be spared from that task in Eastern Canada, it is generally felt it wouldn't be too long before he could catch up on the testimony he missed.

LONG DELAY

If anyone not as familiar with the hearings gets the job, it is likely the probe will face a delay of weeks or months.

Chief Justice DesBrisay had intended taking the hearings back into the interior at the close of sessions under way last fall in Vancouver. He had already been to Nelson and Penticton.

The royal commission had been demanded for years by B.C. labor unions. The commissioner is expected to come up with recommendations to ensure that injured workers and the families of workers killed on the job, will get just compensation, without some of the snags complained of in past years.

At the same time, the revisions must satisfy employers who finance the administration, that they are not being unjustly exploited.

DAMPENER

There is a political advantage for Premier Bennett if Labor Minister Peterson acts quickly. If the commission hearings are underway during the legislative session which begins Jan. 23, it will be impossible for the opposition to harass the government on behalf of those dissatisfied with the Compensation Act.

And it was proven at most election meetings in recent years throughout the province—a great many people are dissatisfied with it.

DISROBED

On one notable occasion in the 1960 campaign an injured worker disrobed in the aisle of the Orpheum Theatre at a Bennett rally, to show his injuries.

He was hustled out of the hall. But so far as is known he still is seeking satisfaction in his dealings with the compensation board. And the unions say his name is legion.

Arthur Mayse

Today we'll do a little turkey-picking, and for a start, here are some white-meat slivers from Doncaster Elementary School's brisk journal, "The News Blast-Off".

"In my opinion," a student editorial writer declares, "school should be from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 noon. This would not appeal to some people, but in this way you would have more time for fooling around in the afternoon.'

On another page, Karen Wilson of grade six indulges in some wishful thinking about the world of the future.

"The parents would be run by the children," says she, "and would be made to sweep and to drive us anywhere we wanted . . .

"You would be able to go to Earth to see all the old-fashioned cars, boats, clothes, houses that are much different from our things floating up in space.

"Then, of course, at home you would have a TV 10 yards by 10 yards and your bedroom would float in when you pushed a button so you could sleep in any room in the house.

"The clothes would be long dresses with diamond tiaras for your hair and the old clothes would be made of strong plastic so you couldn't tear them.

"That's how it would be in 2063 if I had my way."

Personally, I don't expect to be around for that brave new world, but if I were, one aspect would be all too familiar . . . the bit about parents and children!

The question of what Victoria can do to increase her intake of paying guests is still bringing in notions. Here's a set from H. H. Hughes of Sidney:

"As a drawing card, Victoria needs shows like the Black Watch band that was here this fall. All across the U.S., this show filled the arenas, and it has been proved that this type of thing always draws a crowd.

"The biggest problem is finding a place big enough to hold a spectacular like that in. Military shows are never a success unless they have concrete or blacktop underfoot, and the only place I know big enough is the new Mayfair parking lot.

"If only we could work up something of the 'tattoo' kind, and get space to produce it!

"We must find something to hold them downtown," Mr. Hughes continues, "because if they ever leave for Butchart's by car, you can kiss them goodby, as they nip on to the ferry and are gone. They can buy the same things in Vancouver, and often cheaper, so to hold them until you can bleed them, you must have something to dangle as a bribe."

That's blunt language, but there's worse to come.

"Let's face it, kid," growls Mr. Hughes from his Sidney lair, "Victoria is only a rather common, once pretty little town. The only old English charm you will ever see is around Oak Bay, and they are knocking all the old places down there, too."

* * *

Dr. Albert Trueman, chairman of Canada Council, is a book-lover who delves deep. A while ago he came up with a work titled 'Five Hundreth Pointes of Good Husbandry," written by Thomas Tusser in 1573. Among the verses with which it celebrates feast and frolic in country England is this swinging set:

Good husband and huswife
now chiefly be glad,
Things handsom to have, as they ought to be had;
They both doo provide against
Christmas doo come,
To welcome good neighbor,
good cheere to have some,
Good bread and good drinke,
a good fier in the hall
Brawne, pudding and souse,
and good mustard withall.

Beefe, mutton, and porke,
shred pies of the best,
Pig, veale, goose and capon,
and turkey well drest;
Cheese, apples and nuts, joly
Carols to heare,
As then in the countrie is counted good cheare.

What cost to good husband is
any of this?
Good household provision only
it is.
Of other the like, I doo leave
out a menie
That costeth the husbandman
never a penie.

Souse, Dr. Trueman explains, is pigs' feet and ears pickled, and shred pies are mince pies, a seasonal treat which has changed but little since Tom Tusser rhymed about good eating in Elizabethan England.

THEY MEAN BUSINESS!

No more warning tickets are going to be issued by police for traffic violations at the city's re-vamped Roundabout, now called Humber Circus.

Traffic police said motorists should be familiar with the new traffic pattern by this time and from now on regulations are going to be enforced.

Operation Cleanup Starts at Theatre

By LESLIE MILLIN

Crystal chandeliers were turned on in the old Pantages Theatre today — but they weren't bright.

Ten years' dust is crusted on every one.

By their blotchy light, Victoria University students — members of the Players Club —began to clean up the old theatre.

They were preparing it for its new role: entertainment attraction in the new civic centennial square.

In exchange, the city will give them a small donation to the club treasury, and anything in the way of props and costume they can salvage.

Ten years ago, the Totem Theatre went broke, and abandoned the place.

Today, you could get a box seat ticket easily—they were still scattered on the floor where they had been thrown when the old vaudeville house closed up.

Wilted Toulouse-Lautrec reproductions hung on the walls. Grease paint sticks still sat on dressing room ledges, and costumes were hung neatly on racks.

OLD PROGRAMS

A vault yielded bales of old programs.

Dust rose in puffs from aisle carpets, and hung in ropes on marble pillars in the foyer.

"There'll be good performances in this theatre before long," said Uvic professor Carl Hare, admiring the steep pitch of the balcony.

"There's life in the old girl yet."

North Ward Touches 'Social Conscience'

One Greater Victoria school trustee has come out for demolition and replacement of North Ward School as soon as possible.

Trustee Peter Bunn is the first member of the school board to take a strong stand on the question which has fired parents in the area and caused a 300-name petition to come to the board

"BOTHERED ME"

He says the 69-year-old building is a "slum school."

He told the Times:

"When I see children in good areas going to beautiful new schools . . . then I see this terrible looking, prison-like building . . . with many children attending who haven't had the best start anyway—this has bothered me.

"They not only live in a slum area—if Victoria has slums—but they have to go to a slum school as well.

"This has touched my social conscience."

SECOND PRIORITY

Chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, trusteee George Curran, said that second priority for replacement of North Ward will be recommended to the school board.

First priority, he said, will go to extra classrooms or new schools needed to end the shift system now in force at several Victoria schools.

Mr. Bunn says he has arranged with officials of the buildings and grounds department for an inspection tour of the building.

Numerous accidents—none causing injury—have occurred there in recent years.

WEAK FLOORS

Plaster has fallen from ceilings, outside masonry has collapsed, and teachers have crashed through weak floors that groan and bend when children walk on them.

The top floor of the school has been closed.

Proposed repltcement for North Ward is a 12 to 16-room school, two-storey reinforced concrete, costing between $250,000 and $300,000.

About a year ago, a government-assisted urban renewal scheme planned by the city suggested a new school site east of the present school.

BOGGED DOWN

Because of the high commercial value of the Douglas Street site, the scheme proposed selling it to pay for a new site and redevelopment in the Rose-Blanshard area.

"I don't know where it (the plan) has bogged down, whether at the federal or provincial level," says Mr. Bunn.

Mr. Curran said his committee is recommending the new school be built with or without urban renewal assistance.

University Newspapers Show Profit

Canadian campus coverage is in the black but read all over, university student editors were told in Vancouver today.

Victoria students are among more than 100 delegates attending the 26th annual Canadian University Press meeting that opened at University of B.C. and swings to Victoria tonight and Sunday.

Sidney Black, president of the C.U.P. service that supplies campus newspapers across the country, said there is a growing interchange of news and that for the first time in its history C.U.P. is operating at a profit.

OPENING SESSION

The Toronto student spoke at the opening session, in which a panel of professional newspapermen and university newspaper writers replied to questions from delegates at large.

The representatives from 30 universities from here to St. John's, Nfld., were to arrive here at about 9:30 p.m., conducting business sessions and winding up with an awards banquet Sunday.

20 Per Cent Signed JFK Tribute Here

Tribute to ex-president John F. Kennedy was supported by 20 per cent of the student body at University of Victoria in a petition sent to Ottawa as Christmas exams ended.

About 400 students signed the petition circulated by Canadian Union of Students at English and French-speaking universities across the country.

Purpose was to show the U.S. Congress the force of spirit backing the assassinated president's civil rights program.

CUS representative Roger Barnsley said more signatures might have been obtained had it not been examination time. Also, he said, some students resisted the principle.

"A lot of students felt this was none of our business," Barnsley said.

Petitions were being assembled into one at CUS Ottawa headquarters for dispatch to Congress.

Ask The Times

A. The city does have French schools. The French and Catholic culture of St. Boniface is also reinforced by St. Boniface College and French language CBC affiliates.

The city's population is 37,600.

Q. If you leave Victoria to travel to India via China, which way are you going, east or west? I. McK.

A. You are travelling west, but you are in what is known as the eastern half of the globe when you cross the international date line or the 180th degree of longitude.

Why Twist When You Can Do the Sxwaixwe?

By HUMPHRY DAVY

While the "twist" still ranks as one of the most popular dances performed at white man's festive social functions, it isn't so for members of the Salish tribe.

The large tribe which includes the Songhees and Cowichans, have their own favorite dance, a "Sxwaixwe," pronounced squi-quay.

It is performed around this time of the year and is a natural for a New Year's Eve dance.

But to perform a sxwaixwe, the dancer must wear a strange mask with protruding peglike eyes, and if possible a feathered costume.

The origin of the mask and dance is lost in antiquity, but some anthropologists believe it may have been created around 1780. The dance is primarily social and most interesting to watch.

Sxwaixwe dancers at one time were hired to dance at a marriage, a potlach or a reception for visitors. It is still a favorite with the Salish people.

There are other types of dances performed by Indians at this time of the year. Some of these are religious in nature which only few and trusted white people are allowed to see. These are known as guardian-spirit dances.

It is also a season for story-telling. The Indians have their own brand of host stories, and many of these have to do with Slalakums.

Slalakums live in the mountains and in certain bodies of water. They are several types, the best known the cannibal woman, a two-head creature, a giant snake, and the famous hairy giants of the Harrison Lake district.

Masked dancer invokes New Year's spirit.

TOPICS of the DAY

Wilbur Walter Barkley, 3323 Oak Street, was fined $250 and lost his licence when he pleaded guilty in Esquimalt magistrate's court Friday to impaired driving.

He was arrested Christmas Eve after he crossed the centre line on Tillicum and hit an oncoming car.

Barkley told police who investigated the accident that he "had a skinful" to drink.

There were long lineups and long waits at Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen Friday, but all cars and foot passengers were accommodated by the end of scheduled runs by B.C. Toll Authority ferries.

The ferries have reverted to winter schedule of departures every two hours, after providing hourly service during the peak holiday travel period.

A 25-year-old UBC student injured in the bush near Jordan River Christmas Eve is reported to be steadily improving at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Frans Van Netten, 461 Chesterfield, broke his hip when he fell out of a tree. He is reported in good condition.

The Biggest Were There With the Mostest

Keen-eyed members of the Fraternity of Waterfront Watchers saw something to remember off Discovery Island Friday—two of the Pacific's largest towboats, each hauling one of the world's largest cargo barges, passing within a cable's length.

The two tugs, of course, were the Ss. Sudbury and Sudbury II, the biggest pair in the fleet of Island Tug and Barge Ltd.

Ss. Sudbury was hauling the Island Importer, Yarrows-built barge rated as the largest deck cargo barge in the world. Her load was 11,000 tons of limerock, from Texada Island to the Portland Cement Co. plant in Oregon.

Sudbury II had the Island Importer's twin, Island Exporter, in tow, with an equally large load of industrial salts aboard. Sudbury II was inbound for Vancouver, with 1,600 miles of ocean behind her from the port of loading, Black Warrior Lagoon, Mexico.

Two of the senior skippers of Island Tug were in command, both well-known and highly respected deep-sea towboatmen. Capt. Harley Blagborne had Sudbury II, Capt. Steve Fairhurst Ss. Sudbury.

You may have noticed the respect with which SS. Sudbury and Sudbury II were referred to in the above paragraphs. The reason they weren't called Sudsone and Sudstwo, as has been my casual custom, is because of an admonishment received from a veteran coastal towboatman.

"Treat SS. Sudsbury with the honor due her," he advised. "She's a steamboat, and more than that, she's a steam towboat. And they don't hardly make them any more."

Aye aye, sir.

Regret to report an error in Friday's account of the perils of the British freighter Argobeam, which took aboard a huge wave off the west coast Christmas Eve.

The wheat cargo suffered no damage whatsoever, despite the fact part of a hatch cover was torn away by the wave. But about 200 tons will have to be re-stowed to correct the trim of the ship before she sets out for Japan again, probably Monday.

This seems to be explanation day. Next explanation; why I refer to the "government jetty at HMCS Naden" when the jetty in question has nothing to do with the navy or Naden.

Reason is simple: if I said "South Jetty, Government Graving Dock," most people would have trouble locating it. "At HMCS Naden" is simply a geographical description.

The fisheries protection vessel FPL Surge Rock will be launched with appropriate ceremony at McKay-Cormack Shipyards, Kingston Street, at 11:30 a.m. Jan. 11.

The lucky lady who won the honor of swinging the champagne bottle is Mrs. K. C. Lucas, wife of the assistant area director of the federal department of fisheries.

The vessel will be used in fisheries conservation and research in coastal waters and far out into the Pacific.

Cyprus Remains Tense

(Times News Services)

NICOSIA, Cyprus—A British patrol was fired on today as violence flared up again on this Mediterranean island which has been torn by fighting between Greeks and Turks for the last week.

A British army spokesman said the patrol came under attack near the Kyrenia Gate in Nicosia but did not return the fire. No one was injured.

At the same time the British wife of a serviceman was reported wounded in the leg by gunfire from Turkish Cypriots in the Neapolis quarter of the city.

The latest shooting came as British Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys arrived here by air for urgent talks.

Sandys left Britain unexpectedly aboard a troop transport. A three-nation peacekeeping operation already was attempting to keep order between the two Cypriot communities.

Meanwhile, a military spokesman at the three-power truce headquarters said three Turkish jet fighters flew over Nicosia this morning following a tense night filled with rumors of an imminent Turkish invasion.

The low-level buzzing was the third such incident in the last four days and followed a nerve-wracking night during which Turkish warships were reported off the northern Cyprus coast.

The buzzing brought renewed charges by Greek Cypriots that the Turkish air force was "showing the flag" in an attempt to incite the Turkish Cypriot community in Nicosia.

The invasion rumors roused acting British High Commissioner Denis Cleary and U.S. Ambassador Frazer Wilkins from their beds. They hurried to the presidential palace for an emergency conference with

DESECRATION was charged today by Victoria tree lovers when they learned that highways work crews last week cut down one of the areas most famous groves of dogwood. Seven stumps now border West Saanich Road, overlooking Heal's Range, at a point where thousands have stopped to admire or take pictures of the trees in blooming season. Victoria city parks boss Herb Warren says the stand was the last of the really fine dogwood trees in the district. He disagrees that the trees were a traffic hazard since the road was widened and says the province should have taken other steps if there was concern—even to changing the roadway to avoid the trees. He charged the department with being heavy-handed. (Halkett photo.)

CABINET MINISTERS RESIGN

Liberals Take Gamble In Opening Two Seats

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—In putting two of its seats up for byelection grabs, the Pearson minority government is risking a reduction in its ability to control Parliament and remain in power.

Having won 129 seats in the April general election, the Liberals fell four seats short of holding an absolute majority in 265-seat commons.

With the resignation from their Montreal seats of Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier and Postmaster General Azellus Denis, announced Friday, and the calling of Feb. 10 byelections, The Pearson government apparently is taking a calculated risk.

Sources say the government feels it has a good chance to win both byelections because the constituencies involved have been solidly Liberal for years—even through the massive electoral victory won by the Progressive Conservatives in 1958.

Should the Liberals be surprised and lose the two byelections, these sources say, they would quickly recognize the need to do some fence-mending.

They don't fear a defeat in the house, and consequent general election through loss of the two seats because they are confident the Social Credit MPs and New Democrats will continue to vote with the government to avoid an early election.

Prime Minister Pearson now has made a start on his cabinet shuffle—the first since taking office.

Chevrier and Denis are both veteran Liberal MPs.

They will be given other jobs and will continue in an active capacity as heads of their departments until their new appointments.

Mr. Pearson also announced at a press conference that

PLASTIC HEART

Better Than Real One?

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A surgeon whose father died of a cardiac ailment is developing an artificial heart that he says may be more efficient than the disease-prone organ provided by nature.

Dr. Harold D. Kletschka says he believes his plastic heart will outperform a damaged organ and will be so dependable that it "may still be going when its owner is dead from another disease."

Kletschka, 39, a native of Minneapolis, is chief of thoracic (chest) surgery at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Syracuse and an assistant professor of surgery at the Upstate Medical Centre of the state university.

His heart concept, Kletschka said, has been proven in principle. A plastics company with which he is working has developed the materials to meet biological requirements.

Now, he is seeking a $33,000 federal grant to complete the project and assemble a working model that would be tested first in animals.

If proven effective, he said, the artificial heart could play a dramatic role in prolonging human life and in the battle against heart disease.

The surgeon is reluctant to discuss his concept in detail.

Only Sad Stumps Left Of Noble Dogwoods

By PETE LOUDON

One of the most beautiful clusters of dogwood on the Saanich Peninsula has been sacrificed for highway improvement.

The trees were felled last week on West Saanich Road near Heal's Rifle Range by the B.C. highways department.

They had been an outstanding attraction for years and had been photographed by thousands of passersby.

ROAD WIDENED

Residents in the area said the destruction of the trees was undertaken because the road was widened recently. The loss is justified according to some. But most people who knew the trees hover between rage and tears.

Victoria city parks superintendent W. H. Warren was upset by the news.

"Good species of dogwood are exceedingly rare. I can't point to one good dogwood in the area any more.

HEAVY HANDED

He said, "I think all the operations of the highways department are heavy handed when it comes to trees. These have been a landmark for 50 years. They were no traffic hazard.

Mr. Warren said a dogwood lasts for 80 to 100 years and he said the trees just felled were getting on to maturity "but would last for many years ordinarily."

The trees had fronted the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Harvey for 35 years that they have lived there.

"I call it a crime," said Mr. Harvey.

He said the branches of the dogwoods had been brushing the tops of the Vancouver Island Coach Line buses and "they kicked up a fuss."

RUINED THEM

Mr. Harvey said a man recently was sent out to prune the trees, "but he ruined them."

Mrs. Harvey, who has another fine dogwood clump in her yard, was more philosophical.

"The trees were badly decayed and three of the branches were gone." She said that as close to the road as they were, they constituted

Berlin Sides Ready to Talk

Times News Services

BERLIN—West Berlin and East German officials said today they are willing to negotiate to keep the wall open in 1964 after the current Christmas passes expire.

The statements appeared on the surface to be good news for families split by the wall. But some feared the separate West Berlin-East German talks could undermine the city's legal position and weaken its ties to West Germany.

The Soviet Embassy in East Berlin announced today it refused to accept an American protest Friday against the Christmas Day murder by East German border guards of a young refugee. The Soviet action was in line with the Communist attempt to cut West Berlin's legal ties with the West and build up the Soviet concept of an independent, sovereign East Germany.

More than 70,000 West Berliners used the Christmas passes today to enter East Berlin to visit relatives, and a city spokesman said the number might be as high as 150,000 Sunday. Total of 250,000 has passed through so far.

The Communists made three different offers to conclude a new agreement to allow West Berliners to continue to pass through the wall after the present holiday season agreement runs out Jan. 5.

A West Berlin spokesman said the city government "is ready" to negotiate again with the East Germans. He expressed the hope an agreement would alleviate some of the inhuman effects of the anti-refugee wall built Aug. 13, 1961.

Red Offer Made by Eisler

The Communist offer to negotiate a new pass agreement was made by Gerhart Eisler, top East German propagandist, Deputy Premier Alexander Abusch and the official Communist Party newspaper Neues Deutschland.

Eisler, bail-jumping fugitive from American justice, in his regular weekly column in the Communist Youth newspaper Young World, was asked if he thought a new agreement could be reached after the present Christmas pass agreement expires Jan. 5.

Eisler answered "Yes, indeed, I think so. Why should it not be possible to reach other, perhaps more far-reaching agreements in the spirit of the pass agreement."

Abusch, who started the negotiations that led to the present agreement by a letter to West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt early this month, said today: "Our government is ready after Jan. 5, 1964, to negotiate with authorized representatives of West Berlin all questions on the normalization of ties to West Berlin."

West Berliners Salute Body

The body of the slain refugee, Paul Schultz, 18-year-old electrician's apprentice, was shipped to East Berlin today for burial at the request of his brother.

He was shot in the back as he scaled the wall on the American sector border Christmas Day.

The Communists today defended his murder even as they offered to keep the wall open. The official Communist party newspaper Neues Deutschland, said "Our border soldiers act quite correctly. They are friendly to those who obey our laws and hard on those who violate them."

The remains of the 18-year-old

FROM CUSTOMER

Cleveland Newsboy Receives $10,000

CLEVELAND (AP)—A 13-year-old newsboy has been left an estimated $10,000 estate by a customer he said he "treated the same as I did all the others on my route."

The estate was bequeathed to Alfred Thurman, one of 18 children of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Watson of nearby Chagrin Falls, it was disclosed Friday.

His benefactor was William Stovall, 68-year-old retired rubbish collector who died last June.

Stovall, an orphan who had known hard times, lost his wife in 1961 and had no relatives. Shortly after Mrs. Stovall's death James A. Woodward, his attorney, asked Stovall to think about "making out a will or your estate will go to the state."

About a month later Stovall came to Woodward and told him, "I'd like to do something nice for my paperboy," Woodward said. "He's such a good kid and knows the value of a buck."

The estate will be the boy's after the death of Stovall's elderly housekeeper. It consists of 24 lots, each 20 x 100 foot, in the park allotment, the 10-room brick house in which Stovall lived and a partially completed house. The park allotment is a low-income negro community.

"I don't know why he left it to me," said the seventh-grade honor pupil. "Whenever he was sick I would get water for him and help him a little around the house. But it wasn't anything I wouldn't do for my other customers."

Asked about his future plans, the teen-age boy with a 26-customer route answered matter-of-factly:

32 FREEZE TO DEATH IN SNOW-CLOGGED IRAN

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Fourteen passengers and the driver froze to death in a bus stranded in massive snowdrifts near the Haraz Pass, reports reaching Tehran said today.

With 17 other persons frozen to death on northern Iran's snow-blocked highways, this brought the reported death toll for one day to 32.

Car Kills Girl

TORONTO (CP)—Karen Morrison, 15, died today of internal and head injuries after being thrown 66 feet by a car which plowed into a group of teen-age girls Friday night.

Transport Aid Asked For Retarded

PORT ALBERNI—John B. Walkin, president of the Retarded Children's Association, has asked the school board to take over the responsibility of transporting retarded children to school.

The bus in operation now travels 74 miles to pick up and deliver 13 children to school.

District superintendent of schools, W. H. Gurney said: "It would seem a logical extension of the board's services to these pupils."

The issue will be settled at the school board's next meeting.
